

PARASITES? (continued from page 1.)

The Yamhill County Health Department issued a statement Tuesday afternoon stating it had investigated all 10 cases reported by Molloy. An analysis of the City of Sheridan's public water system by the state Health Division's drinking water section found that "proper procedures had been and still are continuously in place to deactivate giardia in the water supply," the health department said in its written statement.

The state also recommended that a complete filtration of Sheridan's water system be done. "This will be accomplished shortly," according to the county health department.

The report came to the following conclusion: "There is no reason to believe at this time there is any relationship between the current case (a recent case reported to the county on Sept. 5), or subsequent cases, and the adequacy of water treatment in the Sheridan water system..."
