Colorful day

Photos by Michelle Alaimo

Andrew Freeman is hit with a color bomb while shielding his daughter Riley as they participate in the seventh annual Fun Walk/Run on the Tribal campus on Saturday, April 15. Pre-race activities included a disc jockey and inflatable obstacle courses. Golden eggs were hidden throughout the course for prizes and color stations were along the course to cover participants in color. The walk supports safe and happy childhoods and healthy families for Child Abuse Prevention Month and is organized by the Tribe's Social Services Department's Children & Family Services program. About 270 people participated in the event.
