

Progress with Veterans Memorial Park

Work is progressing on the Warm Springs Veterans Memorial Park. The park and monument will be located on the grounds of the Museum at Warm Springs, at the far end of the museum north field.

The team working on this project is now in a key fundraising phase—involving the bricks of the memorial walkway.

The Confederated Tribes and the Spirit Mountain Foundation have provided the initial funding for the project. This has allowed Warm Springs Construction to begin work on the foundation of the memorial. Additional funding—allowing for completion of this long-planned memorial—will come from donations.

The Veterans Memorial Park will be in honor of all veterans from the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, representing all military branches, and all major conflicts, from the early tribal scouts to the present day.

The memorial will display the official seals of the seven branches of service, along with the branch flags. There will be 10 pillars on a raised mound with the names of the veterans inscribed on the pillars.

To contribute

The walkways will be of bricks, inscribed with the names of all donors. There options to choose from in making a donation: 4x8 bricks and 8x8 bricks, with inscription and other options (see below).

Celebrating addition to conservation lands

The Confederated Tribes Branch of Natural Resources manages thousands of acres of fish and wildlife conservation areas—west from the Willamette Valley eastward to the John Day River. These conservation areas are in addition to the Natural Resources restoration projects on the reservation, the Log Springs project, for instance.

A recent addition to the tribes' off-reservation conservation areas is the Dunstan Homestead Preserve—1,200 acres of critical habitat along the upper reaches of the Middle Fork of the John Day. The area is at the heart of Chinook salmon spawning and rearing territory.

The Nature Conservancy and the Bonneville Power Administration are the tribes' main partners in the acquisition and future management of the Dunstan Preserve.

The tribes and Branch of Natural Resources are joining their partners this week at the Dunstan Preserve to officially inaugurate and celebrate this project.

The Dunstan Homestead Preserve adds to the tribes' other conservation areas on the John Day—the Pine Creek, and the landmark Oxbow Conservation Area.

The Nature Conservancy purchased the Dunstan Preserve in 1990 from the Dunstan family, who had owned the land since 1899.

For years, the Nature Conservancy has worked collaboratively with neighbors, local partners and the tribes to restore habitat and advance research, monitoring and land management on the property and surrounding area. With the addition of the Dunstan Preserve to the tribes' existing properties—also purchased in partnership with BPA—nearly 3,000 acres of important fish and wildlife habitat are now permanently protected along the Middle Fork John Day.

Korean and Cold War Veterans of Warm Springs

The organizers of the Warm Springs Veterans Memorial Park are working on a definitive list of Warm Springs veterans.

Your help is requested in completing this list as accurately as possible.

Over the coming several weeks the Spilyay Tymoo will be publishing the names—and where available the branch of service—of the veterans of Warm Springs. We start here with the veterans of the Korean War and Cold War Era.
