Mending Broken Hearts training set

The White Bison Mending Broken Hearts training returns to the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde on Wednesday through Friday, June 18-20, at the Tribal Education Center, 9615 Grand Ronde Road.

The purpose of the training is to offer a culturally based way of healing from grief, loss and intergenerational trauma, especially for Native American people in the United States and Canada.

The training is free, but people must register to attend. Participants are asked for a three-day commitment and must attend from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

To register or to obtain more information, contact Alcohol and Drug Counselor Karan Scharf at 503-879-2029.

The training is sponsored by the Tribe's Behavioral Health Program and funded through a Meth and Suicide Prevention Initiative grant. ■

*"The Native American has lost a lot ...especially our land.
What we haven't lost is our music." Jim Pepper*

Do you remember Jim Pepper (Hun-gah chi-eta) - Flying Eagle?

On May 8th in Portland, Oregon a new work premieres about Jim. This is a spoken word play with music which allows the audience to be part of the 'ceremony' where Jim Pepper is called back by his elders—to travel his journey from before he was born until the end of his life.

Songs included: Witchi Tia To, Coming and Going and The Lakota Song.

Featuring:
Ed Edmo (Shoshone-Bannock)
Karen Kitchen (Osage)
M. Cochise Anderson (Chickasaw-Choctaw)
Salim Sanchez (African American/Cherokee)
