Curtis W. Sanderlin, who was em ployed on Anson Rogers' farm on South Coos river, was found dead in his bed Tuesday morning, baving evidently expired in an epileptic fit, to which he had been subject since childhood. He had been working for Mr. Rogers several months. As he did not get up at the usual time Tuesday morning, Mr. Rogers went to the bunkalation and found him lying dead in bed, face downward, with face buried in his feather pillow and he probably smothered in that position while suffering from his affliction.

Deceased was the son of Rev. F. M. Sanderlin, of Bandon. He was born at Galion, Ohio, Nov. 1, 1873, and came to Oregon with his parents in fails to cure. Send for list of testi-1891.
