James O. Larkin

One of the brightest and most doubly appreciated contacts that has come to the notice of this journal is James O. Larkin, of Chicago, Illinois. His name, as a man of marked ability and a man of means, has been familiar for years. He is the author of several books, and is well known as a literary man. He is a man of fine education, and has been active in the literary world for many years. He is a man of high character, and is well respected by all who know him.

It is said that he is now engaged in the publication of a new periodical, which is to be issued bi-monthly. This periodical will be a literary magazine, and will be devoted to the cultivation of the arts and sciences. It is to be published in Chicago, and will be issued in the spring of next year. The subscription price will be $1.00 per annum, and the first number will be issued in May.
