EDITORIAL.

The automobile is not likely to drive out the use of horses so long as it is used as a means of transport. It is a fact that the automobile is not likely to drive out the use of horses so long as it is used as a means of transport.

From the way we have heard a number of the politicians express themselves, it is safe to say that he made his first speech in Oregon by his prodigious expenditure of wind, and if some of our countrymen had had him as one of the unaccompanied jokers at the end of his long speech, he would probably have been considered as one of the kind of a politician.

They are not so much interested in the health of the world as they are in their own power. They are not so much interested in the health of the world as they are in their own power.

From the Portland Journal.
Now that ex-President Harrison is dead with greater interest, and probably they may have had a better idea of his character and his worth as a man and a citizen.
