EDITORIAL

Russia thinks that the Japanese are becoming disheartened. Russia will probably realize her mistake when she awakes to some new disaster caused by the wide-awake Brown men.

In this issue will be found an article descriptive of the growth and merits of the Oregon Daily Journal published at Portland. This Journal has come to stay; it is filling a long-felt want in the Pacific Northwest, and deserves a liberal patronage.

Things political are assuming shape and elsewhere will be found the announcement of Hon. R. D. Hume, who is desirous of the nomination of Senator, for Coos and Curry, on the Republican ticket. Carry has never been given so much prominence on the ticket, but there is no valid reason why it might not have first place once. Mr. Hume has twice served Coos and Curry Counties, as Joint Representative, is well acquainted with the requirements of the office to which he aspires, and is competent to fill it, and look after the interests of his constituents.

A "Political Boss" is generally looked upon with a large degree of disfavor, and not infrequently he deserves all he receives, yet nevertheless there is vast difference between men of this class, and a good political boss is as much to be admired, as a bad one is to be despised. In noting the difference we see one going ahead prompted by that which is right and just, and fearlessly championing the best interests of his fellow-man, while on the other hand, the bad leader shoves himself ahead to achieve aggrandizement, and satisfy his own ambitions at the expense and to the exclusion of his fellow creatures.

A Sunday Issue of the Journal

On the eleventh day of this month, The Journal will be two years old. It is safe to say that during the last year no American newspaper has made greater proportionate strides in business, circulation, or in influence. From a modest and purely experimental plant it has in that time grown into a thoroughly equipped and well-established institution. Six months ago it more than doubled the capacity of the floor space at its disposal. It is already becoming so cramped for room that further expansion is again a problem which is immediately before it.

In its mechanical equipment it has secured the very best that money could buy. Nothing has been bought to meet a temporary exigency; everything has been purchased to meet not merely the present, but what at the time was believed to be the probable needs of the establishment for a long time to come. The Goss press upon which the paper was first printed was speedily outgrown. In its stead was ordered a superb Hoe press with color attachments. This it was fondly believed would fill the bill for two years to come. But in less than seven months, time this press has been outgrown and another deck has been ordered for it that will increase its capacity by 8,000 complete papers an hour. This press will then print, set, fold, count, and deliver a 32-page paper from a single impression. It will print in one impression in four colors, as black, red, green and yellow, besides the variations in colors that may be achieved through blending any of these. On this press, which we hope to set installed within the next two months, The Journal will achieve results in color work never before attempted by any newspaper in any part of the United States.

Every other part of the mechanical equipment is immediately being raised to the same high standard so as to meet the increased demands which are being made upon it. Now that the growing issue of the Journal is regarded as an established institution, the logical and unavoidable outcome is a Sunday morning issue. While a newspaper may only be printed six days a week, the news of the world goes on just the same for the other six, just as much in demand by the readers and just as much enjoyed. When that fortunate time comes in the history of a newspaper that it is taken for its own sake, that people become attached to the principles which it professes and its methods of presenting the news, the readers begin to regard it as a hardship that the news field is not covered for them every day in the week and that on one day they must turn to other and less favorite sources for their enlightenment. There comes a time when this demand becomes so insistent that it can no longer be denied.

It is this stage that the Journal has reached. The demand for a Sunday morning issue of the Journal has become so widespread that it can no longer be resisted. Following its usual custom to meet every reasonable demand made upon it by the people it serves and who has faithfully stood by it from the start, it has determined to put forth a Sunday morning issue on the 20th of the present month. This will mean that for six days each week, that is, every week day, The Journal will be printed in the evening, while on one day in the week, that is Sunday, it will be printed as a morning newspaper.

All arrangements are now practically completed for a superb staff of writers, men and women of national fame. It is proposed to make of the issue the most popular newspaper ever issued in Oregon. It will have its own leased wire service to cover the news fully and adequately and much more picturesquely than it has ever before been done in Portland. It will embrace many novel features, many new and striking methods, but it will stick closely to the fearless policy which in two years has placed the evening issue far in the forefront in its field, and which we venture to say will, in much less time, give its Sunday issue unchallenged first place in that particular field.

Baltimore Rising from the Ashes

The way in which Baltimore has taken hold has excited the surprise and admiration of the American people. The first great example of courage and determination in the face of seemingly irreparable calamity was that displayed by Chicago in 1871 which fought its way back to the front with the most marvelous exhibition of recuperative powers that the country had ever seen. Chicago's push and hustle became proverbial terms and we of the west were inclined to ascribe it to the section of the country rather than to individual Americans from all sections. Such things they could do in the west, but in the effects east it took them so long to get in motion that really spectacular rejuvenation, such as that displayed in Chicago, was utterly impossible.

But Baltimore is a southern city, staid and conservative, and quite the last place to which the hustling west looked for an object lesson in marvelous enterprise and daring. And yet that is precisely what Baltimore has done. No city in the country, east or west, could have made a better showing. Confronted with enormous fire losses and with its business section wiped out, it relied entirely upon its own resources to pull itself together. Already they are beginning to get order out of chaos and the people are at work night and day rearing new structures to take the place of those which were swallowed in the conflagration. The newspapers, we are glad to perceive, are in vogue of such work and have overcome almost insurmountable difficulties in securing new quarters and equipment so as to print their issues in Baltimore instead of Washington, where they were forced to go when the calamity first struck them.

So long as such spirit is extant in this country, not in one section but in all parts of it, no one needs to fear for its future or be surprised at its material progress.

Telegram: Dispatches have stated that over 900 men arrive at Port Arthur every ten minutes. At this rate the Japanese will require many months to kill off all of the Muscovite soldiers.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, from F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75cts. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

TRIALS OF A HOUSEKEEPER

We have boiled the hydrant water. We have sterilized the milk. We have stained the prowl microbe through the finest kind of silk. We have bought, and we have borrowed. Every patent health device. And at last, the doctor tells us, That we've got to boil the ice. —What to Eat.

IF WE KNEW

Could we but draw the curtains That surrounds each other's lives. See the naked heart and spirit, Know what spur the action gives. Often we should find it better, Purer than we thought we should; We should love each other better If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives, See the good and bad within, Often we should love the sinner, Alas while we loathe the sin. Could we hear the powers working To o'erthrow integrity, We should judge each other's errors With more patient charity.

If we knew the cares and trials, Know the efforts all in vain, And the bitter disappointment, Understood the loss and gain— Would the grim, external roughness Seem, I wonder, just the same? Should we help where now we hinder? Should we pity where we blame?

Ah, we judge each other harshly, Knowing not life's hidden force; Knowing not the fount of action In less turbid at its source, Seeing not amid the evil All the golden grains of good— Oh, we'd love each other better If we only understood. —Selected.

She is Queen.

We have read of Mand on a summer day who raked barefooted, the new mown hay; we have read of the mail in the early morn who miled the cow with a crumpled horn and we've read the joys that poets sing of rustling corn, of the flowers of spring; but of all the lays of tongue or pen, there's naught like the lay of the hen. Long, long before Mand rakes the hay the hen has begun to lay, and ere the milk maid has stirred a leg, the hen is up and dropped her egg; the egg must rustle the flowers spring to hold your own with the barn yard rick. If Mand needs a hat or gown, she doesn't hustle her bay to town; she goes to the store and obtains her suit with a basket full of fresh hen fat; if the milk maid's hen makes a Span, day call, she doesn't feed him milk at all, but works eggs up in a custard pie and stuffs him full with chicken fry, and when the old man wants a horn does he take to town a load of corn? Not much! He simply robs a nest and to town he goes—you know the rest. He lingers there and takes a perchance to reform and take a fernance, while his poor wife stays home and scowls, but is kept from want by the self same fowls; for while his husband lingers there she watches the cackling hen with care, and gathers eggs and eggs she'll till she gets enough to tosten the tida. Throw up your hats and make Roma howl for the persevering barn yard fowl; wheat may be king, but it's plain to see the barnyard hen is the farmer's queen.—Ex.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

From the New York Press. All women look alike in the dark. It takes a widow to struggle up to a man like an innocent child. The only argument a man who ought to reform will listen to is a splitting headache.

What a woman likes about having her husband go into politics is that he wants her to dress so as to be a credit to him.

What a woman can't understand is how her rival's husband, without brains, can have so much more luck than her husband with brains.

A Boy's Wild Ride for Life.

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvellous cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Brouchitis, Coughs, Colds and Grip prove its matchless merit for all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. THE Fairbank Washer is Manufactured by J. W. FAIRBANK, BANDON, OREGON.

To operate the Fairbank Washer is so simple that any person can learn to use it in thirty minutes, and any boy or girl, ten or twelve years of age, can operate it. With this Washer the clothes are rubbed with an even, steady pressure, which does not tear or injure them. The water is forced through and through the clothes, making them absolutely clean, white as snow, and healthful. A Fairbank Washer will save clothes enough in one year to pay its cost, and clothes that would be worn out by the short, sharp process of hand rubbing, or by an ordinary Washer, are comparatively well preserved. Parties purchasing a Fairbank Washer can have their money refunded upon return of the Washer, if it proves unsatisfactory after a thorough trial has been given it.

CONTEST NOTICE.

Department of the Interior. UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, Roseburg, Oregon, March 1, 1904. A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by August J. Barry, contestant, against homestead entry No. 3007, made October 7, 1897, for NE 1/4 of NW 1/4 Sect. 33, SW 1/4 of SW 1/4, Sec. 28, S 24 T. 22 N., R. 12 W., Township 27 S., Range 14 W., by John W. Gregg, contestee, in which it is alleged that John W. Gregg died on Sept. 7, 1892, and that since the time of his death his heirs have not cultivated or improved the land, said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 10 o'clock a.m. on April 29, 1904, before C. T. Blumenthal, U. S. Commissioner, Bandon, Oregon, and that final hearing will be held at 10 o'clock a.m. on May 7, 1904, before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in Roseburg, Oregon. The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed Feb. 27, 1904, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice has not been made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.
