

Salmon lessons at CRITFC camp

Twenty youth representing the four Columbia River tribes gathered on the Nez Perce Reservation at Camp Wittman in July.

The youth attended Salmon Camp, hosted by the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

The youth learned about salmon biology, stream ecology, traditional tribal ecological knowledge, and Nez Perce culture.

They got to ride Apaloosa horses, and saw tribal salmon restoration sites.

They went on a jet boat ride up the Snake River into Hells Canyon, where they saw ancient petroglyphs, and they visited the Nez Perce fish hatchery.

The camp is part of CRITFC's workforce development program, which has a goal of helping young tribal members get into science fields to become tomorrow's leaders.

Through work in the fields of science, the youth can help to protect the First Foods and other natural resources of the tribes.

As part of the CRITFC Salmon Camp, the students (above) visited the Nez Perce fish hatchery (right).

Speaking of Basketball

Warm Springs Community Counseling and Tribal Council hosted a sobriety powwow in July, when Jude Schimmel and her parents Ceci and Rick were in town.

The day started with Jude and her parents giving some inspiring words, and answering questions at the old elementary school gym.

The Schimmels then conducted a youth basketball camp. Jude is a former Division I player, having joined her sister Shoni on the Louisville Cardinals women's team. Ceci is a basketball coach.

After the basketball camp, Warm Springs Prevention and Community Counseling hosted a sobriety powwow, enjoyed by many.

Jude is an accomplished public speaker, and author of the book, Dreamcatcher.

You can learn more about the Schimmels' story with the documentary, Off the Rez.
