THE WIND

Listen . . the wind begins to sing
Strong like the eagle, it comes to bring
The message most giving in time of grief,
To the Native American and his belief.

Listen . . the wind begins a song
Across the land it comes on strong
To tell us all of our Mother Earth,
While Native Americans know her worth.

Listen . . the wind begins to thunder
And it is then that humans wonder,
Just why wind roars over the land,
Yet Native Americans go hand in hand.

Listen . . the wind is gentle now
I can feel it caress my naked brow,
Then it thunders and roars across the land
And I - a Native American - understand.
