said to Cole while they set up the exhibit. "The underlying message of the exhibit is that Native people have been innovating forever."

One of the first stations one sees upon entering the library is Native transportation innovations. Miniature paddles and a handheld 8-inch dug-out canoe created by Tribal member Brian Krehbiel are on display, along with true-to-scale tools used for carving out canoes.

These miniatures are made for handling, so children and their families can get a sense for how a traditional canoe is made and what it feels like.

"We want people to touch them," Jackson said. "We also have handson activities varying in levels of independence."

According to Jackson, the Museum of Natural and Cultural History invited all nine Tribes of Oregon to participate in the creation of the exhibit. The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, Coquille Indian Tribe, Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians and the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians directly advised on the project.

University of Oregon's Museum of Natural and Cultural History Education Manager Mia Jackson demonstrates the use of a sandal weaving station for Tribal Librarian Kathy Cole. The station is part of the Native Innovation Museum Adventures traveling exhibit and it was installed at the library on Thursday, April 4.

Jackson said Grand Ronde's Education Department has been involved from the beginning.

"This (exhibit) supports Tribal curriculum and gives library and public spaces a way to support those messages all over the state of Oregon," Jackson said. "The Grand Ronde community assisted in making this happen and hopefully they are happy to see it go statewide."

The exhibit is scheduled to tour Oregon through 2025, visiting rural and small cities. Some of the scheduled stops include public libraries in Cottage Grove, Mount Angel and Rogue River.

Funding for the exhibit came from an Institute of Museum and Library Services grant and through a private foundation.

Places that wish to display the exhibit only have to pay for the cost of shipping. The Tribal Library was able to display the exhibit for free.

"Hopefully this will bring more people to the library and educate people about the Tribe," Cole said.

The exhibit will be in Grand Ronde until Tuesday, April 30. Jackson recommended families carve out 45 minutes to an hour to experience the exhibit. However, it could take longer and families can explore the exhibit in bits and pieces throughout the month.

"It's great for all ages because they can participate at their own level," Jackson said.

Cole said several of the activities brought with the exhibit will be shared with the classes in the Tribe's Education Department.

Road 690 gates temporarily closed due to thinning operations

The Natural Resources Department will be conducting commercial thinning operations through its logging contractor along Road 690 in the Reservation forest. For protection of public safety, Tribal resources and contractor equipment, the gates at the upper and lower ends of the Road 690 crossover route will be temporarily closed and locked for the duration of operations. Vehicular access will be limited to administrative and operational use.

The roads will remain open to non-motorized uses, although visitors are advised to stay safely away from commercial thinning units and equipment.

Operations along Road 690 are expected to be complete this summer and the Natural Resources Department will announce when the road is reopened to motorized vehicles. ■
