Port Orford Tribune: Mr. Adolphson has installed the system of logging across gulches and rough places by hauling logs on a suspended wire, a method very extensively used throughout the mountainous regions of the Northwest. It is a comparatively new method, and a very interesting one to watch in operation. It eliminates the most expensive and difficult roads, and is practical and economical. This is the first one in use in Curry County, and it is well worth one's while to go and see it.

A LETTER FROM HOME.

(In case the Ober idea is adopted.) Dear Jim: The crops are doing well. The calf is big enough to sell. I've traded off the brindle cow, and we ain't got but just one now. The horses all is fat and sleek. Except that Bob is rather weak. But still that isn't nothing queer. We've had him high on twenty year. I think I'll put the bottom field in corn and oats; it oughter yield a heavy crop. The land is rich and just the thing for oats and such. There is no news, to speak of, Jim. Miss Susie Jones is just as trim as when you saw her in the fall. The folks are well. I guess that's all. But stop! I most forgot 'bout dad! I expect the new'll make you sad. You know that dad was getting old. Just sixty years had over him rolled, and so, I much regret to say, We chloroformed poor dad to day. And that's 'bout all the news till I write again. Your brother, Bill. —Pittsburg Post.

Passed Over the Divide.

News was received here last Sunday of the death of Robert H. Lowe, who has been staying for some time past with John Hayes, near Rural post office on the South Fork of the Coquille, who had ended his natural life by casting himself into the river. Mr. Lowe had been a paralytic for several years and seems to have become despondent. He would not stay with his brothers, J. D. or Y. M. Lowe of this place, neither did he wish that they should help him; however they managed to help through the services of Judge Harlocker, Mr. Lowe believing that it came from the county, but it seems that he discovered where his aid came from and that he concluded to end his life.

It seems that he went to the river and stripped off his clothing except his underwear, and having left a note stating that he had no hope of ever being any better he proceeded to end his life.

The deed was committed Sunday morning, April 30th, and he was buried at Rural the next day.

Robert M. Lowe was born in Baltimore County, Maryland, June 30th, 1832, and lacked just two months of being 73 years old.

Oyama's Idea of Happiness.

The great Japanese Field Marshal and, we believe, commander of all the Japanese armies, the Marquis Oyama, once said: "My idea of happiness is to dispose of everything I possess that belongs to the practice of arms, and go far into the country, with big boxes of books to read, for the rest of my days; books that tell of happiness and progress, and not of the terrible deeds of war. And I would gather about me my best old friends and little children. Then, in the sunny days, all would be happiness." — New York Press.

Supreme Court Local Option Decision.

A late Salem dispatch, giving the decision of the Supreme Court in the Portland box-ordinance case, says:

The decision of the court in this case does not affect the powers of municipalities to license the sale of liquor under existing city charters. On the other hand, the Supreme Court holds expressly that licensed liquor dealers may continue to sell, with the exception that in Portland they must not serve liquor in boxes.

The opinion also holds that the local option law adopted by the people does not repeal by implication any charter provision authorizing cities to regulate and license the sale of liquors. The opinion says:

The adoption of the local option law was the enactment of new statute relating to intoxicating liquors, but a personal thereof will show that it was not intended as a substitute for the earlier law, but only as a modification thereof when its provisions become applicable to a special district by a majority of the qualified electors.

As it affects incorporated cities, the Supreme Court says of the local option law:

The refusal of a license in an incorporated town or city, in pursuance of a majority vote for prohibition, under the provisions of the local option law, is a modification of the prior acts generally applicable to municipal corporations; but, as such law was not intended to be operated until the expiration or inapplicability of a popular vote, we think that when the enactment by the people is considered as an entirety, it shows that it was not designed as a substitute for the former law, and hence does not repeal the prior acts by implication.

The Supreme Court remarked that the question not being involved herein, it is unnecessary to determine whether the local option act violates section 21 of article I of the constitution which provides, among other things, that no law shall be passed, "the taking effect of which shall be made to depend upon any authority, except as provided in this constitution."

The view of the Supreme Court is that the application of the local option law is suspended until such time as the voters of a precinct or district shall make it applicable, whereupon it applies in the territory in which a majority voted for prohibition.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at C. Y. Lowe's drug store; price 50c.

To the Friends of Local Option.

We have won a great victory! Judge Hamilton decided the election last fall valid, and saloons are now outlawed in Coos county. But this does not mean that there is nothing more for us to do. We need to be prepared at once to meet any appeal on the part of the saloon keepers; we need a fund to see that the law is enforced, and we have not yet received all the money pledged to defray the suit in the circuit court, which we have just won. Friends send in your subscriptions to the treasurer at your earliest convenience; and let those who have not yet contributed or subscribed do so at once. We need several hundred dollars and it is but fair that the supporters of law and order generally, and not by the few. The treasurer is A. H. Mulkey, Coquille.

ADALPH HABERLY Secretary.
