

Tribal Elders Leonette Galligher and Marion Mercier show off their costumes and share lunch at the Elder’s Halloween Party held on Friday, Oct. 30, at the Elders Activity Center in Grand Ronde.

Tribal Elder Betty Lambert looked devilish in her costume at the Elder’s Halloween Party held on Friday, Oct. 30, at the Elders Activity Center in Grand Ronde.

Photos by Brent Merrill

Tiffany Mercier poses for a picture at the photo booth during the 2015 Halloween Monster Mash with her children, Ian and Mikayla. According to Foster Care Coordinator Amanda Mercier, there were more than 300 guests at this year’s event. Children and their families were treated to goodie bags, treats, games and a bouncy house while showing off their Halloween costumes in the Tribal gym.

Contributed photo

Adult Foster Care resident Douglas Mollenhour found his pumpkin look-a-like recently while preparing for Halloween festivities. Mollenhour, 56, is a resident of Elk Lodge.

Tribal member Sam George hangs the traditional Grand Ronde “Claw” during the 2015 Halloween Monster Mash Costume Contest and Carnival Bash held in the Tribal gymnasium on Saturday, Oct. 31. The event was hosted by the Tribe’s Children and Family Services and Youth Prevention programs in an effort to support a safe, healthy and happy holiday.