THURSDAY, AUG. 16, 1906.

S. B. Cathcart, the county surveyor returned yesterday from Coquille where he attended court Monday and Tuesday.

Much important matter was considered among which was the improvement of several bridges, the construction of new bridges and the improvement of several of the country roads by putting layers of crushed stone in several localities.

A new bridge is to be built at McKinley with a 70 foot span and 450 feet in length. "This bridge is to be erected to take the place of the stone fill located about one mile north of Myrtle Point" said Mr. Cathcart.

"A tile bridge is to be put in near the north fork of the Coquille river. This bridge is to be 368 feet long and has been badly needed for sometime past. Horses have been lost here a good many times.

"The wagon road will be improved with rock work at the Shuck hill for a distance of something over a mile. The stone will be gotten close to where the improvement is to be made. There is already a lot of crushed rock at Gray creek that will more than likely be used in this work.

"Rock work will also be done on the road from Warners to Rody creek on the south fork of the Coquille river for a distance of 1 1/2 miles."

Other improvement work is to be done and the roads in the entire county will receive special attention. —Times.

An exchange prints the following which might be taken to heart by several sojourners in our midst:

Don't be a knocker! It doesn't pay. It makes you neither happy, wealthy or wise. Your popularity is never increased because you gain the reputation of being a first class knocker. If you believe your town to be the worst one on earth, move out and give some fool optimist a chance to move in, take your place and go broke. It will serve him right for not listening to your tale of woe. If you are quite sure that you can buy goods 10 or 20 per cent cheaper in the next town than you can in your own, in the name of freedom and liberty go there and spend your money—but also in the name of decency and fair play, stay there and earn the money you spend. Candidly do you think it fair to make money in one town and spend it in another?

Don't pull against the stream or tug on the wrong end of the rope. Push things; smile once in a while; be helpful. Tell people that your town is the best ever, or that it soon will be, and they will not think you are a lobster for living there. Tell your neighbor that he is all right; that you're all right; that the town is all right, and that everybody who is trying to do something is all right.

The wanton murder of a harmless, poor old man by two mere boys of 16 and 18 years is one of those occasional similar crimes that cause the average citizen to contemplate with horrified amazement the possible depth of depravity in some of the youth and children of today. Here were two boys with homes and parents, boys who were capable of working and doing work, apparently intelligent and if not very well behaved showing no extreme viciousness, committing this atrocious murder to utter wantonness, only a day after they had absconded from their homes, and only to carry to an extreme degree their reckless meanness. Such an event is sufficient to give society pause and cause it to take a new survey of itself.

Yet explanations are not difficult. Lack of parental authority and control, vicious, cheap romances, bad habits, particularly cigarette smoking and a disposition and desire to be wild and wicked rather than steady and decent. As to parental control, that may be difficult, for some youth are through heredity utterly incorrigible; and then in these days some parents care not how bad their children become—though this does not seem to be such a case. Give a boy predisposed to wickedness "Nick Carter" novels, plenty of cigarettes, companions who delight in obscenity, which delights him, and he will become a criminal of one degree or another while very young.

The alarming thought is that these boys are no worse than many others right in this city who are in nowise controlled, who have no regard for law or any kind of authority, who are happy only when doing some malicious mischief and indulging in vice, who under the same circumstances might have done the same thing.

These boys had revolvers, of course; every vicious kid has to have a revolver these days; and their probable intention was to hold up people and rob them, committing murder if resisted. No youth, or adult either, running about the country has any business with a revolver, and should be deprived of it in any town where he shows himself.

The result of this sad tragedy may be not altogether evil, for these boys might otherwise have committed several murders and tried to emulate Tracy and Smith. And then possibly some other boys of like disposition will be deterred from imitating their example.—Portland Journal

WOMAN CREATED AS MASTER

Chicago, Aug. 10.—After 6,000 years' belief on the part of erring man that the first chapter of Genesis gave him ascendancy over woman, Professor W. I. Thomas of the chair of sociology at the University of Chicago has arisen to explain that the rib story will not pass muster, but must take its place along with Jonah and the whale.

Woman, insists the professor, was not originally intended as a mere companion to man. She did not spring into being as the net product of a useless rib to please her master, the dominating force and the superior before which man appeared as useless as a vermiform appendix.

There are some startling things, Professor Thomas says in the American Journal of Sociology. Woman first domesticated the animals, beginning with man. Primal man did not want to stay at home. The middle and higher classes have now reduced woman to parasitism. Morality is worked out in the school of experience; it is male. Falling in love is really mediated by woman. Man does the courting, but she controls the process. Man is an easy mark for woman.

"Women who lead fast lives do not die; the 'pace that kills' only serves as a process of evolution. Women who have led fast lives make uncommonly good wives. Education is a remedy for woman's secondary position."

The article has caused a sensation.

After next Wednesday it is probable that less veal and more venison will be eaten by the people of Myrtle Point and vicinity, it being lawful to kill buck deer after that date.

A consignment of white cedar lumber is being hauled down from Bridge for shipment. The price for this product is $22 and it thus pays to haul it in that way while there would be no profit in hauling cheaper lumber.

The program for the annual reunion of the Southwestern Veterans Association, to be held in Dixon's grove at this place on August 29, 30 and 31 has been prepared in part, and posters advertising the event have been issued. On Wednesday the 29th, there will be a shooting contest between the gun clubs of Coquille and Myrtle Point, beginning at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. In the evening Mayor K. A. Leep will make the address of welcome and response will be made by Col. R. H. Rosa, of Bandon, to be followed by a general talk. On Thursday there will be addresses by able speakers in the forenoon, a free dinner for veterans and their families at noon, at 1:30 music by the Centennial band; at 2 program by the school children; at 4 business meeting at the G. A. R. hall. In the evening there will be music by the band and a camp fire. Friday will be pioneers' day the program for which will be given later. Hay will be furnished campers and as many tents as possible will be provided. An especial invitation is extended to ex confederates and the public generally will be cordially welcomed.—Enterprise.
