EDITORIAL.

At Stocton, last week, parties went looking after a gas leak with a candle. They found the leak and it will be remembered that Stockton had a five hundred thousand dollar fire. A gas leak is easily discovered with match or lighted candle.

Minneapolis is one ahead. It chased its Mayor out of the state but continued to pay his salary. It probably found it cheaper to maintain him abroad than at home. If St. Louis had hired its whole council to go abroad some time ago, it might have profited by their absence, and saved the cost of prosecution for bribery.

What the Strikes Teach.

The great strike in the Pennsylvania coal fields continues, and as time draws on, its far reaching influence begins to take effect with a touch that threatens dire consequences to the Public.

The baleful influence of a scarcity of fuel, caused by the contention between employers and employes has long since reached beyond the parties immediately interested, and has made itself felt in retarding business. Now that winter is coming on, making it absolutely necessary that the public shall have the necessary fuel by which to keep warm, its influence increases and the effect becomes more threatening in appearance.

The price of coal has risen, in New York and other Eastern cities to $21 a ton, a price that cannot be paid by the poorer classes, even if an abundance could be had at that figure. This puts fuel out of the reach of the poor and that means that they must suffer cold, perhaps hunger, endure privations and exposure; this entails suffering, brings disease, and death is the result. When the result has reached this stage, somebody is guilty of murder in having caused premature death. Who is responsible?

These strikes teach many lessons to humanity. One thing taught is that the welfare of a large number of people should not be left to the care and keeping of a man or corporation whose sole interest in such persons is summed up in the result of grinding all the profit out of their labor that can be had.

Another lesson to be learned from strikes is, that public safety, and that of individuals, will not be served as long as these great corporations are permitted to hold the resources which nature has supplied, and use them for private purposes, when they were designed for the benefit of all.

Look back through a period of forty years, and see what has been the result of business under the present system. It has been failures, strikes, stringency of money, hard times, no work, starvation and all the attendant curses of a blind, contentious, greedy system, wherein conditions grow worse continually instead of better, and we are promised nothing better until the accumulations of these trusts pile up and topple over bringing world wide disaster in the ruin that must follow.

From whence comes the right, of corporations and trusts, to acquire the resources of a country, or of the world, and use them to the disadvantage of the citizens of that country or of the world; to withhold the means of subsistence and force men and women, through the pangs of hunger or the discomforts of cold, to do their will and heap wealth into their coffers at the expense of toil, virtue, manhood, intelligence, life itself and all that a man or woman should hold dear.

Justice must sit, sooner or later, and it is time to quit chasing phantoms. The present trend is evil; peace and prosperity cannot spring out of contention; all the people must own all the resources and all the means of production and distribution before justice can spread her peaceful wings over the nation and give repose to the people.

Ran a Ten Penny Nail Through His Hand.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterward. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

He Learned A Great Truth.

It is said of John Wesley that he once said to Mistress Wesley: "Why do you tell that child the same thing over and over again?" "John Wesley, because once telling is not enough." It is for this same reason that you are told again and again that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures colds and grip; that it counteracts any tendency of these diseases to result in pneumonia, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

An Old Story Repeated.

From the Evening Telegram.

According to a story from Pittsburg, John Brislin, 75 years old and totally blind, has secured judgment against the Carnegie Steel Company on account of a patent that he and another workman invented, and that the Carnegie Company appropriated. Through over-confidence in their employers, or neglect sufficiently to protect their own interests, the workmen found themselves, as inventors so often are—though not so often now as formerly—"euchred out of their invention and the profits justly due them therefrom. About five years ago Brislin brought a suit for infringment of patent, and has finally won it in the District Court, his partner having in the meantime died. His attorneys say that if the court's decision is sustained by the Appellate Court, Brislin will be entitled to not less than $5,000,000 in royalties that the company has wrongfully appropriated. The old man naturally was greatly rejoiced when he heard of the decision. He worked at his trade for 40 years, beginning when a boy, at 12 cents a day, and finally earning $11 a day. Then he began demanding his rights regarding his invention, and has expended everything he had in the five years' litigation. He is three score and fifteen years old, blind, and practically a pauper, and yet the court says this great company has robbed him of rights of a probable money value of $5,000,000.

The story is told here as it comes from a Pittsburg dispatch to a New York paper. If true what a commentary it furnishes on Mr. Carnegie's and Mr. Morgan's great deeds of charity. They can give millions to colleges and to found libraries, yet they fight this poor, blind old man for five years in the courts to prevent him from securing his right, and after having made $5,000,000 out of his invention, the work of his brain and hand, would let him starve to death.

Dedicated to the W. C. T. U.
MRS. MARY LOWE DICKINSON.

Tell us not, O song of poet, tales of how their white plumes tossed
Like the snow capped waves in sea-storm, when the knightly lances crossed,
And Christian warred with Saracen for tomb beloved and lost.
Blood and anguish little counted, life and courage all unpriced,
Gave they to this holy warfare—nought too much, yet nought sufficed;
For an empty tomb they battled, these—the living Christ.
Christ, the Christ alive, yet buried, wrapped and hidden in His own,
Under fold on fold of evil, till the heart, meant for His throne,
Is a grave from whose dark doorway none could roll away the stone.
By such tombs watched weeping women, darksome night and dreary day,
For one sight of Christ, the Master, through the folding shroud of clay,
For the coming of an angel who should roll the stone away.
And God sent, not one but many, soft of word and sweet of face,
And the stony portal trembled at this miracle of grace,
Till the buried Christ awakened, and His presence filled the place.
From that day, where'er the evil shrouds the good in hearts of men,
Is this miracle of wonder wrought afresh, until again
Good, that stifled in its grave-clothes, reappears to mortal ken.
And defeated souls and fettered, loosed from bonds, in freedom stand,
Ready both to do and suffer at the King's divine command;
And the angel touch that frees them is a loving woman's hand.

Frank Dygart came down from Myrtle Point Friday, with a lot of prunes to dispose of. He returned home next day.

The American Home.

GEORGE W. BAIN.

This question of the desolation of the American home, and its protection, lifts itself above every other question relative to American politics. I wish I could put on the canvas an imaginary American home. I would not make a fine mansion on the avenue nor an old log-cabin, but I would make a comfortable house with its line of shade-trees, with birds singing the song of joy in the morning; then I would put in this ideal home a husband, wife and children, the eldest boy driving the team to the barn, the second one the cows, and the third whistling a familiar household tune. Then I would have Congress appoint a commission of inquiry upon political economy and inquire: "Madam, we have called to know what this American home will do for this American Republic?" She would reply: "Gentlemen, we are trying to keep our home pure; are trying to make our boys patriotic American citizens; we are trying to make our daughter a true American woman; we are trying to love God and keep His commandments, and to cultivate the grace of hospitality. Walk in, gentlemen, and take tea with us."

The chairman says: "Madam, we have called to know what sacrifice this American home will make for this American Republic? This country is in danger, and we want an answer just now."

Take our eldest boy," is the reply; take him away to the battle-field, and if he falls in defense of his country's flag, we will kiss the second one and say, 'Go, fill your brother's place.' " Any government that will not protect that home by all the power of its police and the majesty of its law from the cursed liquor traffic, is not the Republic it ought to be. It is told of Ben Wade that once he rode upon his horse to find the government. He went to the President, who said, "I am not the government." He went to the Senate and Congress, and they said, "We are not the government." He then called his neighbors into the old school-house, and said: "I want to talk to the government." I ask you, gentlemen, if you love this American Republic, to silence the rum power that is destroying our homes.'

"I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. I noticed Wine of Cardui, and decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax."

Female weakness, disordered menses, falling of the womb and ovarian troubles do not wear off. They follow a woman to the change of life. Do not wait but take Wine of Cardui now and avoid the trouble. Wine of Cardui never fails to benefit a suffering woman of any age. Wine of Cardui relieved Mrs. Webb when she was in danger. When you come to the change of life Mrs. Webb's letter will mean more to you than it does now. But you may now avoid the suffering she endured. Druggists sell $1 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.
