This merging of interests has not increased production, but it has de creased the price of handling the product. This will not necessarily de crease the price of the product to the consumer, but it will enable the trust to save a larger per cent on the investment although the former price is maintained. It also restricts competition upon the sale of the product while it curtails the number of positions held by laborers, and thus by augmenting the number of applicants for positions brings a stronger competition between laborers.

This would not be much of a menace to the welfare of the laboring classes, were it the only institution to threaten the public good, but when we see one class after another of pally and acts directly on the blood business interests merging, and each and mucous surfaces of the system, in its turn curtailing its force of dis- | Send for testimonials, free. tributers and sending them out to F. F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS: BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment. I will now give you Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment. I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this car entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased car has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.
