Tribal Energy Fair a hit with tribal community

Warm Springs Power and Water Enterprises, in partnership with 7Skyline, this summer proudly hosted the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs’ first-ever Tribal Community Energy Fair.

The free public event at the Campus Pavilion brought together tribal members, energy professionals and community leaders to share tools and opportunities in renewable energy, energy efficiency, and climate resilience. Over 150 families attended, completing over 130 surveys on energy needs and interests.

“The event created a one-stop shop to answer questions and help members follow up on what matters to them, whether that is on an individual level or community projects like the transmission line upgrade,” said Cathy Ehli, Power and Water Enterprises general manager. The first 100 attendees received five-gallon buckets generously donated by Ace Hardware in Madras and packed with energy-saving tools.

Attendees also enjoyed free food from the Twisted Teepee and Kalama’s Fry Bread, a raffle featuring e-bikes, a portable backup power station with solar panels, solar gear, solar-powered toy cars, 7Skyline backpacks and swag, swim passes donated by the Kah-Nee-Ta Hot Springs Resort, plant-based gifts, and home energy efficiency items. Exhibitors joined the community spirit by offering items like bandanas, keychains, water and soda beverages, and huckleberry cookies made by a local Warm Springs baker.

A total of 40 exhibitors offered their expertise in everything from renewable energy technologies to funding pathways. The Energy Fair highlighted local energy projects and the future of energy for the Confederated Tribes.

“We have a relationship with 7Skyline, they’re an energy consulting firm that help us with a variety of things from grant writing and energy strategy to environmental planning. They’ve worked with tribes across the country, and they have supported Power and Water Enterprises since 2017.

“Their awareness of programs available, funding opportunities and commitment to Tribal energy sovereignty makes them a valuable partner in putting this Energy Fair together,” Cathy Ehli said.

The Energy Fair was part of the 7Skyline Power Up Tribal Energy Series, a growing grassroots effort to bring trusted, culturally grounded energy education and technical resources directly to tribal communities, bridging traditional values with energy solutions and empowering community members with tools to act.
