

More wolf pups on the reservation

Biologists with the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Branch of Natural Resources have captured more footage of wolf pups on the reservation.

A BNR remote camera recorded video of six wolf pups from the White River pack.

The north-central Oregon pack is relatively new: This may be the pair's second litter since moving to the area.

The footage shows the pups' excitement while listening to others wolves howling in the distance.

The White River pack was officially recognized earlier this year after the pair in 2018 produced their first three surviving pups. Wolves are protected under the Endangered Species Act.

Headstones

Pioneer Rock and Monument is hosting a contest with the winning prizes being headstones.

Pioneer Rock and Monument, based in Goldendale, Washington, will give away one headstone for the oldest unmarked grave in the region. They will also give away one additional headstone to the person who submits the winning entry.
