EDITORIAL.

We ought to get some rain now as the weather sharpens and prophesying 28 days more of good weather. If that does not bring rain, it will be hard to guess what will.

During the last couple of years the estimated shrinkage, in stocks, is $3,500,000,000. This would indicate that the water is being squeezed out of some of the concerns that have been foisted upon the business world. This shrinkage is a suggestion of the approach of another period of hard times, and, in fact, there are dark spots rising on the business horizon which may be the forerunner of another period of depression. It is about time the Democrats should win out again so that the Republican party can shift the responsibility. A scape goat is sometimes highly gratifying. Capitalism is the writer of hard times, and it will be interesting to see whether or not the people can again be deceived with the same old "wolf story."

Within the last week three more large banking houses have gone to the wall, or are in the hands of receivers, and again there is a revival of currency expansion talk. There is little doubt but that some of these banking institutions could have withstood currency expansion better than contraction, but from a glance at past conditions, during the last forty years, it would seem that the business structure has had a very good rubber attachment, and that it stretches and expands according to the manipulations of the Money Kings. When business gets brisk the men of means invest their money and play on the business fiddle till the surplus is absorbed; then comes the crash of tumbling firms, and when the noise of battle has subsided, they are ready to invest and lay the foundation for another harvest.

European nations are again looking toward arbitration as the means of universal peace. It is probably a propitious time to look for peace, for with Russia and Japan, with a razor each to the other's throat, and with Turkey and Bulgaria wild-eyed and furious, while each European country is groaning under the burden of maintaining large standing armies and powerful navies, and still engaged in the vigorous preparation for war, it is not likely that they will find or enjoy it. While all these great preparations exist, no one will believe that they mean what they advocate. There is so little confidence extant among nations, that if all were to agree to disband their armies and navies on a certain day, each would want to hold on to its organizations until the rest had complied. No, nations are not done warring yet, and with all their peace talk, the indications are that they are preparing for the greatest battle that has ever been fought.

The Public: Senator Hanna is an acrobat of transcendent agility. Surely it is not base flattery to say this of a man who can unsparringly denounce the Democratic party for bringing on the hard times in 1893, and then in the same speech praise without stint Grover Cleveland, who was then at the head of that party.

Using the term "anarchy" in the usually accepted sense, we shall find it well exemplified in the Cripple Creek region of Colorado. In that region anarchy in military uniform holds sway. Workmen are arrested by a mob and held in captivity without known offense or warrant; the civil courts are defied with insolence by this mob, the mob wears the military uniform of the State; the Republican governor, who might restrain it, gives it carte blanche; and an employers' association pays its wages. Uninformed though it be, acting by the authority of the governor, it is a lawless mob none the less. This is anarchy, but these anarchists fall under a cloud of the condemnation with which the plutocratic press is wont to attack those of much less dangerous types.—The Public.

A Thoughtful Man.
M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and Liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills, and she got relief at once, and was finally cured. Only 25cts at Lowe's Drug Store.

FOR SALE—100 acres of land; 120 acres creek bottom, covered with alder and salmon brush; 7 acres plow land and 12 acres in pasture; house and outbuildings; 10 miles South of Bandon, on Four-mile Creek; price $1,500. For particulars address P. S. Truman, 324 Shaner St., Portland, Or.

Cause of Lockjaw.
Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an anti-septic, and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by C. Y. Lowe, Druggist.

An Ugly Revelation.
The extraordinary revelations which are coming forth in the United States Shipbuilding company's case have startled investors not only in New York but in every commercial center of the country. It is not alone the financial depravity which characterized the transaction from start to finish, but that men who stood forward conspicuously as financial and manufacturing representatives of the country, men of world wide repute whose comings and goings in Europe attracted almost as much attention as royalty itself, should have engineered such stupendous schemes for public exploitation and backed them with their own credit. It is a matter of no surprise when confessed stock jobbers engage in stock jobbing enterprises. There is a certain degree of audacious frankness about their dealings that calls down public ridicule upon the heads of those who are bitten by their glib "get-rich-quick" schemes.

But when men have made their money in what are esteemed lines of legitimate endeavor, when manufacturers like Schwab, and bankers like John Pierpont Morgan, engage in stock jobbing enterprises, the purpose of which is to unload upon the gullible public masses of heavily overvalued stocks, rendered possible only by the names of such men and the confidence with which they are unjustly regarded, it is not surprising that the public should be startled into resentment.

The net result of it all will be to destroy public confidence in all stock investment whose value is not actually known, if indeed even that class of stock escapes suspicion. In this way an infinity of harm will be done which none of those engaged in this transaction can ever repair, no matter how long they may live nor how hard they may try.—Portland Journal.

Sunday Welcome: President Roosevelt has turned down J. W. Knowles for the La Grande land office, although Knowles had the endorsement of the entire senatorial and congressional delegation. It is given out that the endorsement of Binger Herman, one of Oregon's congressmen, did the business for Knowles. Roosevelt wants no more men of the Herman stripe in office. Yet this same Roosevelt foisted Herman upon the people of Oregon, by inviting him to ride through the state in the special presidential train, and by standing on the rear platform with him, in which position they were photographed. A neat picture circulated broadcast over the district, elected Herman, and only a few months previously Herman had come out of the general land office on the toe of Roosevelt's boot.

The Public: In a public address early this month, John D. Rockefeller told his audience that the personal comfort religion had been to him was such that he "sometimes felt like going upon the lecture platform and telling people about it." Mr. Rockefeller could interest the public much more by telling them about the personal comfort he has derived from ruining men in order to establish the Standard Oil trust. Such a lecture might not be without its religious bearings, either.

LIKE A TRAMPLED FLOWER.
Like a trampled flower she lay there
In the cabin on the hill;
"Jennie's sick," said Tom, her brother,
To the foreman of the mill.
Tossing in her restless fever,
On a blanket soiled and torn,
Lay this work-worn child of sorrow,
Eight sad years since she was born.
Then her feverish fancy wakened,
And her eyes grew wide with fear,
"Mamma, hurry, there's the whistle;
I'll be late if I lie here."
See that wheel above the window!
What a big one! See it whirl!
Mamma, I'm so tired of working,
And I'm such a little girl.
Can't I have a dolly, mamma,
Like the one I saw one day?
Are there mills in heaven, too, mamma?
Won't God let me run and play?
See how fast the spools are spinning!
Faster, faster! Oh, my head!
No, I couldn't help it; no, sir!
Please, I didn't break the thread!
Oh, my finger's caught! It's bleeding!
Stop the wheels and let me go!
Mamma, quick, the wheels will kill me!
Stop it! Oh, it hurts me so!
Then the angel passed no longer,
Fanned her with his cooling breath,
Touched her tiny heart and stopped it,
Soothed her with the peace of death.
—Herbert N. Casson in the Chicago Examiner.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.
The next W. C. T. U. meeting takes place Tuesday, at 2:30, P. M., at the M. E. Church.

"The Holy City."
Thirty men, red-eyed and disheveled, lined up before a judge of the San Francisco police court. It was the regular morning company of "drunks and disorderlies." Some were old and hardened, others hung their heads in shame. Just as the momentary disorder attending the bringing in of the prisoners quieted down, a strange voice from below began singing:

"Last night I lay a-sleeping,
There came a dream so fair."
Last night! It had been for them all a nightmare or a drunken stupor. The song was such a contrast to the horrible fact, that no one could fail of the sudden shock at the thought the song suggested.

"I stood in old Jerusalem, Beside the Temple there,"
the song went on. The judge had paused. He made a quiet inquiry. A former member of a famous opera company, known all over the country, was awaiting trial for forgery. It was he who was singing in his cell.

Meantime the song went on, and every man in the line showed emotion. One or two dropped on their knees. One boy at the end of the line after a desperate effort at self-control, leaned against the wall, buried his face in his folded arms, and sobbed, "O mother, mother."

The sob, cutting the very heart of the men who heard, and the song, still welling its way through the courtroom, blended in the hush. At length one man protested:

"Judge," said he, "have we got to submit to this? We're here to take our punishment, but this—" He, too, began to sob.

It was impossible to proceed with the business of the court, yet the judge gave no order to stop the song. The police sergeant, after a surprised effort to keep the men in line, stepped back and waited with the rest. The song moved on to its climax:

"Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Sing, for the night is o'er!
Hosanna in the highest! hosanna for evermore!"

In an ecstasy of melody the last words rang out, and then there was a silence.

The judge looked into the faces of the men before him. There was not one who was not touched by the song; not one in whom some better impulse was not stirred. He did not call the cases singly—a kind word of advice, and he dismissed them all. No man was fined or sentenced to the workhouse that morning. The song had done more good than punishment could have accomplished.—Youth's Companion.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance, and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration, it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly, and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by C. Y. Lowe, Druggist.

The Commoner—The automobile can overcome almost anything but a sea of mud. And reports from Ohio indicate that Mr. Hanna is trying to throw enough of it to stall Tom Johnson's "red devil."
