

New Indian Education board in office

Jaylyn Suppah this year continues her term on the board of the National Indian Education Association.

Jaylyn Suppah

Ms. Suppah is a student of Evergreen State College, and community planner for the Confederated Tribes. At Evergreen, Jaylyn is a graduate student, working toward a Master's Degree in Public Administration-Tribal Governance program.

She was elected to the NIEA board last year. She serves on the NIEA Advocacy Committee, the Native Education Systems Committee, and the Government Committee.

The National Indian Education Association is the leading Native education advocacy organization.

The association announced new board members last week, noting also that Jaylyn and four other board members will continue their terms.

Patricia Whitefoot, of the Yakama Nation, also continues her term with the NIEA, now serving as board vice president.

Last week, during the Annual NIEA Convention and Trade show—the first ever in a virtual format—the new board members were sworn-in during the closing ceremony.

The five newly elected and seven current board members take on the challenge of governing a Native education organization during times of unprecedented educational disruption.

Crews continue work on Lionshead fire

Control of the Lionshead fire is divided among three local units: The Warm Springs Agency, the Willamette National Forest and the Mt. Hood National Forest.

On the reservation the fire burned roughly 97,000 acres, and another 107,000 acres off reservation. The fire broke out during a lightning storm on August 16.

Currently, each of the three agencies is working to manage their portion of the fire in the most efficient means possible.

Hunting, woodcutting and gathering remain closed to members throughout the fire area.

There are currently dozer and grader machinery operations ongoing around the J-100, J-200, P-500 and J-210 roads, as well as chipping operations.

Aerial resources include one helicopter to monitor hot spots and to best support the footprint of the fire.

Crews continue to ensure that fire is no longer active or burning along the fire perimeter.

Islands or pockets of unburnt fuels well within the fire's boundaries do continue to be monitored and will put up slight columns of smoke in the days to come. Suppression work continues with long term repair assessments.

All non-fire personnel should remain outside of the fire's general vicinity of the south-west quadrant of the reservation. Safety is the number one concern of everyone working on the Lionshead fire.

Schools

(Continued from page 1) At their meeting last week in Warm Springs, the district board members thanked Mr. Parshall for his service with the district. "We know that you live and breathe 509-J," said board member Jamie Hurd. "And with that is a lot of personal sacrifice, and the community is grateful and indebted to you."

Meanwhile, Evan Brown retired in October. Mr. Brown had been in education for 38 years, including 23 teaching and coaching for Madras High School.

Native Pride Month

November will be Native Pride Month and the Warm Springs Academy has some online events in celebration.

Monday, November 2 will see the 'Being Indian is...' read along and read aloud. The following Monday, November 9 will be a Warm Springs Academy Virtual Powwow, and Cultural show and Tell.

The month continues on November 16 with the Virtual Rock Your Mocs; and November 20 with a Virtual Assembly with Supaman.

Visit the Warm Springs website for more details. In order to participate in some parts of the events, like submitting photos or videos, the Academy needs guardian permission. Permission forms are available on the website. Call 541-553-1128 with questions.
