Book Review: “Summer of 69” by Elin Hilderbrand.

Elin Hilderbrand does a great job of transporting her readers back to the summer of 1969 (yes, like the Bryan Adams song): a time of hippies, Woodstock, the first moon landing, anti-war rallies and the Nixon presidency.

We spend the summer with the Levin family, who take their vacation on Nantucket every year. Only this year oldest sister Blair is staying home pregnant with twins; middle sister Kirby is a passionate civil rights activist, which takes her to Martha’s Vineyard for the summer; Tiger, the only son of the family, has been drafted to Vietnam; and the youngest of the children, Jessie, is stuck by herself on Nantucket. We watch these characters navigate family struggles and grow during a time when change was happening in this country.

I am a fan of historical fiction books and I enjoyed this book. The characters were well-developed and the family drama helped keep me engaged. It is an easy read and I breezed through it quickly. It would be a good one to take with you to the beach or on vacation.

UofO teaching program recruiting for Class of 2021

EUGENE – The šapsikʷalá Teacher Education Program and the UOTeach Program are looking for Native American and Alaska Native students who have a desire and passion to become elementary or middle/high school teachers.

Applications for the 2020-21 academic year are due Jan. 15, 2020.

The šapsikʷalá Teacher Education Program offers full financial assistance to eligible Native American/Alaska Native students. The program is 12 months long, beginning in June and participants graduate with a master’s degree and teacher licensure in June 2021. It is fully funded by a federal grant with a total support package of approximately $50,000 per student.

The program requires students to live in Eugene while completing classes at the University of Oregon and Tribal placements for student teaching will be considered and encouraged.

Prospective students must have completed their undergraduate education and apply through the admissions process of UOTeach.

To apply and review the admission requirements, visit the UOTeach website at education.uoregon.edu.

For help through the application process, send an e-mail to sapsikwala@uoregon.edu or call 541-346-2454.

Happy 1st birthday to the most courageous and strongest little boy around! You fought so hard and surprised everyone by beating the odds. You truly are amazing! You are going to do big things and become a great leader for your people! Thank you for choosing us to be your parents.

Love, Dad, Mom and your angel sissy
