EDITORIAL.

If coal operators try to even up on consumers, for extending their sympathy to the striking miners, eastern people may have to pay a handsome price for fuel this winter. If such should be the case there is likely to be heard a wail for government ownership of the coal fields that will sound long and loud and have a far reaching influence.

The Republican party has long since not only claimed to be but have been acknowledged to be the champion of a high protective tariff, and now, the status of the party is this: There is a large percentage who see the danger that is being wrought by trusts through protection, and wish to avert it; the President is for reciprocity, those who profit by high tariff stand out for protection, and the people generally stand and deliver. This is what is termed present harmony.

Sunday Welcome; If the life of J. Pierpont Morgan is worth countless millions, it is reasonable to assume that he gave a million or two to the cabman who recently saved his life Nevertheless, he didn't do anything of the kind. The value of Morgan's life is like his trust stock—very much inflated.

Sunday Welcome; Some wild Texas cowboys attacked Buffalo Bill's show, and the "stallfed critters" playing bad man on a salary got away with the native article, sending two of the assailing party to the hospital. Moral; The imitation is sometimes better than the genuine article.

Telegram; Much bad blood exists yet between the British and the Dutch and others in South Africa, and Secretary Chamberlain is going down there to study the situation. The war with the Boers is over, but England has yet a difficult problem and a long task to work out down there. Mr. Stead may not have been far wrong when he prophesied some months ago that England, instead of making the country British, had only cleared the ground for a South African United States.

It Is Coming.

The anthracite coal operators, after the resumption of work and the settlement of the labor troubles, are going to make the coal business as close a monopoly as the oil business now is. The anthracite men will do this on practically the same lines as the Standard Oil people have followed, except that there is no competition to be crushed out, as in the oil trade. The operators will have selling agents, who will no longer be independent business firms, but will be little more than clerks of the Pennsylvania combine. They will make prices and sell coal only on such terms as the trust fixes beforehand.

A leading local coal dealer, dissatisfied with a demand that all orders of coal must be accompanied with a promise to pay within thirty days of the time the order was sent, was so displeased that he said disappointedly that the only thing left for him would be to sell out.

"Do you mean it?" he was asked by the representative of the Pennsylvania coal road over which his supplies were shipped.

"I certainly do," he said sharply.

"Then an agent will wait on you as soon as you return home and will pay you any reasonable price," he was told.

The agent reached the man's place almost as quickly as the man himself did. An agreement was being drawn up when a hitch came up over the question of the sale of the 'good will.'

"We won't pay for that," said the agent, "because it is only a question of time when every outsider must either come in as an agent of the trust—merely a selling agent—or get out of business. The good will is not yours to sell, or it will not be in a short time."

"That is a pretty bluff," said the coal dealer, aghast.

"It is not at all a bluff," returned the other with unconcern, "it is a simple statement of fact. The company will not pay for your good will because they do not care for your firm name. It is the business which they themselves control, or will soon control, as soon as their plans are put into operation, and it will not be for you, but for them to say whether you will or will not have any coal to sell in this place.

"When these plans work out," the agent explained, "the country will be divided into districts, each district having one selling agent responsible to the main selling agent of the company. No order for that territory will be filled unless it comes from the agent in charge of that particular district. If the company does not pick your firm out for its agency it will simply mean that you will have to go out of business."

The conference ended and the dealer is still trying to find a customer for his business. He finds, however, that other dealers have had intimation of the same kind.—Boston Advertiser.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President Roosevelt today issued his proclamation designating Thursday, November 27, as a day of thanksgiving. The proclamation is as follows:

"According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the President at this season to appoint a day of festival and thanksgiving to God. Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth and during that time we have had on the whole more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of any other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crisis and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign, when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it in death by flood or pestilence, when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a froward heart. Nevertheless, decade by decade, we have struggled onward and upward, we now abundantly enjoy material well being, and under the favor of the Most High we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting.

"The year that has just closed has been one of peace and overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the Giver of good and we seek to praise Him not by words only, but by deeds, by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellow men.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the 27th of the coming, November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be afixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, this 29th day of October, in the year of our Lord, 1902, and of the Independence of the United States the 127th.

(Seal.) "THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the President,

"JOHN HAY, Secretary of State."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Worm of the Still.

MRS F. M. LAMBERT.

"At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." With what terrible import this scripture comes to our hearts as we see rum wrecks all about us! How sad to gaze upon the wreck of a noble ship which has been dashed to pieces upon hidden rocks, and the dead bodies washed to shore with faces so bruised and swollen as to be scarcely recognizable, which the birds of prey are waiting to devour! What matters it to them though the forms cast up by the angry waves be the body of peasant, priest, or king? What care they if they feast on the golden haired darling, or the dead mother, or the dead father, whose little ones will watch for his coming in vain?

This is but a faint picture of the hungry demons of drink, tobacco, and lust that are linked together for the destruction of human lives. They are truly in league with the devil to do his dirty work. Yet people pass them by unnoticed or with lazy indifference. Others gloat over the wrecks these curses have brought upon the people.

Look at the gilded saloons and houses of ill-fame, mansions, many of them, with marble fronts; and the great tobacco houses, look at these, and think how they are built at the cost of human lives with blood money.

While holding a meeting in a town in Nebraska, I was told of a whiskey tragedy which occurred a short time before I went there. A drinking man, the father of several small children, went to town a mile away. The little ones loved him, and watched for his return. As he was late in coming, they were put to bed. Early the next morning they ran to his room "to see papa." He had not recovered from the debauch of the night. He said to them; "Run out in the kitchen, and look on the table, and see what papa has brought for his babies."

Away they ran, and found the bottle of whiskey that he had put there for a treat to his children. They soon had the cork out and were helping themselves; for papa said it was for them. Soon the oldest girl had drunk so much that she went into convulsions. The father saw the awful danger, and quickly harnessed his team, and the parents drove with all speed, taking the child to the doctor. Yesterday he had been to town to purchase the poison; now it was to save his daughter's life from the deadly sting of "the worm of the still." The doctor said he could do nothing to save the child's life, and with bitter remorse, the distracted father started for home, driving as fast as possible. But death was coming still faster, and before they reached home she died in her mother's arms.

O, the wail of that mother's heart, and the shame and reproach of the wretched father who stood his own accuser of the murder of his child!

Who is to blame? Those who make the whiskey, and those who sell it or give it away, and those who use it as a medicine; those who vote for the saloons, and those who do not come out and declare open war against these evils in any form. To you who are guilty, let me say, the voice of thy brother's blood crieth out against thee.—Selected.

A Town Built For a Saloon.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 13.—C. D. Gillespie, of Hendrick, Tucker County, had applied for six years for a license to sell liquor, but was turned down every time. He bought several acres of land on the Cheat River opposite Hendrick and built a number of tenement houses. When the population was sufficient he applied for corporate powers for his town, which he called Brooklyn Heights. As he had a petition from every citizen of the place, he got a charter.

After incorporating Brooklyn Heights, Gillespie elected a mayor and city council, and with their backing again applied for a license. The county court gave him the necessary permission. Immediately upon getting the license he gave a contract for a wire bridge, which begins in front of his saloon and ends in Hendrick. He built his saloon, a big frame building, in twenty-four hours, and is selling liquors to the people of the town of Hendrick.

He has erected a city lock up and he runs the town and collects the fines and taxes.—Chicago Inter Ocean

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.
