

Matthew Leno gets ready to catch applesauce that is being poured into his mouth during the messy eating station of the obstacle course during Youth Education's Spring Break camp held on Tuesday, March 28.

Taking a spring break

The Tribe's Youth Education Department held its annual Spring Break camping trip at B'nai B'rith Camp near Lincoln City from Monday to Wednesday, March 27-29. About 40 sixth- through 12th-graders attended the camp. The youth were divided into clans and participated in activities that included an obstacle course, challenge games, polar plunge, meditation, canoeing, stick game and skits.

A group of youth works to untangle their human knot in a teamwork exercise during Youth Education's Spring Break camp held on Tuesday, March 28.

A blindfolded Lily Baker attempts to find the bowl to retrieve the ping pong from it during a salvage mission exercise during Youth Education's Spring Break camp held on Tuesday, March 28. In the exercise, Baker and Amaryssa Mooney, back, are axles of a robot that have another youth leading them through the course to retrieve ping pong balls. A representative from Evergreen Aviation & Space Museum in McMinnville ran the exercise that taught youth about the Mars rover.

Talia Marrufo shaves a balloon as Donovan Smith holds it over his head at the balloon shave station of the obstacle course during Youth Education's Spring Break.

Youth drum and sing before lunch during Youth Education's Spring Break camp held on Tuesday, March 28.

Visit the Tribe's facebook page to see more photos

Photos by Michelle Alaimo