EDITORIAL.

Miss Helen Morton, daughter of ex-vice president Morton, has invested in the Titled Aristocracy Lottery, and drawn a French Count. Whether the prize is a poor jewel or not remains to be determined.

In making his initial address, in the Ohio campaign, Governor Geer was not very flattering to Democrats when he set his audience almost wild by telling them that "Democrats are worse than trusts." Any intelligent person is aware that an assertion, without proof, is no argument, but there is a large percent of people generally who are not searching for truth, and whatever approves of their belief keeps them in good humor with themselves, and lulls them into repose. Enthusiasm is a gold brick to a political organization, but careful, candid investigation would be much safer grounds for voters to build their hopes upon.

The Oregonian of October 28, has almost a column of matter on what it calls "the unreason of emotion" in which it discusses Socialism. Socialism looks forward to a time when government will have become perfected and equity abound; when the Golden Rule shall have become the purpose of each citizen. If to do right and deal justly is emotional then Socialism is emotional, and the more of such emotion that the world can take on the better will conditions become. The emotionalism spoken of by that journal arises from a meager understanding of Socialism by one who wishes to oppose it, and who is yet too hide-bound to open his mind and examine the solid foundation upon which it rests.

England's export trade has increased very materially during the last two years. She has been sending men and war supplies into South Africa. The same may be said of our own country in regard to the Philippine Islands, but the question comes up, "Does a country gain or lose in such exports? Are we any wealthier after having taxed ourselves in men to do the fighting, and in money to pay for our exports and to carry on the war? This last question should have the careful consideration of all fair minded citizens. The country that exports supplies and treasure, taxed from its citizens to carry on war, while it is creating labor for its citizens is not gaining in wealth. Besides whatever of profit is realized by the greater business activity nearly all steps in the tills of the large corporations and transportation companies.

Peru is going to have a boom. She has gone to the gold standard and is reported more prosperous than any of her sister countries of South America. But the boom! O yes. Rich copper discoveries have been made in the Andes mountains, and capitalists from this country will spend eight to ten million dollars there in the purchase and opening up of copper mines. This will give Peruvian labor employment for awhile and make good times for them up to a certain stage in the progress of affairs, but how much better it would be for the people of Peru, if they themselves had taken hold of this project, and carried it out on the co-operative plan, and not only enjoyed the boom caused by the increased activity in opening up the mines, but the greater one caused by the profit which will be enjoyed by the capitalists. Capital does not go to Peru to boom that country, but for profit and it will become a leech on Peruvian resources and industry, as soon as the mines are opened up.

Stricken With Paralysis.
Henderson Grimet, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by C. Y. Lowe.

How the Sugar War Works.

From the Oregonian.
The sugar war means more than low prices and castigation of the beet-sugar interests. The action of the American Sugar Refining Company, or trust, to force manufacturers of beet product into line is likely to crystallize opposition to reduced tariff on importations from Cuba and thereby to work counter to the desire of the trust. If it does not do this much, it will at least make a division of forces for and against reciprocity with Cuba.

The trust wishes to get cheap raw product. It insists that beet sugar can be manufactured raw at 2 or 2½ cents per pound at a profit. It has instituted a war of prices ostensibly to force beet sugar interests to this end, or to drive them out of the refining business, or to assimilate them. However, the prices of raw sugar have not yet been attacked, and rule steady at about 3½ cents per pound. If the trust can drive beet-sugar plants out of the refining business and get a reduction of tariff, this will be in line with its apparent policy. Some time ago the presidents of the trust and the beet-sugar association had a dispute over reduction of duties on Cuban sugar. But the tactics of the trusts are not such as will pave the way for reciprocity. The trust has reduced prices in one part of the United States so as to pinch beet sugar, and it is able to do this by keeping up prices in another part of the country. The ethics of such business are not generally appreciated by fair-minded citizens.

By a long and circuitous route, however, the policy of the trust will work in its interest. The duty now is very oppressive to Cuba. If it is not removed or lightened, the island will probably seek annexation, which means free trade. But a treaty of reciprocity would put off annexation perhaps indefinitely.

The duty is virtually a bounty for beet sugar. This product has been sold at one-tenth of a cent per pound under the trust sugar, and has brought large profits. Allied with beet-sugar interests against reciprocity are manufacturers of cane sugar in Louisiana, Porto Rico and Hawaii, and domestic growers of tobacco. This alliance has a strong combination to meet in a counter alliance of the trust and other refiners of raw imported sugar, exporters who desire reciprocity, and people of free-trade sympathies.

Blow to Bonus Scheme.

From Portland Telegram.
During the last Congress some thrifty capitalists were active in trying to secure from that body a subsidy or bonus of $10,000,000 and therewith a law authorizing them to lay a Pacific cable. The measure did not go through, however, and since then Mr. John W. Mackay has offered to build or lay a Pacific cable without a dollar of bonus. He is a business man whose success proves that his judgment is good, and he isn't proposing to do this job for charity or out of patriotism, but as a business investment. The inference is that the $10,000,000 which many members of Congress were anxious to vote away, would have been pure graft. And so it generally is with government subsidies and bonuses. A very few pocket the bonus, and the people receive no benefit. With Mr. Mackay's offer staring them in the face, it will be interesting to observe whether these bonus-hunters are back in the next Congress trying to get another $10,000,000 bonus bill through. It would not be surprising if they were, for their audacity is unlimited.

There are those who favor a cable built, owned and operated by the Government, in spite of Mr. Mackay's offer, and they may have some good reasons to offer for taking this position; but the bonus scheme will scarcely lift up its head very high again, for which result, if so it should prove, Mr. Mackay will be entitled to the gratitude of his countrymen.

A Typical South African Store.
O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sunday River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

Mr. Rockefeller at Work

From the Chicago Daily News.
Mr. John D. Rockefeller never sells stocks. He sometimes exchanges one stock for another in process of a consolidation but he never disposes of anything, because he knows the nature of his purchases and because his income is so large that he is very much occupied in finding comparatively safe nooks for his money. He has in his employ three of the highest financial experts in the world. Each of these three financiers has a long retinue of skillful accountants, statisticians, corporation attorneys, etc. Whenever Mr. Rockefeller thinks of going into a company or whenever a proposition is made to him he turns the matter over to one of his adepts for investigation, and that investigation is always a study in the up-to-date science of ascertaining financial facts—it is phenomenally complete.

The history of the company is taken at its very inception; the minute biographies of its organizers; its political antecedents, if it has any; every dollar of expenditures and in come is ascertained from the first day to the last. These minutiae, these dates, these histories, these biographies, these figures, are scrupulously recorded and, together with the personal opinion of the investigator, are submitted to Mr. Rockefeller, who then accepts or rejects the proposition. When he accepts it means a life-investment. As the experts and their assistants are busy from one year's end to the other, the inference is natural that Mr. Rockefeller owns a considerable line of securities. The amount is very large; so large, indeed, that the stocks and bonds brought up to the first of the current year filled not a box in a safe deposit vault, but a safe deposit vault. A banker estimates the value of $500,000,000.

Two Ships Did It.

From the Portland Telegram.
Captain Clark, formerly of the Oregon, was a witness yesterday in the Schley case, and described again the destruction of Corvera's fleet. Two American ships, the Brooklyn and the Oregon, did the work. Others were doubtless as willing, but these were the swiftest, and got ahead, and put the Spaniards to sleep. They received little if any help from the other battle-ships, and needed none. The tale is not told by Schley and Clark in a boastful style, but simply as a narration of what occurred. When through the smoke the Brooklyn saw the Oregon, and when the Oregon saw the Brooklyn, each was greatly relieved. With the Oregon near, Schley felt that he was safe. With the Brooklyn in the lead, Clark felt that the day's work would be well done. These are the two commanders whose vessels did the job. Without any disparagement to any of the others, the credit belongs largely to them. Yet Clark received only a sort of left-handed promotion, while Schley was obliged to demand an investigation to clear himself from the nagging slanders of a naval clique, who got a $249 felloe to write a string of defamatory lies about him and called it history.

Beware of Quinacrin for Catarrh that Contains Mercury as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.
