EDITORIAL.

A trust that failed—that in which the silver wing of the Democratic party would cleave to the gold wing as represented by Alton B. Parker.

Usually, after a Presidential campaign, the defeated side occupies a good deal of time and space in telling how it was done, but all explanations are unnecessary this time—the victory is too sweeping—no excuse is adequate.

Now that the new leader of Democracy has been repudiated, and sunk beneath the overwhelming Roosevelt flood, William Jennings Bryan is looming up higher than ever as the large man and leader in the ranks of the Democratic party.

Russia declines to join in the Peace Congress. Her pride and prestige forbids at present, and she wants to whip Japan first and gain her prestige in the Far East. Just now it looks as if she would not be able to engage in a Peace Congress for some time to come.

It was told of a sailor who watched the stars fall, in 1833, that he seated himself and fixing his eyes on the North Star, based his hope upon it as a fixture too steadfast to move. However, after awhile it got away from his sight, and his anchor having fled, he was cast adrift. For years Missouri has been the North Star of the Democracy; of its solidity there has been no doubt, and now that its fastness has been shaken to the very center, to what shall the mariner of that faith look as a beacon to guide to the haven of success.

Oregonian: Twenty thousand Democrats in Oregon did not vote. It was a repetition, on a larger scale, comparable with the growth of the state, of the election of 1872, when Greeley was the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, and one-half the Democrats of Oregon remained at home.

Oregonian: According to a report from St. Petersburg, 200,000 Finns will soon be added to the number of American citizens of foreign birth. Just at this juncture it would be offensive to ask the Russian government the cause of this wholesale exodus of the Finnish subjects of the Czar.

The Awakening of China.

An interesting people are the Chinese, and their apparent awakening after thousands of years of commercial dormancy, is one of the very important developments of the time. That they are so awakening is noted by keen observers, and it should mean a great deal to the United States.

Now and great desires and demands are springing into life and activity in China, somewhat suppressed just now by the Russo Jap war, but in a few years we think that China will be in the field, the scene of the world's greatest material development.

The Chinese want no more war; they had one, and learned that war with them was a lost art. Not that they could not re-learn it, not that they could not be made into good soldiers, nor that among them, in time, might arise a new Tamerlane or Ghengis Kahn; but they shrewdly perceive that to fit themselves for war, and to fight perhaps a combination of all Europe, would require a vast outlay and tremendous sacrifices; and they probably reason also that before they could do this, war will be out of date; that nations will seldom, if ever, go to war again. They trust, too, to the increasing spirit of tolerance and fraternalism among nations, as well as to the rivalries between European nations, to protect them from annihilation and disintegration. Already the United States and England stand outspokenly for the integrity of China. The nations of Europe, once the bear's claws are extracted from Manchuria, must let China alone. So, why should China spend billions of money in preparing for an improbable and unnecessary war? She is wise to bend her awakened ideas and energies in other directions.

The awakening of the Chinese comes at the right time and in the right way. They are building rail roads instead of battleships. A network of railroads from different points on the sea coast into the interior, is under construction, planned, or conceived of, and railroads mean an absolutely new life for China. They are new arteries, and the blood that will fill them is in process of formation.

Now has come the time to convert the Chinese from a people buying and consuming but little of our products, to a people buying and using much. To do this they must produce more themselves, and find a market abroad for their surplus products, and the resources of that vast empire, with its hundreds of millions of people, are boundless.—Oregon Journal.

Historic names will be given the streets, avenues and courts at the Lewis and Clark Centennial. The street leading to the Trail, which is the name given to the amusement street, will be called Astor Drive, in honor of John Jacob Astor. Plazas and courts will be named for Senator Thomas H. Benton, a staunch friend of Oregon; his colleague, Senator Lewis F. Linn; President Jefferson and President Monroe.

Californians are taking an encouraging interest in the Lewis and Clark Exposition. The California Development Committee is arranging for an excursion of several hundred people of that state to be present on June 1st, the formal opening day.

THE WIFE.

All day, like some sweet bird, content to sing
In its small cage, she moveth to and fro—
And ever and anon will upward spring
To her sweet lips, fresh from the fount below,
The murmur'd melody of pleasant thought,
Unconscious utter'd gentle toned and low
Light household duties evermore inwrought
With placid fancies of one trusting heart
That lives but in her smile, and turns
From life's cold seeming at the busy mart,
With tenderness, that heavenward ever yearns
To be refresh'd where one pure altar burns.
Shut out from hence the mockery of life,
Thus liveth she content, the meek, fond, trusting wife.

Have the courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you have, when you are convinced he lacks principle; a friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not with his vices. He that does a base thing in zeal for his friend, burns the golden thread that ties their hearts together.

The most trifling actions that effect a man's credit are to be regarded. The sound of your hammer at five in the morning or nine at night, heard by a creditor, makes him easy six months longer; but if he sees you at a billiard table or hears your voice at a saloon when you should be at work, he sends for his money the next day.

Beautiful lives have blossomed in the darkest places, as pure white lilies full of fragrance on the slimy, stagnant waters. No possession is so productive of real influence as the cultivated intellect. Wealth, birth and official station may and do secure to their possessors an external, superficial courtesy; but they never did command the reverence of the heart. It is only to the man of large and noble soul, to him who blends a cultivated mind with an upright heart, that men yield the tribute of deep and genuine respect.

Parents do wrong in keeping their children hanging around home in idleness, and sheltered and enervated by parental indulgence. The eagle does better. It stirs up its nest when the young eagles are able to fly. They are compelled to shift for themselves, for the old eagle literally turns them out, and at the same time tears all the down and feathers from the nest. 'Tis this rude and rough experience that makes the king of birds so fearless in his flight, and so expert in his pursuit of prey. It is a misfortune to be born with a silver spoon in your mouth. Riches often hang like a mill stone about the necks of ambitious young people.

Bad company is like a nail driven into a post, which, after the first or second blow, can be drawn out with little difficulty; but being once driven in up to the head, the pinchers cannot take hold to draw it out, which can only be done by the destruction of the wood. You may be ever so pure, you cannot associate with bad companions without falling into bad odor. From impure air we take diseases; from bad company vice and imperfection.

With many of us our parents have lived their allotted time of three score years and ten, but if we still have them in the family circle how highly we should appreciate them. The snow of winter comes and sheds its white blessings upon the valley and the mountain, but soon the sweet spring comes and smiles it all away. Not so with that upon the brow of tottering age. There is no spring whose warmth can penetrate its eternal frost. It came to stay. Its single flakes fell unnoticed, but now they are drilled there. We shall see it increase until the summons is heard to come up higher. Welcome the snow, for it is the emblem of peace and of rest. It is but a temporal crown which shall fall at the gates of paradise, to be replaced by a brighter and better.

The New York building at the Lewis and Clark Centennial will cost $20,000, and the state will spend an additional sum of $15,000 for the collection of a suitable exhibit to be contained in the building. Massachusetts will spend in all $30,000, of which sum $20,000 will be used for the building, and $10,000 for the exhibit.

A novelty in the way of a labor saving device is the electrical whitewashing contrivance, which is being used in finishing the interiors of the buildings now in course of construction for the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition. The machine consists of an electric engine, a giant traveller, and long lines of hose, through which the whitewash is squirted against the roof and sides of the buildings.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.
