COQUILLE NEWS NOTES

Leander, Our Correspondent Tells of the Week's Incidents at the Hub.

Autumn days have come, the farmers have garnered their harvest preparing for the approaching winter. Already the evenings and mornings are cold and chilly and a fire is a necessary requisite. You by the sea side are alright, but the rigid mandates of law says Peoples' buttermilk is good enough for us up here. These cold and frosty mornings when the cold chills see running up and down our vertebra please remember your less fortunate brothers in need.

The train has failed to put in an appearance for the last few days. The company is repairing some bridges which was essential for the safety of its patrons. Consequently the traveling public have had to adopt the old method, the foot and walker line. The late arrivals are somewhat confused but the old mossback is cool and reconciled for that was his mode of transportation in the primitive days that are gone although it requires the renowned Beaver Slough to fill out the program.

Our public school has commenced with an able corps of instructors and the young juvenile's absence is noted on the street.

A. L. Barnum, an old steam boat man of pioneer days, but recently from the Columbia river, has returned for a short visit after an absence of 15 years. Al says there are a great many changes during that period of time. He found some familiar countenances but the majority was supplanted with new faces and new scenes and time had wrought many changes. The old landmarks are familiar to his eyes, and he said the water ebbed and flowed just the same.

The R. R. surveyors are in the vicinity of Beaver Slough running preliminary lines. What it all means time alone will demonstrate, but evidently it is the outcroppings of a permanent railroad down the coast.

The races at Arago last week was the all absorbing topic and a great many of our citizens took them in or rather was taken in. Becky Luvkiss, president of the Womans' Clean-up Club was there looking after the dead soldiers and was accorded a seat in the grand stand but neither Geo. Moulton nor Varney was present hence the old lady looked lonesome. Lynn Doyle accompanied by Annie Heather was there. Lynn assumes a very dignified appearance since the Woman's Clean-up Club gives him a weekly ablution of soap and water. However, misfortune was in store for him. Some confidential friend gave him a tip whereby he could double his exchequer and he readily availed himself of the opportunity. When he and behold, he had his last sesterion on the wrong horse. Buncoed again and the hard hearted steam boat men had recently adopted a cash system which left him in a deplorable condition, but fortunately there is a wagon road to Coquille, and in the wee small hours of the night there was a terrible noise on the opposite side of the river and it was not Hark Dunham snoring either. It was after ferry hours and Lynn was dickering with the boys to ferry him across the river and he would pay them when he realized the cash from the accumulation of dead soldiers he had in his pockets. He expected to realize a cash valuation of a nickel apiece at Baxter Bros.

Warren Parker had quite an experience with a cow a couple of weeks ago. It seems he bought the cow just to help a man out—the milk of human kindness asserting itself. Having no use for the cow he told the Recorder man to advertise her for sale. The printer overlooked the matter and the ad did not appear for two weeks and in the meantime somebody put the cow wise and she died just before the paper came out. Parker has been getting all that was coming to him for advertising to sell a dead cow and as a result has resolved henceforth he will buy no more busses just to accommodate a man.

A Rancher's Attractive Offer to Hunters.

Rock Creek, Or., Sept. 22.—Sport and making money do not always go hand in hand, but A. A. Carathers, a rancher near here, is out with an offer that he believes should be attractive to some of the gunners of Portland. Since the repeal of the bounty on coyotes they have multiplied rapidly and Carathers, who has many chickens, has suffered greatly from the visits of the roamers. So heavy have been his losses that he will board a man and his dogs free of charge and pay him $1 a scalp for every coyote killed in his neighborhood. Carathers thinks this is a good chance for Portland hunters with wolf hounds to spend an enjoyable outing and at the same time make a little money.

The coyotes are multiplying so fast in this vicinity that the next legislature will probably be asked to restore the bounty law or at least make an appropriation amounting to one half or one third of the sum paid for scalps when the old law out of existence. In this way only a portion of the coyotes would be killed, because as soon as the appropriation was exhausted there would be no sale for scalps.

Attempt Made to Rob Drain Postoffice.

Drain, Or., Sept. 24.—An almost successful attempt to rob the post-office safe was made here last night and was probably frustrated by night-watchman Mynatt, or Postmaster Hasard. The nightwatchman heard a noise at the rear of the building in which the office is located, but on investigation found nothing wrong. The postmaster went in at 4 o'clock to make up the mail for the Coos Bay stage and found a charge of nitro glycerin attached to the safe with fuse ready to be lighted. Several houses have been broken into since work began on the new railroad here but this is the most daring attempt.

Signs That Empire City Is Taking New Lease on Life.

Empire City, Or., Sept. 23.—(Special)—After many years the people who have always held that there was a future before Empire City are saying "I told you so." There are movements on foot now that warrant the prediction that Empire City is going to awaken from its long sleep. From instruments filed with the Clerk of Coos County within the past few days it has been learned that the Southern Oregon Company has been quietly engaged in buying up lands north of Empire City for some months, and deeds have already been filed covering over 3000 acres of land. The knowing ones say that this means the opening of the big sawmill that has so long been idle, and the fact that the Dean Lumber Company of Marshfield, sent a man here a few days ago to purchase some of the machinery and the refusal of the Southern Oregon Company to sell lends strength to the report that the mill will soon be opened.

It is further asserted that a force of men will soon be set to work at overhauling the mill. To-day, fully three-fourths of the business places and residences in Empire City are deserted, but should the big mills resume operations, the streets of the city, so long deserted, will again teem with life. The Southern Oregon Company is credited with being the owners of 97,000 acres of land in Coos County, but for some reason best known to the officials of the company this land has not been utilized. Should the mill here be reopened it is said that the company owns enough timber to keep it running day and night for years.

The steamer Alliance from Portland recently brought a quantity of machinery for a fish canning plant to be opened here by Sam Elmore, of Astoria, and 30 tons of tin to be converted into salmon cans. A force of Chinese was also brought down to work in the cannery.

Silverside salmon will be put up, and it is expected that a large quantity of fish will be put in tins between now and the close of the season in November.

The races at Arago were somewhat of a failure this year. The purses offered were too small and good horses could not be secured.

J. Virgie Pugh has been appointed postmaster at Empire.

Dr. Culin, Jas. Watson and M. J. Hartsen came down from Coquille today in a gasoline launch.
