

Getting ready for the new school year

By Yvonne Iverson

Well, the summer is winding down and the kids have a little over two weeks left before school starts.

Better get your back to school checklist out and make sure you have everything done.

Sports physicals were held on Monday, but if you missed it you can call the clinic at 8 a.m. to make a same day appointment.

You are probably out of luck if you wanted to get your kiddo in for a teeth cleaning before school starts. They schedule appointments every Wednesday, and today they are scheduling for the week of September 9.

This Friday you can get your school pictures taken at the Museum at Warm Springs. Packages are 10 percent off the regular price on picture day. Even if you don't order a package students still need their pictures for IDs and yearbook.

Next Friday, August 30, you can browse the Back To School Yard Sale at the Community Center, or you can call Carol to reserve a table so you can get rid of some old to make room for the new.

The Back To School BBQ will be held at the elementary school track area on Thursday, September 5. So you can cross back-pack and school supplies off your list.

We hope that everyone has a great start to the new school year.

The 509-J school will start on Monday, September 9 for the first through sixth grades and incoming high school freshmen. All middle school and high school students go to school on Tuesday.

Capital

I've lived in Eugene for many years. I've learned through many gossips and rumors or just sayings. Eugene, Oregon is the capital of all the cities that have pollen, and most Natives, if not all Natives have an allergy to pollen.

Oh well, there is medication for those of us who have an allergy. I look at the many resources this city has for almost all of us! That's more important. Either way, Go Ducks!

Family, friends

As you all know I am locked up again for something I did back in 2004... I owed the state of Oregon 13 months and now I'm almost finished with it.

I told my family that I was going to move away for a while, but I wasn't planning on it to be like this, because I really thought I was done with this life. This time around I earned some certificates for employment, housing, food handling, money management, how to be a better father, uncle, etc. I learned a lot of things that I never even knew about life in general. Hopefully, I will do better out there this time.

Nowadays

I would like to express the shivers I felt upon hearing this song, and it reminds me of atwai Bird Bruce-Kalama, whom I called mom for a while. The song is called The Crow and the Butterfly.

I painted your room at midnight, so I'd know yesterday was over. I put all your books on the top shelf, even the one with the four-leaf clover. Man, I'm getting older. I took your pictures off the wall and wrapped them in newspaper bagging. Your words still serenade me, your lullabies won't let me sleep. I've never heard such a haunting melody. Oh, it's killing me, you know I can barely breath... just like a crow chasing a butterfly. Dandelions lost in the summer sky... I never thought you'd slip away. I guess I was just a little late...

I just wanted to say I love you and miss every single person that has left me and the precious few who can put up with me nowadays. Love,
Charles T. Hellon.

Memorial Services

Memorial services arbor at the residence of Faye Waheneka.

I am truly honored with the attendance at the Jonas A. Miller and Anthony "Chaz" Mitchell Sr. memorial services at Faye Waheneka's residence on Saturday, August 3, 2013.

My brother Bobby and myself have one more task, and then we will write another letter thanking everyone. Of all who worked really hard to help—Thank you! Okay, a great big shout out to:

The crew that built the arbor, the fishermen, the hunters, root and berry gatherers, especially the cooks, the bell ringer, and all singers and drummers. Most of all, I was truly honored and humbled with each and every one of you who came to the services. It made my heart strong and happy. Not only are you giving Chaz and Jonas respect, but you are solid in the support you give me. Thank you.

Respectfully,
Ken Man

Museum news

Please note that the Museum at Warm Springs Huckleberry Harvest Dinner has been rescheduled to October 5.

Join us beginning at 5:30 on Oct. 5 for a fun-filled evening of art, auctions and a gourmet dinner.

Contributions go to support the cultural and educational services of the museum. Bring friends, family, and organizations for an evening and opportunity to help support the museum's mission.

The mission of the museum is to preserve, advance and share the knowledge of the cultural, traditional and artistic heritage of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

The museum achieves this through educational exhibitions and programs that raise and inspire awareness of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and other indigenous tribes.

Exhibit

The current show in the Changing Exhibits Gallery is Indigenous Elements: The Life and Art of Apolonia Susana Santos.

An Award Winning Artist for over 30 years, the late Apolonia Santos worked and created in several mediums including: large scale paintings, sculpture, silkscreen, graphic design, ceramics, photography and poetry.

This exhibit shows her determination, her strength, her grace and vision. She was supportive of all native artists and encouraged them to continue to grow artistically.

As a fisherwoman herself, she fought diligently to protect traditional fishing and sovereignty rights of her People.

The next deadline to submit items for publication in the Spilyay Tymoo is Friday, August 30. Thank you for writing!

You do not want to miss this powerful and stirring exhibition.

You can reach the Museum at Warm Springs at 541-553-3331.

To hunters

For 2013 there is mandatory reporting of hunter harvest.

Failure to report harvest results will be a loss of hunting privileges for subsequent tags.

Hunters are important sources of wildlife related information. The information gathered from hunter surveys is valuable for biologists, wildlife committee and tribal council to help make informed wildlife management decisions.

By reporting, you are helping monitor wildlife populations and helping enhance hunting opportunities.

Information from hunters who did not hunt or harvest an animal is as important as hunters who did take an animal.

Hunter surveys are available at the Natural Resources office and will be given out with tags. Thank you for your participation!

The Warm Springs Wildlife Department.
