Every person should go to hear such speakers, whether they agree with what they say or not, as it will give them broader ideas to ponder upon the thoughts of other men. Port Orford Tribune: Last Friday was one of the foggiest days we ever saw, or tried to see, at Port Orford, and it so happened that the Arcata got off this place in the nick of the worst time. We could hear her whistle, but she couldn't land, and went on to Coos Bay, which she entered next day. She landed here on her down-trip Sunday afternoon, landing 40 tons of freight, and taking on quite a load of miscellaneous freight and 400 head of sheep for Mr. Miller, who will have a like number for next trip. The hops are of average size and are bright and clean. In most hop growing countries the first crop is seldom considered worth saving, but in this yard they will go about 1400 pounds to the acre—which is considerable more than that generally grown in old yards. Mr. Moomaw has proven that hops can be grown successfully in this county, and much better land than is not so valuable for grass land can be made profitably by growing hops. Woolen Mill Notes. THE EXCELSIOR OF KUROPATKIN. The shades of night were falling fast When through Manchuria there passed A general with flashing eye Who bore this banner proudly high: "Est unupski." A few days passed, again he strode With fierce demeanor up the road; Another banner now he bore, Changed somewhat from the one before: "Wainchinski." The weeks rolled on, again he came And bore a banner much the same, On which was written this device, Before his awesome battle-line: "Natchinski." More weeks elapsed, and on the track He rode, now forward and now back: A waiting world watched eagerly, But this was all that they could see: "Aftersinski." More months elapsed, but still no sign Of battle from that dreadful line: And now before his army vast This banner he held proudly fast: "Tomorrowinski." A year had gone, no battle yet. The world came almost to forget The don-dits general, but he Changed signs with regularity: "Nextweekinski." But every day before his line And awe-inspiring battle line He rode with saber in his hand, And vainly gave this command: "Backupinski." At last this grim and dreadful man Grew lony, and a message ran To the king's folk, who freely shed Their bitter tears, the while they read: "Gonebupinski." —J. W. Foley, in New York Times. On Saturday a check for $4,000 arrived as part payment on the Pearl coal mine, thus making this deal of which we made mention before, an assured fact. I. E. Braideck, who was here a short time ago from Los Angeles, is a member of the firm, which will be styled the Coquille Coal and Lumber Co. It is the purpose of this company to put on a large crew of men and push the development of this mine as rapidly as possible. They have secured a right of way for a road to Cedar Point, and a site for a large lumber yard at that place from which vessels will be loaded. While Mr. Pearl has done a great deal of good work on this property, it has been in a small way, but the work has been properly directed, and a well arranged mine is the result. Jim. Tawse, of River-ton, takes charge - Coquille Herald. Coquille Herald: While F. B. Tichenor, the Woodman organizer was in town Friday, he informed us that he had just received the sad news of the death of his aunt, Mrs. Ellen W. McGraw, of San Francisco. Mrs. McGraw, formerly Tichenor, enjoyed the distinction of being the first white girl in Coos County—in fact, was the only one for a considerable length of time between Crescent City, California and the Sitka law, in Oregon.
