Fair Notes.

The Fair, at Marshfield, seems to have been a success judging from the reports which come from there, and attendance larger than last year. Of the pavilion exhibit the Coast Mail gives the following: The pavilion exhibit is pronounced much better than last year, and the building is well filled with a great variety of objects of interest and beauty. The two photographic exhibits are very interesting, showing a great variety of Coos county scenes reproduced with much artistic taste and accuracy.

The display of Coos county wood is alone worth a visit to the fair. The high polish is equal to a mirror, and possibly that explains why the ladies so much admire that particular corner of the pavilion.

One of the events of the fair was the bull race and in this were entered W. H. Noble's Schley and Dewey and Capt. Harris' Jersey. When brought on the track the animals evinced a decided distaste for the excitement, and gave their jockies no end of trouble. Dewey broke down the gate and ran out into the center field, but a crowd went out and headed him in again. Then Dewey and Schley both objected to their saddles and the latter took a reclining position in front of the grand stand. When Dewey's rider mounted he did some bucking but was too clumsy to unseat his rider, and Schley was inclined to sulk. He refused to come to his position, but the others were herded around on the outside of him, accomplishing the desired result. Jersey, who was ridden bareback by Young Harris, was more philosophical and took things quietly. Finally a start was made without scoring and the animals galloped gallantly for quite a ways. Jersey stuck out his nose and and took the lead, attending strictly to business. On the back stretch the animals slowed to a trot and Dewey got well up to the front but was unable to keep up his lick. Then Schley made a spurt and took the half, but Jersey passed him again and they came into the home stretch at a good trot. About half way down the home stretch, however they all slowed to a walk in spite of the efforts of their riders, Jersey and Schley, taking a course along the fence on the outside of the track. Here Schley made a spurt but Jersey also struck a trot and came in ahead. Time 3:08. Dewey concluded that he had had enough racing, before he reached the wire, and turned back, but his rider dismounted and drove him in.

From the Coast Mail.

The finest display of fruits and vegetables ever brought to a Coos county fair, was brought down by E J. Coffelt Tuesday from his Coos river farm. It made a full truckload when hauled out.

One of the workmen in Hi. King's logging camp whose name was not learned had a close call last Saturday. A piece of flying steel from a sledge struck him in the throat, cutting his windpipe, and burying itself deep in his neck. He was brought to town and Dr. Tower dressed his wounds from which no serious results are anticipated.

Capt. H. E. Wilcox, of McKinley, with a force of men, is cutting the timber away from each side of the Coos Bay wagon road on the North Fork hill, to let the sun shine on the road. It gives two months more of wheeling, letting the road dry up a month earlier in the spring and remain good a month longer in the fall.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

From the Coquille City Bulletin.

Fred Linegar has purchased the mercantile business of Sanderson Bros., in this city, and will take charge the first of the month. Mr. Linegar is a very popular young man and we bespeak for him a liberal patronage.

The game of baseball, which was talked of so badly, will not come off judging from present indications. Marshfield wanted to play bad enough—at a distance, but when it came to making arrangements with them they wanted the whole thing as usual.

D. S. Rouse, manager of the Coquille Co., coal mine at Riverton, was in town Monday. He tells us that the work at the mine is progressing nicely and that they are now in position to take out a large quantity of coal, if the strike would let up so they could have shipping facilities.

W. H. Thomas has been awarded the contract for furnishing the timber for the Beaver Hill mine, and will start a camp on Schroeder's place, at Norway. Mr. Thomas was in town Wednesday making preparations and will start the work immediately.

Ed. Price of Riverton, was in town on business Wednesday. He informs us that work on the Riverton mill has been going on slowly on account of the strike in the city hindering them from getting some machinery which they have sent for. The mill wharf and boom will both be enlarged and when completed the mill will be able to turn out considerable lumber.
