In the death of W. B. Woods this road district suffered the loss of a good and efficient supervisor, and as death has caused a vacancy in that office it is to the interest of citizens of this district, especially teamsters and mill men, to see that the vacancy is filled by the best material that the district affords. W. H. Logan has been mentioned as a suitable successor to Mr. Woods.

Miss Mamie Schieffer, who has been employed by Mrs. W. S. One man asked why he fed it.

Last Sunday there was quite a congregation of visitors at Parkersburg shipyard. Construction work on the schooner has been pushed forward with all the speed the partly unfavorable weather permitted. The ribs are all standing up, and ceiling is to be started this week. If the rain keeps off there is nothing in the way of getting the schooner in the water in two or three months' time. The necessary bolts, blocks, ropes, etc., are all ready, only awaiting their turn to be put in place. The hull shows excellent lines and promises of good speed; plenty of cutaway on the stern of the boat warranting she won't drag much water along with her. The length of the keel is 125 feet, and her beam 34 feet. The carrying capacity is calculated to be at the least, 300,000 feet of lumber. One very noticeable change in the construction may be observed, and that is, the schooner will be provided with two centerboards instead of the usual one. This although perhaps a novelty here on the river, is not an experiment of the progressive manager, Mr. John Kronenbergh at Parkersburg, but this new system has shown its great advantages over the single centerboard on several Sound built schooners. This schooner is being built especially for carrying lumber between Parkersburg and San Francisco, and others will be built on the same lines as trade will demand it. It is expected she will be ready to leave the river with her first cargo by the end of September or beginning of October.

Zambloch comes for one night only, June 11.

Robert Lowe was taken very sick last Friday and is confined to his bed yet, although slightly improved. He has been stopping with his brother, D. J. Lowe, for the past few weeks and Friday came down town during the forenoon. Near noon he started to return to the house and before proceeding more than half way up the hill to where he was stopping he received a stroke of paralysis. The attack caused blindness and sickened him, and he was carried into the house a very sick man, and has since been under the care of Dr. Kime then. He has improved somewhat, but is in rather a precarious condition yet.

The fire reported from Marshfield on Wednesday of last week, of which mention was made in the Recorder, was but a small affair, the report having more headway than the fire as the following from the Marshfield Sun shows:

At the noon hour yesterday an alarm of fire was turned in, which soon brought out the firemen and a number of our citizens. The fire was located at the Coos Bay Steam Laundry in the roof of the building and caught from the smokestack. By the time the firemen got to the scene and the water turned on, the fire was about out, having been extinguished by the employees at the laundry. The damage was slight, only a small portion of the roof being burned.

Decoration Day.

Decoration day, May 30, dawned very bright and beautiful at this place, and the wind from the north west being of a mild character, the day was inclined to the number of those which are designated as pleasant.

At an early hour in the day those who were interested in the exercises incident to the strewing of flowers upon the graves of the honored dead, were astir and getting things under way for the march to the cemetery where the exercises proceeding decoration took place.

It was nearing eleven o'clock in the forenoon when the column was ready for the march, it having delayed for a moment until that time in order to give those who came from a distance time to arrive and take part.

The parade started for the cemetery led by the Fire Department Band, which was followed by the Grand Army Post, of Bandon. Next in line followed the Bandon Relief Corps and next in the procession was to be seen the members of Court Queen of the Forest, Foresters of America, after which the citizens, generally, followed.

At the cemetery the rites of the Woman's Relief Corps were first read over the mound of representation, after which the ceremonies of the Grand Army took place, and then the tributes to the dead were scattered profusely over the graves of the heroes of the rebellion, and not only over the graves of old soldiers, but over the graves of all who repose in the cemetery.

This year a new feature was added to this beautiful custom of remembering the dead. This feature was added by the Foresters of this place who attended in a body and decorated the graves of those of their order who have been interested here.

After tips had been sounded the procession reformed and marched back to the woolen mills where it divided, the members of the Band, the G. A. R., and the Relief Corps going to Swift's hall while the citizens made off toward their several homes.

At Swift's hall the ladies of the Relief Corps had spread a beautiful dinner on which those who proceeded to the hall dined sumptuously.

In the afternoon the exercises of the G. A. R., began in Mueck's hall, presided over by W. B. Woods, commander of the Bandon Post, and proceeded almost to the time of the oration, which was to be given by Rev. A. Dahuff, when Mr. Woods, the commander, was taken with heart failure and died in the chair.

Death came quickly and without warning and in a few brief moments the spirit of the commander of Bandon Post had fled.

When it was found that death had invaded the tall Rev. Dahuff pronounced the benediction and dismissed the congregation.

Dahuff's hand has fallen closely to Decoration Day here during the past five years, but this is the first instance in which death has invaded the ranks of those engaged in the exercises and claimed his victim. It was a day of fair promise but sad ending.

Died at His Post.

W. B. Woods, a member of the Grand Army Post, of Bandon, died, last Thursday afternoon, May 30, while presiding over the afternoon exercises of Decoration day service.

Death came suddenly and without warning, and before it was realized had claimed his victim.

Mr. Woods had just sat down after having made the announcement that Rev. M. O. Brink would read an article written on the battle of Gettysburg. Rev. Brink had uttered but a few words when Mr. Woods' head was observed to drop forward. Rev. Sanderlin, who sat beside him, took hold of him and others came immediately to his aid, amongst whom was Dr. Hayden, but nothing could be done to stay death's hand.

When it was found that Mr. Woods had expired the congregation was dismissed and the body of deceased was taken to the Grand Army hall where it was prepared for burial. Word had been telephoned his relatives at Myrtle Point, who directed that the body be brought up there on Friday to be held over one night and buried on Saturday at that place, which was done, F. M. Sanderlin, R. F. Shannon, Thomas Cotes, Thomas Preston, J. W. Felner and O. F. Topping of the Bandon G. A. R. Post, in charge, accompanied by Miss Laura Shannon who commands the Bandon Relief Corps.

Interment took place in the Myrtle Point cemetery on Saturday and the parties attending from here returned home next day.

W. B. Woods was a native of North Wales, but came to this country at an early age. During the latter part of the war he enlisted and served in the 118th Illinois regiment, and at the time of his death was 54 years old. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Taylor Johnson and Mrs. Oscar Reed, of Myrtle Point, and a number of other relatives besides numerous friends to mourn his death.

In the death of Mr. Woods this place has lost a worthy citizen, and a public spirited man the loss of whom it could ill afford.
