Recovery Walk

by Sarah Frank
Behavioral Health Center

Steven Ford Jr. is a Spokane tribal member and a senior at Welpinit High School. Steven wanted to take a stand against drug abuse after seeing the destruction and even death of friends and family members.

This month he asked tribes from around Indian Country to either join him in their walk, or to coordinate a walk on their reservation. The Warm Springs Behavioral Health Program coordinated a Walk on the campus area on March 13.

Opening prayer was led by Pastor Larry McKinney. Aldo Garcia led the Wellbriety WAR Group to sing prayer songs.

Colleta Macy and Brian Renfro both shared a brief testimony and apology to the community. Caroline Cruz shared encouraging words. Tribal inmates—the 30 Block Boys—shared a song. “The only way to destroy the drug is to replace it with hope,” said an adult in custody at Recovery Jail Class the day before the Walk.

Other comments shared:

“Some people are blind to our addiction, they cannot relate because they have never personally experienced addiction.”

They all agreed that “One night of fun can lead to addiction, prison, death, regret, shame and missed opportunities with children.” Most of the 50-plus Walk participants are in active recovery from alcohol and/or drugs, which made the Walk powerful.

We must create a Healing Forest and we must forgive the unforgivable to heal.
