EDITORIAL.

There is much vandalism at the grave yard that needs attention. Somebody's children needs watching.

The chicken thief is still with us, and he fares sumptuously, every now and then, at the expense of his neighbors' hen roosts. Who is he? Well, we don't know, but from the way chickens and ducks disappear, suggests that this nocturnal visitor is not troubled by qualms of conscience, and neither is he afraid of choking upon stolen meat.

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take, and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable, that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by C. Y. Lowe, Druggist.

Ended Life with a Pistol.

Word reached here Tuesday of the suicide of Frank Kinnicutt, a well-known resident of Coos County, who has been living for some time at the Halfway House on the Coos Bay Wagon Road. The following account is from the Coast Mail:

"The deed was committed about 11 a.m. It seems that Kinnicutt had been drinking heavily the night before and had not entirely recovered. His daughter left him sitting in the front room reading a newspaper. A few moments later a pistol shot was heard and he was found lying on the floor unconscious, with a bullet hole just above his temple. The position of the body suggested that he stood in front of the mirror to place the pistol to his head.

The telegraph line was at once utilized to call a physician, but the man died about 3:30 p.m., without recovering consciousness.

Kinnicutt has been in Coos County for 30 years or more. He was a school teacher, and had taught in different schools nearly all over the county, also in Douglass. He had been living in Brewster valley since March, 1902. He leaves a family consisting of a wife, two married daughters, two grown daughters and a son at home, besides two little girls and a boy."

Enterprise: Work was commenced Tuesday on the trestle work across the Lewellen lane on the North Fork, 15 men being employed at the work. The piece of road through the lane is very low, and during the winter months is under water a good portion of the time. The building of the trestle will make it possible to cross the lane at any time.

Sunday Welcome: The Sultan has ordered the massacres stopped. If they stop it will be pretty good evidence that they were ordered by him in the first place. A Sultan who will deliberately order the massacre of any people is too contemptibly low to be permitted to rule a people, and the powers of the world might well arise in their might and put him down.

After Roosevelts' Own Heart.

New York, Oct. 3: Mrs. John Beam, of Mitchellsville, N. Y., 65 years old, has given birth to twins. Her daughter, who lived in the neighboring township, presented her husband with twins about the same hour. Before congratulations were finished, Mrs. Beam's granddaughter sent word that she had just become the mother of two healthy children.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic, and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by C. Y. Lowe, Druggist

A Thoughtful Man.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and Liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills, and she got relief at once, and was finally cured. Only 25cts at Lowe's Drug Store.

The Danger and the Moral.

From the New York Evening Post.

In other words, we appear to have been brought to a situation where the entire surplus of the treasury is in theory at a secretary's disposal, to lend to such national banks as he chooses, and, inferentially, to withhold from such as he may choose. No interest is charged, but perfectly safe collateral is required. Not much discernment is needed to see that this is an unusual situation, which should be considered with caution. We have said that the use made by Secretary Shaw of the asserted powers in the case of the St. Louis banks, has arguments in its favor. We do not doubt that Mr. Shaw would, in his further use of the same power, do his best to serve public interests justly and impartially. He may, in fact, never assume the same arbitrary power again, except where the money is offered on equal terms to all national banks. But the power has been assumed and the precedent created; and, in our judgment, the power is one which no state is likely to grant deliberately to its finance ministers, and the precedent one which might, under conceivable circumstances, be grossly abused. It is not at all difficult to picture the use which a crafty politician in the treasury on the eve of a campaign, might take of it. If such control over public funds, habitually exerted, did nothing else, it would infallibly revive the suspicions and accusations which surrounded the similar use of the treasury's surplus moneys, throughout the political struggles of the thirties.

The moral is, we should say, that no time ought to be lost in providing clearly and unmistakably, by statute, how and on what conditions, open to all national banks alike, the public surplus may be placed with depository institutions. The existing status has always been dangerous financially; but the secretary's latest moves have made it dangerous politically. It would not be possible to carry very far the plan of removing blocks of money from the treasury and lending it to a designated group of banks, without giving ample material for campaign literature for the opposition. Nor would it help matters, in this respect, that the loan is made without interest.

Eye Disease Epidemic.

New York, Sept. 21.—Prevalence of trachoma in New York, over 100,000 cases of this disease of the eye having been reported, has resulted in the determination of the Board of Health to establish a hospital for its exclusive treatment. It has been found that the majority of cases are among the public school children. In the schools inspected last week, 19 per cent of the pupils were found to be affected.

She Changed Her Mind.

Baltimore News.

"I never will marry a short, fat man!"
The maiden exclaimed as she worked her fan
In a manner distinctly emphatic;
"I never will marry a man who's thin—
And the man that I marry must have some 'tin;'
And he never must be erratic,"

So the maiden grew in a few short years
From the age of smiles to the age of tears,
And was catalogued as a spinster:
And she waited alone while the others wed.
All the chances of catching the right man fled—
And the maiden's mistake convinced her.

So she settled her cap for a short, fat man,
And she ogled the chap with her frazzled fan,
Tho' he neither was rich nor plucky;
And she finally married a weazened joke
Who didn't possess the price of a smoke,
And thought herself mighty lucky.

Fred Falkner's Fate.

When John B. Gough was speaking in Norwich, Conn., once, he referred to a local incident. Mrs. Falkner had told him some facts concerning her son. The young man, it seems, had been a drunkard, but signed the pledge. To get away from the influence and power of his old drinking companions, he left home and went to a distant city. After he had been away about two years his mother received a letter, which contained the glad news that he was coming home to spend Thanksgiving with her. How the joy welled up in the fond mother's heart. "My boy is coming home. My boy is coming home for Thanksgiving!" The young man came into town by the stage, which stopped at the door of Solomon Parson's Tavern. He got out. It was after dusk. Some young men were standing by. "Hello. Fred. How are you, old boy! What will you take to drink?" "Nothing, thank you." "Not on Thanksgiving? Come, take a glass." "No, I'd rather not. I've come to see mother. She hardly expects me tonight. I thought I'd wait till dark, and then go in and surprise her." Solomon Parsons spoke up: "Frod Falkner, if I were six feet tall, and broad in proportion as you are, and yet was afraid of a glass of ale, I'd go to the woods and hang myself." "But I am not afraid." "Oh, yes, you are—ha! ha! ha! I say, boys, here's a big fellow afraid of a glass of ale, I suppose he's afraid of his mother—ha! ha! ha!" Though possessing strength of mind to keep his pledge when let alone, he could not stand ridicule. They handed to him a glass of liquor, and dared him to drink it. "Well," he said, "I'm going to mother now, but I'll just take this glass to show you I am not afraid to drink the stuff." He drank it; then came another glass, and another, and still they plied him with it. Twelve o'clock that night he staggered into a barn, and was found there in the morning—dead. "My boy is coming home for Thanksgiving!"

They brought his cold lifeless body to his mother, stretched on a plank, with a rug thrown over it. Parsons came to the house. The broken-hearted mother said to him, "You tempted my boy, you scoundrel!" "I didn't know it was your son." "You did; you called him by name; you knew it was Frederick Falkner, the only son of his poor, crippled mother! You knew it, and you have killed him!" Then, placing one hand on the cold face of her dead boy, and raising the other toward heaven, she cursed the wretch that had brought desolation to her heart.

Having stated the facts, Gough continued: "Ladies and gentlemen, Solomon Parsons, the man who tempted Frederick Falkner to his ruin—Solomon Parsons, who goes through life under the weight of that poor mother's curse—is in this hall tonight, and he sits right there! This same Solomon Parsons still keeps a grog-shop on the bridge of your town, licensed by the state. Men of Connecticut, rout him out!" Parsons slunk from the hall and hurried home. In less than twenty-four hours he and his bag and baggage, license and all, were carted out of the town, escorted by an indignant throng.—Forward.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts, guaranteed at Lowe's drug store.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.
