CHACHALU ENTRY COLUMNS

Chachalu's Entry Columns have been completed and are currently on informal display within Chachalu.

In the upcoming year they will be installed, welcoming visitors to our Museum and Cultural Center. An unveiling and blessing event will soon be announced.

These two cedar columns are adorned with traditional basketry patterns to represent both tradition and change of the Grand Ronde people. The concentric circles represent the prior mythological times coming together to form the rim of a hazel basket, and how past experiences often work to define what we become. The chevron pattern on the opposite side is a reoccurring theme in both basketry and carving traditions. In this case, the simple act of stripping away material creates a strong image, that is representative of the material itself in one of its prior forms, an ancestor, and staple of daily life for our traditional people, the cedar tree.
