'The whole notion of body cams is multi-faceted'

will only be a matter of time before his department has them.

"That whole thing was caught on a body camera and it's golden because you can hear and you can see what's going on," said Garton of the body camera evidence. "I like them and I think there is a good use for them."

Garton said the other issue is the technology side of gathering the footage, which is evidence, and storing it for different periods of time depending on the agency the department is working with. He said he wonders how the Sheriff's Office will not only store everything, but who will be the person to do the actual redacting of people in the background.

Garton said the math on how much footage accumulated can add up quickly when you are talking about 20 officers each working 12-hour shifts and producing 12 hours of footage per officer per shift.

"I wouldn't deploy cameras until I had a policy in place and approved," said Garton.

Yamhill County District Attorney Brad Berry said the day of body cameras for all law enforcement is coming if for no other reason than the recording of statements from people that officers encounter and interview.

"The whole notion of body cams is multi-faceted," said Berry. "First and foremost, I think it provides accountability for the officer and the agency on the conduct of the officers."

Berry said the practical side of using the footage the officers accumulate is something new to his office. He said most law enforcement agencies in Yamhill County do not have body-worn camera technology yet.

"When it comes to my office, we have an obligation to provide a copy to the defense so we have to retain it somehow and we have to provide it to the defense somehow," said Berry. "I would say it's fair to say that all of them are talking about it. Each agency is looking at whether to do it and if so, what equipment to use and what is the cost."

McKnight said he feels it's time to move into the future and having body cameras for Grand Ronde officers helps him to make that move.

"I think it's a great thing for the Tribe and like I said the transparency that it makes for our police department – it's all on camera," said McKnight. "So it's all there." ■

PUBLIC NOTICE COLUMBIA RIVER SYSTEM OPERATIONS — ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT

In accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Bureau of Reclamation and Bonneville Power Administration, referred to as the Action Agencies, intend to prepare an environmental impact statement (EIS) on the Columbia River System operations and configurations for 14 federal projects in the interior Columbia Basin.

In this Columbia River System Operations EIS, the three agencies will present a reasonable range of alternatives for long-term system operations and evaluate the potential environmental and socioeconomic impacts on flood risk management, irrigation, power generation, navigation, fish and wildlife, cultural resources and recreation. The Action Agencies will serve as joint-lead agencies in developing the EIS.

Comments received during the public scoping period (Sept. 30, 2016 — Jan. 17, 2017) provides anyone who is interested an opportunity to help the agencies identify issues and concerns that could be analyzed in the EIS. The agencies welcome your comments, suggestions and information that may inform the scope of issues, potential effects, and range of alternatives that should be evaluated in the EIS. Letters of comment or inquiry can be submitted to comment@crso.info or addressed to: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Northwestern Division, Attn: CRSO EIS, P.O.
