

Artist of the Month

Leonette's Holiday Happening

This month's Entrepreneur of the Month is LEONETTE GALLIGHER and her daughter TAMMY COOK, who for the next month, will be selling Christmas decorations and gifts at Fort Hill in a craft cooperative they organized themselves.

Leonette already owns Leonette's Flowers in Beaverton, and has provided her floral designs for weddings and special get-togethers for years in the Portland area.

Leonette's Holiday Happening will offer Christmas greenery, wreaths, baskets, different florals, candles, potpourri, and other unique gifts. All their creations are guaranteed to delight friends and family and turn your home into the festive Winter Wonderland you have always wanted.

Located across from the Fort Hill Restaurant, some of the other vendors at the store will be selling firestarters, ornaments, gift boxes, mistletoe, lace angels, handmade blankets, and Christmas trees. Also, the famous proprietor of To Dye For will be selling her tie-dyed creations as well.

Everything is unique, original, and handmade. All of their supplies are ordered fresh from Green Leaf, and delivered.

This really is a specialty boutique, that will allow Grand Ronde residents to do some creative Christmas shopping for the special people on their gift lists. Leonette and Tammy have said that this family business is a good way to earn extra money for Christmas, but more than that, it is a social place where people can come to visit, browse, and sip on hot cider and nibble on cookies.

Leonette and Tammy had a booth at the Tribal Christmas Bazaar last month, and sold everything they had. If you are interested in buying more of their creations, and looking at the designs of other crafters, stop by Leonette's Holiday Happening on your way to the mall. A trip to their boutique is all you need to put yourself in the Christmas spirit.

Shoppers flock to Christmas Bazaar

The annual Christmas Bazaar was held again at the Tribal Community Center on November 14 and 15. The majority of the 27 tables rented were tribal members and staff of the Casino and tribal offices. The atmosphere was festive and the sales were good.

Future business owners graduate

Twelve people from Albany, Lafayette, Dallas, Grand Ronde, Sheridan, and Willamina interested in starting a small business took a 10-week class offered by ONABEN. This class taught many benefits to starting a small business, including writing a business plan and a special marketing seminar. The community is invited to attend their graduation dinner on FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5 at 7 p.m. at the Grand Ronde Community Center. Dinner and dessert will be provided, please RSVP to Sheila Herber at 879-2492. The next class will be offered in February.
