Scholarship recipients recognized

Mother Earth's Children presents four $600 awards from throughout the state of Oregon to outstanding American Indian/Alaska Native students with the Ann C. Thorton Memorial Fund Scholarship. For the fifth year of the statewide award, the four winners of $600 each are; Marisa Buitron (Kickapoo Nation), Coreyayne Singleton (Apache/Cherokee), Shirod Yonker (Coquille), and Peter Wakeland, (Grand Ronde).

Peter Wakeland will be a senior at Oregon State University this upcoming year. He has been an outstanding student throughout his college career. Besides maintaining a good G.P.A., Pete also serves on the Grand Ronde Student Advisory Committee, has served as a member of the Ambassador Council, and this summer is doing a student internship in Washington, D.C. Pete has applied for and received several other scholarships during the past three years as well. Congratulations to Pete for his successes.

Further congratulations to Shelby Olson. Shelby has been awarded an Under-represented Minority Achievement Scholarship (UMAS) in the amount to cover her tuition costs for her next two years of college. This totals more than $5,000. She is also the recipient of the Tribe's Eula Petite Memorial Scholarship. Shelby really excels in her academic endeavors, and carries a cumulative 3.50 G.P.A. Shelby will be a Senior at Western Oregon State College during the 1994-95 academic year.

June Olson is one of eight people selected from Yamhill County to participate in the University of Oregon's Early Intervention Special Education Master's Degree program. This program is unique in that it is only offered in Yamhill County every five years, and is limited to eight people.

June was also awarded a Tribal Education Trust Fund Graduate Scholarship to help her with the expenses of this program. She has been working in the Grand Ronde community for two years as a Head Start Family Advocate. Good luck, June!

OSU Book Tree available

Oregon State University Extension Service's most popular publication, a book on trees, is available in a new and improved form.

Since its first appearance in 1950, Trees to Know in Oregon, has found an appreciative audience among students, visitors to the state and the thousands of Oregonians who love the outdoors.

The book describes and illustrates most of the conifer and broadleaf trees found within Oregon's borders.

The book has had a face lift and new sections have been added. The illustrations and information that made the old book so popular have been retained.

New are keys in identifying common conifer and broadleaf trees.

The keys allow readers to quickly identify trees and find the pages describing them. Also new is a section on Oregon's forests, and an index listing Oregon trees by common and scientific names.

The new edition is a cooperative effort of the Oregon Department of Forestry and the OSU Extension Service.

Copies of Trees to Know in Oregon, EC 1450, are $3 and available by mail from Publications Orders, Agricultural Communications, OSU, Administrative Services A422, Corvallis OR 97331-2119.

Educational opportunities

The Native American Center of Excellence, University of Washington School of Medicine, Seattle Minority Affairs Program was established to encourage Native Americans to pursue medicine as a career, encourage research on Indian health issues, and to prepare Native American students for a career in academic medicine, while holding on to their Native American way of life. They offer fellowships, scholarships, and traineeships to Indian students. For more information, call or write 1557 Health Science Center, SM-22, Seattle, Washington 98195. Phone: (206) 685-2489.

Students: Be aware of your responsibilities

All students are responsible for having their grade reports sent to the Tribal Education Program upon completion of each term or semester. Either make arrangements with the Registrar's office to have them sent directly to the tribal offices, or mail a copy of your grade report yourself. Unless we receive a copy of your grade report you may be required to reimburse the Tribe for the total amount of the award you received.

Students entering their senior year are required to have a graduation

Audit/Evaluation completed during Fall Term and have a copy sent to the education offices.

Please notify the Education program of address and telephone number changes.
