EDITORIAL.

The fight which the Boers put up when they whipped 1200 English troops and captured General Methuen is almost a full grown battle and entirely too stiff to be called guerilla warfare.

It is exceedingly ludicrous to hear an opponent of Socialism set up ill-conceived, distorted ideas of its principles and then proceed to demolish them. Socialism combines nothing within its scope that is not just and its whole philosophy is bound up in the text, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

The Ship Subsidy bill seems to be a party measure and opinion as expressed through the press is that the Senate will pass the bill, but that it will be held up in the House, as the Republican leaders do not like to shoulder the responsibility before the coming elections which take place in most of the states of the Union.

Conjecture of England's expense in carrying on and concluding the South African war places the amount at two billion dollars. This sum is probably too small instead of too large, and should the British Empire become involved in any serious trouble with any of the European nations she might find it necessary to withdraw her forces out of Africa.

The Kaiser is said to be planning a big naval demonstration to force Brazil to relinquish her design of confiscating a railway which is already in the hands of a receiver favorable to to that government. When individuals or even large companies of men resort to demonstrations of military strength, or in other words make their demands at the point of the sword and bayonet, they are outlaws, bandits, etc., but when a nation exercises such authority it is all right, nations stand agape and the weak fellow comes to time.

Each congress during late years has taken a turn at the money question, and had its say in the way of legislation, but the question won't down. Now there are two more measures wanted in support of the goldstandard, and it is very probable that there is a scheme behind these measures to force the government to issue bonds when Wall Street wants them or when her operators have idle capital upon which to draw interest. One of these measures is an act to create a gold reserve, and the other is an act to keep silver at par with gold and which will obligate the government to pay out gold in exchange for silver when offered in five dollar lots, or any multple of that number. Get these measures once passed and silver will be used to empty the United States' treasury, and the nation will be compelled to issue bonds to keep up the gold reserve although the vaults at Washington may be overloaded with silver coins.

Capital Journal: The only criticism against the Socialist party is that they want to benefit too many people and do too much good in the world.

The Oregonian; Settlers are coming into the Northwest by thousands Heavy trains running in two and three sections, crowded with homeseekers, roll into the Rocky Mountain section, and, dropping portions of their living freight here and there, push on to the Pacific Coast, bringing hundreds of settlers. In a single day last week six teams carrying in the aggregate 2500 people rolled into Helena, Mont. A newspaper of that city says that "When those destined for points farther West got off to stretch their legs the crowd looked like a political mass meeting." Agents say that the prospect for a large immigration increases daily. The mighty section inviting immigration and development will absorb these people, and thousands to come after them without crowding. Oregon will take a goodly share and extend cordial welcome to all.

Trusts Not Benevolent Institutions.

Below we give an editorial from the Daily Oregonian which we commend to our readers. It is just the kind of article which gives an insight into conditions, and puts up the strongest argument for the equity that can only obtain through Socialism. It reads as follows:

President Harriman is quoted as expressing the belief that if President Hill or any other man owned all the railroads in the United States much better rates would result. "We often have conditions where we could induce the shipment of certain commodities when we have got a prevailing movement of empty cars one way or the other," said Mr. Harriman, and with a freer hand I believe. the railroads could increase the movement of commodities from one part of the country to the other or to Japan or to any other foreign country, if they had less restriction.

Mr. Harriman is entirely right when he says that with a freer hand the railroads could increase the movement of commodities from one part of the country to another and from one country to another. And if all the transportation lines were owned by one man or one corporation, the carrying service of the world might be much better and cheaper than it is. Nobody has yet denied that consolidation of transportation lines or other industrial properties would not render possible better service or lighter charges. That is not the point of the complaint against the trusts. It is not doubted that in this time of prosperity, transportation charges might, without threatening the solvency of the various properties maintain their independence. They are not forced into mergers and community deals in order to confer greater benefit on the public. They could do more for the public, but they don't. Consolidation enables them to do more, to save expenses and reduce the cost of service. But does anybody suppose they will do this merely because they can?

The great objection is not that combinations disqualifies these great forces for better serving mankind. The power to do better by combining cannot be doubted. But the hard fact remains that such power is not exercised solely for the public good. So long as human nature is what it is, so long as men strive for private gain, they will use the power, which gigantic combinations of capital give them, for the advancement of personal and private ends at the expense of the public. The element of human selfishness cannot be eliminated from this problem. That is why it is inexpedient and unsafe for the people to permit such power to be exercised by agencies whose chief aim is private gain. Mr. Harriman and Mr. Hill are fond of declaring what benefits can be conferred on the public by coalition of transportation interests and elimination of competition. But these men are not actuated wholly by benevolent impulses. They are shrewd men of business, and their aim is to get money from the public and turn it into private channels. They will grant the public such benefits as will best serve the private interests they represent. It is not what they can do, but what they will do, that concerns the public, and the power they ask is too much to be safely granted.

The Kaiser and President Exchange Cablegrams.

Washington, March 12.—The following cablegrams were made public here today:

"Wilhelmshaven, March 12, 1902.—President of the United States of America, Washington: Now that my brother has left the hospitable shore of the United States homeward bound, I feel it a pleasing duty to express to you how deeply grateful I and the whole of the German people are for the splendid hospitality and the cordiality of the reception which was accorded to Prince Henry by all classes of the American people.

"My outstretched hand has been met by you with a firm, manly and solid grip. May heaven bless our relations with peace and good will between the two great nations. My best compliments and wishes to Miss Alice. William, I. R."

"Washington, March 12, 1902.—Emperor William, Wilhelmshaven: Your brother's visit to this country has accomplished much in showing the depth of kindly feeling which exists between the two nations. It has been most fortunate in every way, and I trust you will permit me to congratulate you on the admirable manner in which he has borne himself. He has won the genuine and hearty sympathy and regard of all with whom he has been brought in contact. We have welcomed him for his own sake, and we have welcomed him still more heartily as the representative of yourself and of the mighty German people. I thank you in the name of the American people for what you have done, and I thank you personally in addition for the gracious form which your courtesy took.
Theodore Roosevelt.

When Surgeons are of no Use.

The driver of the stage, which was rolling down the Rocky mountains as fast as six mules on the gallop could keep ahead of it, may have noticed that I was writes a correspondent, a little nervous, for after a bit he soothingly said:

"No use to grip that railing so mighty hard, stranger. We shan't come to the danger pint for half an hour yet."

"Then it's on ahead?" I queried.

"Yes, three miles ahead, and I may say for your benefit that hangin' on won't do any particular good."

"But I don't want to slide off."

"And you won't. If Anythin' goes it'll be mewels and coach and the hull caboodle altogether, and as the drop is plump 300 feet you wont have no use for arnica or sticking plaster afterwards."—Boston Courier.

A Printer Greatly Surprised.

"I was never so much surprised in my life, as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Henry T. Crook, pressman of the Asheville (N. C.) Gazette. "I Contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by getting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without benefit. One day while looking over the Gazette, I noticed that Pain Balm was positively guaranteed to cure rheumatism, so bought a bottle of it and before using two thirds of it my rheumatism had taken its flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since." Getting Ready to Fight Russia.

Seattle, March 13.—Captain F. H. Smith, a well known Englishmen, who arrived here yesterday on the Tosa Maru from Japan, declares that war between that country and Russia is soon to come.

"Trouble over the Russian occupation of Manchuria is the cause of the trouble," said Captain Smith, "and the Japanese are spoiling for a chance to whip some one. They are making all preparations for the scrap that must come soon. When it does come, England will be forced to help the Mikado's army, and the war may involve all Europe. In the meantime, the Russians are pushing work on the railroad across Manchuria, and to this the Japanese have no objection. Russia however, must defend the road against the attacks of the natives. Some 16,000 coolies are now employed in the work.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.
Gentlemen: —Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,
