Opinion

Mischaracterization of history of Falls

This opinion article was submitted to The Portland Tribute by Raymond Tsumpti, chair of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs; Delores Pigsley, chair of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz; N. Kathryn Brigham, chair of the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla; and Delano Saluskain, chair of the Confederated Tribes and Bands of Yakama Nation:

In a recent article—“Willamette Falls Trust apologizes for harming tribes”—there was a mischaracterization of the tribal history and relationships to the Falls of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Siletz Indians, the Umatilla and Yakama Nation.

The article inadvertently advanced a false narrative that the Grand Ronde Tribe is the only tribe with historic, cultural and legal interests in Willamette Falls, and that other tribes only visited with their permission and sufferance.

This could not be further from the truth. Many different Indian bands and tribes stewarded and made use of the Falls for thousands of years, including the ancestors of our four tribal nations. Willamette Falls was an Indian gathering place, similar to Celilo Falls. Our tribes met there to harvest, trade, visit and even intermarry.

The Indians who were signatories to the ratified 1855 Treaty of Kalapuya were removed to the Siletz Reservation and the Grand Ronde reservations. Indians at the Falls who came from the east were removed to several reservations, but preserved in three other ratified 1855 treaties their rights to continue to fish at all usual and accustomed fishing places, however distant from those reservations. Although our ancestors came from many places, we are now identified by the reservations they were moved to: Warm Springs, Siletz, Umatilla, Yakama and Grand Ronde.

The Treaty Tribes work together on issues of mutual interest on the Willamette River and at Willamette Falls specifically. Recent examples include the cleanup of the Portland Harbor Superfund site, Portland General Electric FERC licensing processes and the Willamette Falls Locks Commission.

Even more recently, Congress recognized the interests of these tribes, not just Grande Ronde, in protecting salmon and restoring ecological balance to the Willamette River in and around Willamette Falls.

The Grand Ronde Tribe’s strategy of exclusion of our Tribes insults the history of our Tribes, especially after our Tribes banded together, at their request, to support the Grand Ronde Tribe’s reestablishment in 1986 through Congress.

We stood with the Grand

Ronde Tribe in its time of critical need. Sadly, not long after correcting a historic injustice to the Grand Ronde people, they chose to disrespect our effort through a significantly funded media campaign designed to remove our histories at the Falls.

Your editors should have done additional investigation when the Grand Ronde Tribe declared its intent to exclude other tribes, claiming that “other tribal” representation on the Willamette Falls Trust Board would somehow ‘undermine’ Grand Ronde. This claim stands far from the truth. Our collective efforts have always made us stronger in the protection of natural resources.

Conversely, the Willamette Falls Trust Board strives to understand the complex nature of Willamette Falls and are interested in inclusion and collaboration to share the full story.

Our past, as well as our future, are united by Willamette Falls.

The Willamette Falls should be protected for the natural and cultural resources it possesses, our shared history it represents, and should be restored and enjoyed by all rather than subject to commercial development for any one entity’s gain.

Awareness Month sheds light on survivors

by Liz Hill, Red Lake Ojibwe StrongHearts Native Helpline

Every October during Domestic Violence Awareness Month, advocates and communities across Indian Country rally together to honor survivors of domestic violence and support abuse prevention.

In 2020, StrongHearts Native Helpline once again calls on advocates, tribal leaders, reservation and urban Indian community members, service providers and Native organizations to support the movement to prevent and end domestic violence, which disproportionately affects millions of Natives every year.

Violence against Indigenous peoples began with European contact and has continued to this day, adding up to more than 500 years of abuse. Domestic violence, which continues as a tool of colonization, represents a lack of respect for Native peoples.

Native women and men in the United States experience domestic violence at alarming rates, with more than four in five Natives having experienced some form of violence in their lifetime and more than half experiencing physical violence by an intimate partner in the past year.

For one-on-one advocacy, see: strongheartshelpline.org Or call 1-844-7NATIVE (762-8483).

Domestic violence has many faces: physical, sexual, emotional, cultural, financial and digital. It doesn’t discriminate and includes violence against children, elders, LGBTQ2S individuals. There is also a strong connection between domestic violence and thousands of Missing and Murdered Indigenous women.

Native nations in the Lower 48 and Alaska Native Villages continually go underfunded for life saving domestic violence services. Now in its fourth year of operation, StrongHearts has received more than 9,103 phone calls and online chats.
