The water slide was a popular attraction at the Warm Springs Fire Management celebration last weekend on the campus, marking the 71st birthday of Smokey Bear.

Updates from BIA, Special Trustee

BIA Warm Springs Agency Superintendent John Halliday met with Tribal Council on Monday, followed by an update from Charles Jackson, director of the Warm Springs Office of the Special Trustee.

Mr. Halliday presented information and a timeline regarding the federal budgeting process. The process is important for the Confederated Tribes, as various tribal branches—Natural Resources and Social Services, for instance—utilize significant federal funding.

An item to keep in mind, Halliday said, is the proposed Warm Springs Justice Center, which would include a new jail, juvenile detention facility, and courtrooms and offices.

Special Trustee update

Charles Jackson reported on a new initiative regarding the Native American probate process.

He presented the new probate brochures that are now available at his office, located in the administration building.

The brochures are in an easier to read format, Jackson reported.

One of the brochures is titled, "Do You Know Who Will Inherit Your Land? ~ Protecting those that matter most." The pamphlet answers the common questions about the American Indian Probate Reform Act.
