Russia welcomes the plan of President Roosevelt, and will gladly join the Peace Commission after she walls Japan, but just now she has a little unfinished business on hand, and is not looking for peace.

The following, clipped from the Oregonian, indicates the standard by which it classifies druggists. It says: "In the 'dry' counties are eighty or more saloons. We may behold a big boom in the drug store business after January 1st. That's why druggists like prohibition."

Usually after a Presidential campaign, one party or the other, and generally the Democratic party, has had its devotees busy in telling how defeat fell to its lot, but the aftermath of the last campaign is different. The Parker boom was so effectively overwhelmed, that no amount of explanation would even have a soothing influence upon the defeat.

The advocates of alcoholism, those who are in favor of selling poison to their fellow man, are not satisfied with the will of the people as expressed by a majority for prohibition at the polls, but are moving to set aside the measure, and to still force their time, usefulness and soul-killing barter upon the public.

One of the principal counts brought before the county court for their consideration, is that numerous voters were permitted to vote outside their precincts; this is doubtless true, and if appearances are not deceptive, in the Bandon precinct, the persons so offering to vote, generally were imported by the "wet" advocates.

The whisky traffic is not a regularly legalized business; it is conducted only by the slyness of the people, and requires a license based upon the consent of a majority of the voters of the district in which it is proposed to set up a saloon, and this being the case, and the county having by a clean majority given expression, in the face of the heaviest fight the saloon men could put up, to the will of the people in the matter, that expression should be sufficient.

The clear expression of the majority should suffice; to subvert that expression because of technicalities, amounts strongly of anarchy.

The management of the Lewis and Clark Exposition is planning for a "Trail" which shall be second to none of those in the past. Indications are that there will be a general migration of the Pike shows at St. Louis to the Western Fair.

The Jacksonville, Ore., Board of Trade, at a recent meeting decided that the Jacksonville mining region should be properly represented at the Lewis and Clark Exposition next year. The exhibit, according to present plans, will embrace gold, silver, copper, lead, platinum, cinnabar, plumbago, iron, asbestos, chrome, slates, marble, limestone, granite, sandstone and cement. There will be a number of the crude mining implements, relics of the early days in Jacksonville, represented in the exhibit.

Telegram: Athletics and study go hand in hand at West Point, declares the superintendent of the National academy, General A. L. Mills. He declared that football, baseball and other exercises, not only assist in the physical development of the students, but also materially aid them in their mental work. This statement is in direct conflict with the assertion frequently made that college athletes are so preoccupied with training that they devote no time to acquiring an education.

Oregonian: The fire losses of the United States and Canada continue to keep pace with the increase in material on which the flames may feed. For the month of Oct, they reached a total of $12,866,000, compared with $10,409,000 for the same month last year, and $9,593,000 in October, 1902. The losses for the first ten months of the current year are over $221,000,000, compared with $125,000,000 for the same period last year, and $124,000,000 in 1902. The enormous increase this year is largely due to the Baltimore and Toronto fires, but aside from these conflagrations there were enough smaller fires to swell the total to greater figures than ever before in a corresponding period. This continued destruction of property would indicate that little or no progress had been made in the way of preventing fires or extinguishing them after they were started. The annual losses are becoming so large that the matter from an economic standpoint is most serious, and is entitled to gravest consideration.

Hot and Cold.

Japan's reported irritation over the action of France in permitting the vessels of the Baltic fleet to use her ports for coaling and provisioning purposes is not hard to understand. Russia, without a coaling station of her own, would have been in a bad way during the war on several occasions, had not France put the theory of neutrality to a little benevolent strain in practice. The battleship Oslavia and the celebrated "volunteer fleet" steamers Petersburg and Smolensk would have been unable to get out of the Red Sea but for the convenient aid of Jibuti, the French port in Somaliland. Rojstvensky's ships found Cherbourg a good port of call, and Vigo having proved inhospitable the fleet now seeks support in Dakar, French West Africa. Algiers was also used by the portion of the fleet that took the Mediterranean route. In view of France's refusal to allow Cervera to coast at Martinique, it may reasonably appear to Japan that the French navy really shot her no cold there.—Oregonian.

Frederick Neil Innes, leader of the famous band that bears his name, has been engaged by the authorities at the Lewis and Clark fair to furnish music for the exposition from the date of the opening, June 1st, to June 28th. Mr. Innes plans to organize an adult chorus and a chorus in which the school children will take part.

Home Circle Column

Crude Thoughts As They Fall From The Editorial Pen. Pleasant Evening Exercises. A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join The Home Circle of Evening Tide.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Somebody near you is struggling alone. Over life's desert sand; Faith, hope and courage together are gone; Reach him a helping hand. Turn on his darkness a beam of your light; Kindle, to guide him, a beacon-fire bright; Cheer his discouragement, soothe his affliction; Lovingly help him to stand. Somebody near you is hungry and cold; Send him some aid today. Somebody near you is feeble and old; Left without human stay. Watch this border put hands kind and strong; Speak to him tenderly, sing him a song; Help to do something to help him along; Over his weary way. Who are our neighbors? Look up and be bold. Pressing on every hand, Little ones, lonely ones, sad ones and old;

Everywhere see them stand; He is our neighbor whom we can't offend; He to whom comfort or aid we can lend; Or he whose footsteps we may cease to wend; Toward the heavenly land. Dear ones be busy, for the time flies fast, Soon it will be all gone; Soon will our season of service be past; Soon will our day be done. Somebody near you needs now a kind word; Somebody needs help such as you can afford; Haste to assist in the name of the Lord, There may be a soul to be won.

Let every mother who reads this column thank God for the quietude of her home and that she is queen in it. Men come at eventide to the home; but all day long the wife and mother is there, beautifying it, sanctifying it, adorning it, blessing it. Better be there than wear Victoria's coronet. Better be humble there than carry the purse of a princess. It may be a very humble home. There may be no carpet on the floor. There may be no pictures on the wall. There may be no silks in the wardrobe; but, by your faith in God, and your cheerful demeanor, you may garish that home with more splendor than the upholsterer's hand ever kindled.

QUEEN OF THE HOME.

The queen who sits upon the throne of home, crowned and sceptered as none other ever can be, is mother. Her enthronement is complete, her reign unrivalled, and the moral issues of her empire are eternal. "Her children rise up and call her blessed." Rebellions, at times, as the subjects of her government may be, she rules them with marvellous patience, winning tenderness and soothing love. She so presents and exemplifies divine truth, that it reproduces itself in the happiest development of childhood, character and life. Her memory is sacred while she lives, and becomes a perpetual inspiration, even when the bright flowers bloom above her sleeping dust. Scotland, with her well known reverence for motherhood, insists that "an ounce of mother is worth a pound of clergy." The ancient orator bestowed a flattering compliment upon the homes of Roman mothers when he said, "The empire is in the freidae." Who can think of the influence a mother wields in the home, and not be impressed with its far-reaching results? Mohammed expressed a great truth when he said "Paradise is at the feet of mothers." There is one vision that never fades from the soul, and that is the vision of mother and home. No man in his weary wanderings ever goes out beyond the overshadowing arch of home. Let him stand on the sun-beaten coast of the Atlantic, or roam over the western wilds, and every dash of the wave and murmur of the breeze will whisper "Home, sweet home." Set him down amid the glaciers of the north, and even there, thoughts of home, too warm to be chilled by the eternal frosts, will dwell upon him. Let him rove through the green, waving groves and over the sunny slopes of the south, and in the smile of the soft skies, and in the kiss of the balmy breeze, home will live again.

OUR GIRLS AND BOYS.

We wonder if every mother who reads this department is particular enough about keeping her girls, and not letting them fill their heads with nonsense about love and marriage. When we see, as we do too often on our best streets in the residential sections, young girls of twelve and fourteen hanging about the walks and street corners after dark, even up to nine and ten at night, we sigh for the good old laws about the curfew bells, and wish the legislature would atone for the lack of sense in mothers by enacting them over again. Young girls who are allowed to go on the streets alone or with other companions after dark, have excuse for "going wrong," and can scarcely be blamed if they make mistakes. We are almost tempted to say we do not pity their mothers as we should. It is not safe. No matter how quiet and respectable the street, there are always prowlers after dark, and no young girl is safe. We will go farther, and say no boy is safe either. The right kind of mother keeps her boy indoors at night, and provides him with books and games and company and music to make his life gay enough so that he will not sigh for the glitter of the street. To be sure it is a little more trouble to guard the children like that but it is work that yields the best kinds of dividends. Another thing; don't let them get their heads filled with nonsense about "best girls" and "best fellows." Besides being positively silly, this kind of talk is positively harmful. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that trouble oftenest begins that way. We could talk very eloquently on this subject if we could have your private ear, but we hope we have said enough to set you thinking, if you have not already thought.
