

Water: Federal law

“And yet federal resources to help tribal governments in Oregon to fix damaged water systems are woefully lacking. The federal government must step up and do more to support these communities working to make permanent fixes and ensure water security needed for their long-term health and quality of life.”

Senator Merkley said: “As the crisis on the Warm Springs Reservation illustrated, Native communities in Oregon are facing serious water infrastructure challenges. We need to invest in replacing outdated pipe systems, to help ensure that tribal nations have reliable access to safe drinking water for years to come.

“This legislation provides a pathway to making those infrastructure upgrades happen, and I’m urging my colleagues to join us in fighting to get it across the finish line and signed into law.”

“This legislation would throw a lifeline to tribes like Warm Springs that are in dire need of water infrastructure improvements to serve their tribal membership,” said Tribal Council Chairman Raymond Tsumpti.

The Tribal Water Infrastructure Act introduced Thursday will:

- Help Oregon tribes connect, expand or repair existing public water systems to improve water quality, water pressure or water services by ensuring tribes in the Columbia River Basin, and its adjacent coastal river basins, are eligible for the Indian Reservation Drinking Water Program;

- Authorize the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to fund up to 10 water improvement projects per year for tribes in the Columbia River Basin and its adjacent coastal river basins;
- Require that at least one of the 10 authorized water improvement projects help Western Oregon tribal governments improve water infrastructure; and

- Make the Indian Reservation Drinking Water program permanent and increase its funding from $20 million per year to $30 million per year.

On December 12, Senators Ron Wyden and Jeff Merkley introduced legislation to improve water quality and services for tribal communities in Oregon.
