Doings at Twentymile on Thanksgiving Day.

For a few days before Thanksgiving Day, I noticed people on all sides looking upward and saying, "I wonder if it will rain?" I soon found the reason for their fear of rain. They were going to have a picnic on Thanksgiving Day at the Wood's place. Everyone was invited and everyone was going to go. Well, Thanksgiving Day dawned at last, not cloudless, but not raining. It was a nice day, neither too warm nor too cold, but just an ideal day for a picnic.

We started about half past ten and arrived at the Wood's place about eleven o'clock. We saw a number of persons on the road bound for the same place, so we knew that we were not going to be alone. After we arrived the first thing, of course, was greetings and inquiries for those who were not there.

When all had arrived we assembled in the largest room in the house, and held Thanksgiving services. The President's Thanksgiving Proclamation was read by Miss Reeta Hatcher. A number of songs were sung, and a short address was made by Rev. Sanderlin. Then came what interested a great number of those present, if not all—the Thanksgiving Feast. It was a feast indeed. I will not attempt to describe it, but as I was eating I could hear on all sides such expressions as these: "Pass me some more chicken," "Pass the pie," "Pass that chocolate cake," "I would like some of those pears," "Please hand up the jelly," "Oh, those delicious biscuits," and that does not mention near all the good things that were on the table.

After dinner we heard some one say, "The boys are jumping." We all went to see them, and to our astonishment Mr. Sanderlin could jump farther backward than any of the boys. The boys were loath to give up the honors to one so old, but the girls soon had them interested in a game of "drop the handkerchief." Every one joined in this game and had a jolly time, but we all had a slight attack of the rheumatism, or something else, the next day. We all left about half past three, feeling thankful that we had gone.

"Now is the time to forget all your cares, cast every trouble away; Think of your blessings, remember your joys, Don't be afraid to be gay! None are too old and none too young To frolic on Thanksgiving Day."

It being Thursday evening and regular prayer meeting night, we all assembled again at the home of Mr. F. M. Wandling and held a Thanksgiving prayer meeting. This prayer meeting will be long remembered by all those present, as will also all this Thanksgiving Day.

For Exhibits at Lewis and Clark Fair.

We want to call the attention of the people of the Coquille river and its tributaries to the importance of our having an exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Fair next year. St. Louis had over seventeen million admissions; it is fair to say that Portland will have over two million Eastern visitors. If 5 per cent of that number stay in Oregon, it will add one hundred thousand to the population of the State, and if we want 1 per cent of that hundred thousand, we have got to place an exhibit at the Portland Fair that will show these people what the resources of Coos County are. During my visit to the St. Louis Fair I talked with hundreds of people in Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and Ohio, who said they were coming to the Fair next year. In talking with these people I claimed that Coos County had the largest resources and least population of any county in the United States. But talk is cheap—seeing it believing, and we should place ourselves in a position so the people may see. Bandon, Coquille and Myrtle Point connected with every post office on the Coquille and its tributaries should send at least one man to a general conference to be held at Coquille to take action upon this matter, and this should be attended to at once. If we expect to get floor space we must get it soon or not get it at all. The saving of a part of this year's crop should be attended to now. The preparation of our various woods including myrtle, should be commenced at once, and an exhibit from our coal, marble and gold mines should be secured. Co-operation with our former friends should be solicited, so that we may be able to put on an exhibition specimens from the orchard, garden and field. Arrangements should be made to show up our butter and cheese. I am certain there is not a county in the world that can place an exhibit equal to ours if we use the means at hand to make a showing. Bandon and Coquille papers please take this matter up, and I would especially request every postmaster in this district to interest himself in the matter, who will call a meeting at Coquille to start the ball rolling. Now is the time to act.

Respectfully,
D. A. HOLINS.
