

BANDON RECORDER.

Brown's Buttered Watermelon.
Colonel George W. Anderson, a man of splendid genius and rare oratorical gifts, was stumping for Greeley and Brown down in southwest Missouri. One night in the midst of his speech an old fellow "rose in the back of the house and said:

"Colonel Anderson, is it true that Governor Brown was so drunk at that Yale alumni dinner that he buttered his watermelon?"

Colonel Anderson reared back on his pastern joints, straightened himself to his full height and with a lion's roar answered:

"Yes, it is true that Governor Brown buttered his watermelon at the Yale alumni dinner, and I am happy to inform you that that is the only way in which watermelons are eaten in polite society."

Anderson's happy retort was greeted with a shout of laughter and a roar of applause by his auditors. His interrogator sat down discomfited, and that was the last ever heard of the story of the buttered watermelon, all of which goes to demonstrate the value of Danton's famous motto: "L'audace, l'audace! Toujours l'audace!"

Anderson was a wonderful stumper. He was most emphatically a rough diamond. In the rough and tumble, catch-as-you-can style of debating he never had a superior in Missouri, which is saying a great deal. He was an adept in the use of every species of oratorical weapon—Champ Clark on Saturday Evening Post.

Wouldn't Sell the House.
The house in which Jean de Arc was born is still faithfully preserved in pious veneration at Domremy, where it is looked upon almost in the light of a shrine. Passersby invariably cross themselves and utter a prayer for protection as they go by.

The story goes that a rich and eccentric Englishman tried hard to buy the place in 1837. It was at that time the property of a farmer named Girardin. The Englishman offered to let him have his own price, but the old man refused. "No, no, no," he cried. "I would not sell it even to a Frenchman, much less to a foreigner and especially an Englishman. People here would call me a traitor and a coward were I to part with the house from which Jean de Arc set out to save France."

The Englishman convinced himself that further bargaining was useless and went his way.

Soon after an officer from the king's household arrived in the village and asked to speak with Girardin. Before the whole village, assembled in the street, he said: "Girardin, the king has learned that you have refused to sell your house to a foreigner. He desires to reward you, but not in coin. He knows that you no more want the money of the French than of the English, therefore he has commanded me to present you with the cross of the Legion of Honor."

An Awe Stricken Witness.
"I well remember," said a veteran lawyer, "the trial of a case to which Judge Henry T. Backus was doing cross examining. Now, the judge was noted for his lavish use of six footed words, and he used frequently to astound if not confuse an unprepared witness with a plethora of high sounding phrases. The case I speak of was tried in Saint Ste. Marie, and there was a simple, inoffensive Frenchman on the witness stand. He understood little of the attorney's profound interrogatories and gave his answers in a confused and stammering way calculated to rattle the sweetest temper. Finally the attorney passed in the middle of his cross examination and adjourned because the answers of the witness were not responsive. He was adjourned by the court to couch his questions in simpler language. Then Judge Backus, pointing his finger at the meek looking witness and looking him straight in the eye, thundered:

"Sir, I desire you to respond to my interrogatories categorically and with out preparation or take the consequences!"

"Oh!" exclaimed the Frenchman, rising from his chair in fear. "Oh! What do I?"

"Of course the incident convinced the spectators and the court, and it was some time before order was restored and the case could proceed."—Detroit Free Press.

The "It" in Checkers.
Analyzing a game just played at the club by a checker expert seems to be almost as fascinating a recreation to the spectators as any other branch of the game. Time and again have we watched a half dozen checkers who were busy suggesting "this move to draw" or "that move to win" while an equal number would be just as eager to prove the soundness of the lines in question. By the time both sides are through, the position has been thoroughly sifted and its intricacies are apparent to all. Many players, however, are not very anxious to have their "good things" displayed and advertised in this manner and generally decline to answer "leading" questions.

When an amateur who has just defeated in a game, reset the pieces at a certain position and said: "Mr. Willie, if I had played so instead of my original move, I think I would have drawn the game." The "Hard Liddle" retorted: "They are all draws if you put them back far enough!"—Shirley's Checker list.

Tripped Up.
Mrs. Newrich—That Mrs. Hyatt is a stuck up thing. I know just as much about music as she does. She needn't get funny.

Mrs. Browne—Why, what has she done?

Mrs. Newrich—Oh, she tried to trip me up today—asked me if I'd ever heard somebody's "Songs Without Words."—Philadelphia Press.

Indefinite.
A notice which attracts the attention of many sojourners in a New Hampshire town is posted on the wall of the little railway station. The paper on which it is printed bears evidence of long and honorable service:

Notice: Loading either in or about this room is strictly forbidden, and must be observed.

POLLY LARKIN.

The bright ruddy hollyberries, forerunners of Christmas, came early this year, somewhere about the middle of October, when the first bunches made their appearance on the street for sale at ten cents a bunch by the flower vendors, or were in the hands of those who had been on a jaunt to the country and returned with their hands and arms laden with the beautiful clusters of crimson berries nestling in their setting of bright green leaves, and who were envied by the less fortunate who fairly coveted the beautiful reminder of the X-mas-tide, the season that prompts all little boys and girls who continue to dwell in the happy thought that makes Santa Claus or Kris Kringle, as the case may be, a jolly old fellow who will persist in liking good little boys and girls, and shows his appreciation by showering presents galore on them, while the bad little boys and girls get only his frowns of displeasure and are left out in the cold so far as presents go.

But strange to say, all the bad little boys and lassies, no matter how very bad they have been throughout the year, have a season of repentance commencing about five or six weeks before Christmas, and becoming good that the dear old Santa can't find the little culprits, and they get their share of gifts just the same as though they had been good all the year round and had not turned over the new leaf just for the sake of the reward.

Just as soon as the ruddy hollyberries make their appearance the little folks begin to think of writing letters to Santa Claus, disclosing to the big-hearted giftbringer just what they want in their stockings and on the pretty X-mas trees. They are not alone in the art of general hinting for what they want for the other members of the family, the grown up children, who as long as the merry old world wagon will enjoy the happiness of giving and receiving at Christmas time. There is a certain amount of mystery in the very air that is so positively exhilarating, and whispering so impudently at other times is given full sway. Secrets from your best and truest friends are in order and no curiosity, even though you are "almost dying" from its effects, is allowed in regard to the many mysterious bundles and packages that come into the house at this season of anticipations. If by some mere chance you happen to discover the contents, it is your duty to keep silent and not look too wise, for knowing what is coming invariably takes the cream off the pleasure of giving and receiving as well. As long as hollyberries in wreaths and festoons will be in order for the next few weeks, it is just as well to take a glance into the stores, etc., and note what is going to be popular in the gift line for old and young.

You would be astonished if you could see the number of struggling artists who have been designing and making calendars galore this year. It is the beginning of the new century, and dealers say if there ever was a calendar year, 1901 will be that one. Consequently calendars in every conceivable shape and size have been invented and placed upon the market, and they are flooding a sale, too. There are calendars of our own native redwood made in a thin panel and a redwood tree burned into the wood and a tiny calendar seemingly tucked upon the trunk. Then there are Chinese calendars in variety, with pretty tinted pictures of the denizens of the Flowery Kingdom, but truthfully speaking are taken from life in the heart of Chinatown in San Francisco. They are pretty and unique, but owing to the war in China the merchants or dealers in these goods are not laying in a vast supply. The sentiment is too pronounced at the present time, and it is not in favor of Chinese calendars or anything pertaining to the denizens of the present seat of war. Then there are the black cat calendars, popular because a black cat is the luckiest thing in the world, particularly if it comes to your house and takes up its abode under your roof. There are big cats and little cats, in fact, whole families of cats, and on one of the popular cat calendars a cat sits on a skull gazing from a cloud "black as Egypt's darkest hour" into the brightness of a new dawn. What is the meaning of the cat on the skull? has been asked, and this is the story as it was told to Polly: The old century is dead, and from the ruins and dissolution of the past the lucky black cat arises and, mounting the skull, the home of the brain and the symbol of light, power and reason that has been, gazes into the dawn of the new century as if to try and fathom what the future may hold.

Last year there was a great demand for calendars in the State University and Stanford colors, but they were a scarce article. This year every art dealer has laid in a supply, and they are in all shapes and sizes: in fact the two university fads have been carried into sofa pillows as well, that will be appreciated by the students and their friends if by nobody else. But in the university novelties Polly has yet to see one pertaining to literature, study or the arts. They mostly represent some scene in the athletic sports of some young lady dressed in crimson or blue and gold, battling with the elements, with an obstreperous umbrella that seems determined to turn wrong side out, etc. There is no hint of some pretty girl burning the midnight oil over her studies or some resolute young man delving into the mysteries of chemistry and other knotty problems. The lamp of wisdom can take care of itself, and the field sports need looking after and portraying on canvas and paper.

And "lo, the poor Indian" in war paint and feathers and fantastic array from Alaska's ice-bound shores to the sun-kissed plains and valleys of Southern California and Arizona are depicted in calendars and ornamented with beads and claws and a few with feathers of wild birds. Some coin calendars have been gotten out, but not many. Some of the most taking calendars are the pictured ones, made from scenes of our Golden State, nearly all of them having a picture of the Golden Gate, the Cliff House, the old Missions, Yosemite views and the big trees. "Souvenir" calendars one dealer calls them.

But enough about calendars for the present. I want to tell you how one little lady, who excels in her Chinese pictures, got her subjects. She is a fine photographer and would trust no one else to take her pictures, but with her camera in hand spent days traveling in and out of the alleys and streets of Chinatown. Nor did she take her subjects from the poorer classes, but the most aristocratic little Chinese boys and lassies belonging to the merchant princes of Chinatown posed for the pictures. It would be safe to say that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like these rose-cheeked, copper-colored little boys and girls. They were dressed in the richest of silk costumes in vivid pinks, greens, red, yellow and magenta. Their embroidered slippers were works of art and their jeweled ornaments for the head wonderful to behold. Every child was pretty, and as a result the pictures are lovely and beautifully tinted. The artist paid the little posers or their parents well, however, for they do little for nothing.

BRIEF REVIEW.

American Tool Manufacturers.
The whole group of small machine tools and minor mechanical appliances has been left to the last. The American exhibit at Paris was incomparably finer than the British, and even their good superiority in the very small tools was not fully brought out. It is useless to argue that Great Britain was poorly represented, for it would be difficult to find the materials in England to make a good show. There are at least four firms in America making a specialty of small accurate measuring appliances, and so far as known, there is not one in England making them systematically at all. Instances of the beauty of American light tools and appliances could be multiplied without limit, and will be to every one who pays attention to such things. But, outside considerations of their technical excellence, the sale of American tools is assisted by the ease with which they are obtained and their uniform quality. It is probable that English manufacturers have produced at one time or another good examples of all the tools exhibited, and that they are prepared to make them more or less quickly according to the pressure of their current work. American firms, on the other hand, who advertise certain classes of tools can generally supply them from stock, and every salesman knows the advantage of being able to offer his goods for inspection or for immediate delivery, especially when their finish and appearance is such as to tempt the purchaser.

England's Coal Problem.
American coal in England is a large and vital question. It is yet in its initial stages, but it is satisfactory to note that the American coal recently imported by the South Metropolitan Gas Company has undergone a trial with excellent results. Nearly 400 tons of coal at 25 shillings a ton was imported from Philadelphia, and it is stated upon authority that it is superior to English coal in illuminating power and in the quantity of coke produced. To be sure, the American coal is dearer than even the present high rate of English coal, but it is held that its superior quality more than compensates for the difference in price.

Densely Populated Countries.
According to the most recent census, the population of Belgium is 6,750,000, which for its 11,475 square miles of territory, gives 588 inhabitants a square mile, making Belgium the most thickly populated country in the globe. Holland's population is 4,145,000, which gives for the 12,382 square miles of Dutch territory 488 inhabitants a square mile, making the land of dikes and windmills the second most densely populated country.

Keeping Paris Clean.
Paris is said to be the cleanest city in the world. Every morning 2000 mule and 600 female scavengers, divided into 148 brigades, turn out to perform the toilet of the capital. The men work from 4 in the morning till 4 in the evening, less two hours off for meals, or ten hours a day. The women are engaged in the morning only.

California has contributed to the world's stock of the precious metals since Marshall's discovery in the Sutter mill race at Colima, over $1,400,000,000.

Two men have waged $10,000 that they will roll a barrel containing 150 gallons from Vienna to Paris in 50 days.

In Hungary there are thousands of villages and hundreds of small towns without a doctor within ten miles.

There are on an average eight powerful muscles in a lion's tail.

The entertainment of royalty costs British society each year $10,000,000.

SHORT NEWS STORIES.

Doesn't Rise Early Any More—One of Year's Stories—How the Queen Managed It.

The chief of one of the bureaus in a certain department has been beset recently by newspaper men desirous of interviewing him concerning a subject upon which he will soon be compelled to act. So assiduous were they that the poor chief, made desperate by their pursuit of him, resorted to every possible subterfuge to avoid them. For weeks he arose with the sun and slipped out of the back door, the front door even at that early hour being in a state of siege. At the department his faithful clerk stood between him and his persecutors, whom he managed to escape in the afternoon by driving far into the country.

But one pursuer, more persistent than the rest, was not to be outdone and followed on horseback. Hearing a horse galloping behind his victoria, the other day, the hunted chief looked back and saw a man following him at a furious pace, waving a paper above his head and shrieking to him to stop.

"Drive on," he ordered. "Don't let that man overtake us. Drive for your life!"

"Wait, wait a moment," screamed the man on horseback. "I've got something for you!"

But the victoria bowed on at all possible speed, the rider following fast behind. The chase was a long and hot one, ending with a victory for the equestrian.

"How do you do, Mr. X?" he asked when he came up to the carriage. "What are you running away from me for?"

"Because I'm tired of you infernal newspaper people," he replied, "and I won't give you a bit of information until I render my decision, so that's all you've got for your race."

"Newspaper people?" queried the breathless rider. "I'm not a newspaper man. I'm clerk to the law firm of B. & B."

"And what do you want of me?" asked the chief with a sickly smile.

"You grabbed a man to go to the Klondike two or three years ago, didn't you?"

"Yes," responded the chief. "What about it?"

"Well, he struck pay dirt and sent us a check for you covering the stake, with interest, and including a handsome bonus, with the request that it should be delivered in person. I've been two weeks trying to get at you and almost lost my position because I did not succeed. Today Mr. B. told me that if I could not give you that check he guessed I was too slow for them, and I need not come back. So here I am, and here's the check. Please give me a receipt."

Since this incident the chief has abandoned his habit of early rising for fear he may miss some other debtor desirous of paying up.—Washington Cor. New York Tribune.

One of Vest's Stories.
Senator Vest has a story he sometimes tells to his friends. A certain member of the Bourbon nobility, according to the narrative the senator, in the days following the civil war, was on a wild country road which had been blocked by a huge tree. The natives were trying to drag it out of the way as a whole when Senator Vest arrived on the scene, looked at the tree and at the helpless crowd of Arkansas natives and then said: "Why don't you cut the tree in two at the middle and haul the ends out of the way?" There was a moment of silence, broken suddenly by one of the crowd who reached for his gun and exclaimed: "Yankee, by gum!"

How the Queen Managed It.
One of the royal householders fell ill recently in Windsor castle. One of the clergy attached to the royal residence—was one of the emons of Windsor—went to visit the ailing girl. The sufferer was in a bed in a room which was high up in the building and could only be approached by several flights of stairs. The canon, who, by the way, is not in the first flower of youth, was a little tired by the ascent. When he arrived at the room of the sick girl, he remarked upon her peculiar radiant expression and also upon a half secular allusion to the attitude of her bedroom and the difficulty he had experienced on the stairs. "I am happy, sir," said the household maid. "The queen herself has been to see me. She majestically came into this room and sat down by me. Then she said: 'Look away from them all and look at me.' Do you know how I felt?" "I managed by sitting down on my third stair."—Under the Union Jack.

The telephone line which France has been erecting from Lorraine, on the coast of the French Congo region, to Brazzaville is completed. The line is 322 kilometers long, and the work was finished in 18 months. It does not cost any foreign centimes.

Their Business.
Gas Man (Hello, Tom! What are you doing these days?)
Park Packer—I'm in the meat business. What are you doing?
Gas Man—I go you one degree better. I'm in the motor business.—Exchange.

Robert Burns, the poet, divided the scale of good wifehood into ten parts: good nature, 4; good sense, 2; wit, 1; personal charms, 1. The remaining two degrees covered fortune, education, family, piety, etc.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

FIGURES AND EYES.

An Indication of Advancing Age.
That quality of No Compromise. "As we grow older," remarked the man who was doing that at the rate of a week every seven days, "we begin to observe that we seem to need more light when we read or that the print of the newspaper that we have been reading with ease for ever so many years is not quite as good as it used to be, or that we can distinguish the letters a little better if we hold them far away than usual, but we are very slow indeed to observe that the real cause of it is that we are growing old, and we rather resent the suggestion of some kindly friend that we need glasses."

"We resent glasses especially because they are the visible sign of our weakness, and all the world may know by them what we fondly think they have not yet discovered to wit, that our eyesight is failing. I am that way myself, or was, and I stood the glasses off as long as I could, and really I could get along very well without most any type. Of course, I could not make out every letter, but I could get enough to complete the word, and of course I could supply whole words that were indicated by the sense of what I was reading."

"But it was the figures that got me down at last. Ah, those figures! There is no context there, and when I saw dates or numerals of any kind the blur of the years shut out all their outlines, and to save me I could not tell what was before me. I made mistakes so often in reading aloud to my wife that she would laugh at me, though she never caught me on the letters, notwithstanding many was the time I guessed at about half I was reading. But figures would not stand any fooling like that, and at last I acknowledged that it wasn't the type or the color or the light or anything of that sort and got myself a pair of glasses. Now I can tell a figure as well as a letter, and I discover they are printed quite as plainly as ever, though I was sure they were blurred before."—New York Sun.

ROSE TO THE OCCASION.
The American Girl, as Usual, Managed to Win the Trick.

A man who is back from a visit to Paris and Germany is telling a story which ought to make the great American eagle strut his wings with pride. It happened at a little railway station in Germany, trimmings by name, while the man who tells about it was waiting for a train on a branch line which connects with the main line at that place. Besides himself there were at the station a party of American tourists of the kind you read about in English books and an English family of the kind you read about in American books. The Americans were loud voiced and ungrammatical. They laughed a great deal and they ate peaches, the stones of which they threw at a post to test their marksmanship. They were persons for whom Uncle Sam himself would have felt apologetic, and they dispensed the language of British courtesy as freely as water. A younger member of her family, a gangly boy and a lanky and "beaky" girl of the typical elongated English variety—they were objects of great interest, however, and the girl in particular edged nearer and nearer to her mother's great disgust. At last she was so near that mamma could endure it no longer.

"Clara!" she called in her loudest voice, "come away at once. You might be mistaken for one of those disgusting Americans!"

A pretty young American looked up and swept Clara from head to foot with a calm glance. Then she went on eating peaches.

"Don't worry, mamma," she called out cheerily. "There's no danger of that with them feet!"—Washington Post.

He Despised Tobacco.
The healthy or reverse action of tobacco has been an absorbing question for decades and one hard to settle. Emerson, cautious as he was, was once drawn into a discussion on the subject and, being a member of the weed, was an ardent advocate of its abolition as a marketable commodity.

"Did you ever think about the logic of stimulants?" he asked. "Nature supplies her own. It is astonishing what she will do if you give her a chance. In how short a time the gentle stimulation of a cup of tea is needed! Conversation is an excitement, and the series of intoxications it creates is healthful. But tobacco, tobacco—what rude crew bar that with which to pry into the delicate tissues of the brain!"

A Bold Defense.
"An enlisted man once put the president of a court martial in a difficult position," says a writer in Cassell's Magazine. "The court martial was trying the soldier for some fault or other. When the evidence—and it took an unusually long time—had been given, the president asked the prisoner if he had anything to say in his defense."

"Well, sir," said the man, "I can't see how this 'ere court can sentence me, for Major Jones has been reading a paper under the table the 'ole blooming time he was in a kaiser's uniform, and he was in a kaiser's uniform the 'ole blooming time he was in a kaiser's uniform."

Powers of Endurance.
"When my grandfather was a young man," said the boy with a stub nose, "he could run ten miles without stopping."

"I heard my grandfather make a prayer 25 minutes long once at a prayer meeting," responded the boy with the dirty face, "and it didn't faze him!"—Chicago Tribune.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.

A single firm of chairmakers in Huddersfield, England, will turn out many gross weekly. Five thousand were made for the Alexandra palace in six days; 8,000 for the Crystal palace. The record order is 19,000 chairs finished and delivered within a few weeks to the order of Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

An astronomer declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago