"Distance," asked another, "Why?"

"Do you know anything about the first President of the United States?"

"Yes," said a veteran, "He was my grandfather."

"And his wife?"

"She was my grandmother."

In the course of the conversation, the group of veterans expressed their admiration for the first President, who was known for his bravery and leadership in the Revolutionary War.

"And his wife," said the veteran, "She was a remarkable woman."

"What did she do?"

"She was a nurse during the war," said the veteran, "She cared for the wounded and sick, and risked her own life to save others."

The group of veterans stood together, holding hands, as they remembered the first President and his wife.

"She was a true patriot," said the veteran, "And we are all grateful to her for her sacrifice."
