SONG OF THE SOCIALIST BARD.

We will wage a battle fiercely, For the everthrow of wrong; Competition's greedy system, We no longer will prolong.

We'll stand the storm, it won't be long, We'll conquor by and by: We'll stand the storm, it won't be long, We'll conquor by and by.

CHORUS.

Now the great financial devil, Of the world, is hard to down, But his faults, we yow to conquor, at his faults, we too We'll depose him of his crown. Chorus.

We will teach our little Willie. And our Toddy Roosevelt too, That the day they follow Hanna,

They forever more shall rue. Let them not forget the warning. But to Freedom's cause prove true, Not with Hanna, be found scheming,

Sturdy workmen to subdue. When Mckinley's day is over, We'll have had enough of him, Then we'll turn to ways more social,

And abolish grievous sin. We shall then diseard our warships, Likewise all our great big guns, Armored steel we'll mold in plowshares, Into pruning books the guns. Chorus.

Then, our school professors, talking, Each may freely speak his mind. And when social truths one teaches, Fools won't force him to resign. Chorus

Then when I can read my title Clear of bosses in the banks, I shall dwell in peace and plenty, And to Heaven render thanks.

Chorus.
