

Celebrating Halloween with the Tribe

Tribal youth Nicholas Colton, 7, dressed as a zombie, gets candy from Spirit Mountain Community Fund Director Shelley Hanson as the K-5 students make a stop at the Governance Center while trick-or-treating the Tribal campus on Halloween, Friday, Oct. 31.

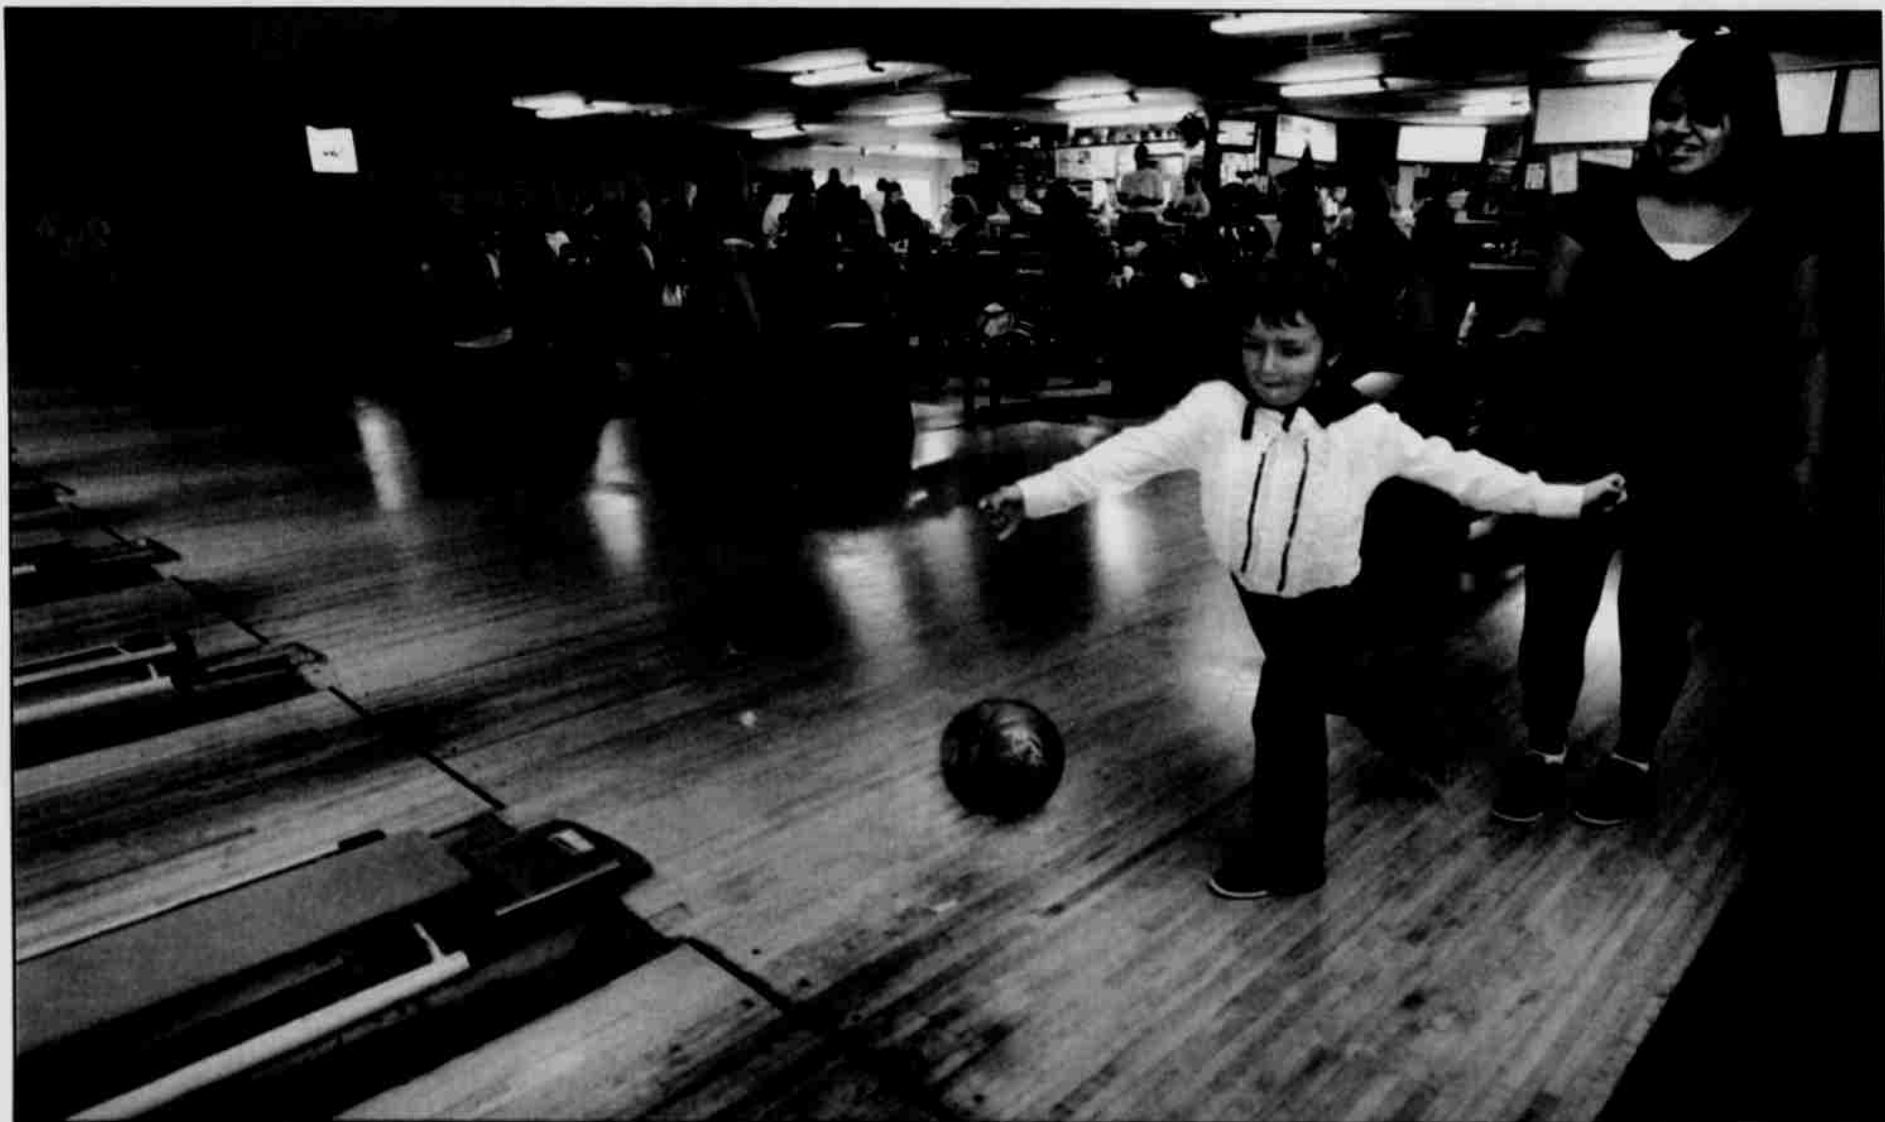

Tribal member Kandee Little's dead zombie costume won scariest costume in the Halloween costume contest held on campus on Thursday, Oct. 30. Little is a Pharmacy clerk for the Tribe.

Joshua Clift, Associate Vocational Program & Noncredit Program Coordinator for the Tribe, and his 4-month-old son, Owen, won funniest costume in the Halloween costume contest on campus on Thursday, Oct. 30. Joshua was a zookeeper and Owen was a monkey.

Tribal Council member Steve Bobb Sr., middle, and his daughter-in-law Shawn Bobb, right, won best overall costume in the Halloween costume contest held on campus on Thursday, Oct. 30. The pair dressed as Raggedy Ann and Andy. On the left is Tribal member and Cultural Resources Department Secretary Angella McCallister, who also participated in the contest.

Tribal youth Brisen Haug, 6, dressed as a vampire, gets his cape held by Tribal youth Izabella Atanacio, 15, while he bowls at Starlite Lanes in Dallas on Halloween Friday, Oct. 31. Youth Education hosted a Halloween Event, which included pizza at Abby's Legendary Pizza before bowling, for the K-12 youth.
