THURSDAY, FEB. 23, 1906.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of Sheriff of Coos county, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primary election, April 30, 1906.

L. W. TRAVER.

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce S. B. HUSTON, of Hillsboro, Washington County, as a candidate for the nomination of Congressman for the First District, subject to the action of the Republican party.

A loafer on the street, whose wife was probably at home getting out a neighbor's washing to make money to buy the children's shoes, asked a busy man if he ever saw a baldheaded woman. "No, I never did," replied the busy man. "And I never saw a woman walking around town in her shirt sleeves with a cigar in her teeth, and running into every saloon she saw. Neither did I ever see a woman sitting all day at a street corner on a dry goods box telling people how the secretary of the treasury should run the national finances. I have never seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit on the bank all day and go home drunk at night. Nor have I ever seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town. God bless 'em; the women are not built that way."—Ex.

Got interested in your town and stand by it. If a rich man starts a project, encourage him; or a poor man, help him. Don't be afraid to stick your hand in your pocket. If you have means, invest in something that will give employment to somebody. Do not kick on every proposed amendment simply because it is not at your door. Do all you can to beautify the town and your own property also. Be friendly to everybody and courteous to strangers, and never forget that you are a part of the town, and that your own department does its share in giving the town its character. Sell and buy all you can at home. Stand by all enterprising citizens, and be ready to do some of the work yourself, and don't grumble and spend your time in prophesying failures.—Puyallup Republic.

Roseburg has just invested $750 in a new chemical engine.

Here are a few axioms which might help me, if kept, but I seldom benefit by them.

No doctor, worthy, the name, takes his own medicine.

The draught of anything's ahead, the action's aft; as witness the corn-cob smokers' tribulations.

Never run from trouble, but walk from it's coming, ere it has seen you. This is considered foresight and causes a feeling of gratification to uphold the system. You may not term it bravery, but I call it caution.

You will find the lack of discretion in man leading him into ways beyond his understanding to fulfill a whimsy with its cost session he will reason that curiosity's steadfast gaze, when it becomes too familiar, should be shunned.

Some men are born with the agitator's instinct. You usually find them issuing whole sale advice, tending to trouble. When his arrival, prompted by invitation, comes, his tall-talk turns to vapor; and his whereabouts? Ask of the winds. But of the victims? Let the poor fools weather as best they can the storm I've brewed. Am I not safe? The spoils my schemes have planned, are they not mine? Such is his soliloquy.

The orphaned child, from a better feed than he, minding its own affairs. Only on an empty stomach will it steal, and by its code of reasoning, That's no sin; 'n' obeying the law, To fill the empty space within.

I heard a sensible woman say to one of my sex, who was offering apology for his increased or-ralls and natural dirty appearance, "It is not your overalls, but your manhood I recognize." Had he the same ratio of sense he had pin'd his faith to that woman and possessed a happy home by now.

The genus homo is a strange creature, full of fads and fancies. I speak now of the males. Never more lonely than when alone with himself and conscience. From this companion he is ever striving to go, but to him it sticks, forcing admission as a factor to his being. Why, its worse than love for hallucinations. I have heard one of the stampargue that there was no conscience, yet I could fancy his words left doubt within him of its unseen presence and knew amid the silence of his surroundings it bothered him much. Put a coward in authority and he becomes a bully; place him where he cannot slip-step from danger and the true color of his liver shows on his face and his sticky nose. Man will not take to the woods like other animals, unless pursued, but seeks to enjoy the excitement rather of a no-gathering of his own kind.

Quand meels, by natural instinct, obey two laws. To live, they eat, and when their gantlets run they die. Bipeds, by their superiority, combine all lives into one bearing upon self interest.

I have seen the sun of heaven fade before an earthly son's expansion. Two stars of like magnitude cannot exist within a certain radius, for one must dwindle before the rage of the other's power. To give play to faculties, he has improved Nature in places where his law had made it necessary to itself.

Being proud of his power he has tried to beautify her face by retouching lines after a standard of his own grotesque fancy's invention and succeeds in exciting a contemptuous dismission within the halls of the gods. If there is a beauty-spot faued throughout the land he will, if not checked, run upon its most subtle place the sign upholding the superiority of his wares above competitors. In order, as Bacon says, "that he who runs may read," and generally sense runs without reading its interpretation.

There is one, among a multitude of things far beyond me, the standard; why does man take to himself the coping of the future, in foretelling what is to be when he cannot remember the pain the first tooth brought which was to make possible the wearing period at the most sensible time in life, when he obeyed Nature's laws without interfering with her work.

I do not call such dipping into futurity a sign of sense, rather is it a fool's folly, made manifest in a fool's pride with a pride so thickened with nonsense as to be interpreted by him, sense. Such an one will have a following and I may have in my composition a warning that way, to listen to his seeming wisdom and balance to belief in its apparent truth.

Myrtle Point.

Twenty car loads of lumber were shipped across to the bay the last two days from Johnson's and the Coquille mill.

Born at Arago, Feb. 8, 1906, to Mr. and Mrs. Mang Asen, a daughter, Mang was as excited that he forgot to tell us in time for last week's issue.

Some people go ahead and do things; others sit back and criticize the doing. Which class is of greater benefit to the world?

Earnest and Ed Divilbiss and Mr. Hudson were in town Tuesday on business and say that Sixers river was never before so low at this time of the year, and that miners are not doing much for want of water.

The Plant came into the harbor on her down trip a week ago, but did not land at the wharf very much to the annoyance of our merchants who had freight aboard which they badly need.—Tribune.

We were pleased to see last Thursday, two diplomas issued by the State Board of Education to Miss Edna Capps and Master Raymond Capps of Parkersburg. Diplomas were also granted to Miss Mabel Norton and Master Walter Norton. The above named four have successfully passed Eighth grade work as legally prescribed, and are thereby entitled to enter any accredited High School in Oregon. Two others wrote the examination, and fell below the required standing in one branch only, and have the privilege to write in that branch in May. This should be an incentive to others to work for the same result. Much credit is due their able teacher, P. Rowen, for the result. We learn he is a graduate of Wisconsin State University, which institution ranks among the best in the Union. The foundation for Mr. Rowen's work was laid by Mr. Charles Gorne who preceded Mr. Rowen, and was an excellent instructor.

Mr. Rockliff has returned from his vacation much improved in health. News has just been received that Mr. McAdams of Coquille, father of James McAdams, died about midday on the 20.
