THURSDAY, NOV. 8, 1906.

The Recorder is glad to note the fact that its valued contemporary, the Myrtle Point Enterprise, has taken up the fight for a steambot to Portland, and is exerting its energies to the end that the move might yet prove a success. The Enterprise of Friday presents a cartoon to its readers wherein a farmer is shown to be wheeling his produce to a steamer to escape the merciless extortions of the Southern Pacific Railroad system. The cartoon was drawn by a photographer of Myrtle Point, and it is certainly a good one. The people of this section of Coos county are a unit in favor of the steambot proposition named, and they are ready to give it any encouragement possible, financially or otherwise. The Enterprise has certainly gotten off on the right tack. There is no reason apparent to us why we should not have had a boat running to Portland ere this, and everyone agrees that it would be a paying proposition. The Enterprise's cartoon was a source of much interest in Bandon, and had a stimulating effect upon those who had given only passing heed to the steambot question.

A gentleman who is in a position to know, and whose veracity we are not disposed to question, tells the Recorder that certain Coos Bay influences are endeavoring to divert the shingle shipments of this valley from Coquille bar to Coos bay by offering a 15 cent reduction on the freight per 1000. The shingle men of this valley are not likely to be caught in any such snare, for they certainly know that the purpose of such bait-offering is to kill off the shipping via Coquille bar, in the event of which effort their freights would go soaring to the sky in a jiffy, and they would disgorge handsomely for their folly in the end. No, the shingle men of Southern Coos are not fools by any means.

It is no more than right that Marshfield and North Bend should exert themselves in advocacy of the Coos bay region, and it is no more than right that Bandon, Coquille and Myrtle Point put forth their best efforts in behalf of Southern Coos county. The following is taken from the Coos Bay Times of Friday last: That life has once more been injected into the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce can be readily seen by the work accomplished at last night's meeting. Among the important matters discussed was the matter of instituting a vigorous and extensive advertising campaign of Coos Bay. The Marshfield Chamber of Commerce decided last night to expend $1,000 for advertising purposes, and to carry out this decision the following committee was appointed: F. S. Dow, G. Wilson Kaufman, Carl Albrecht, Henry Sengstacken and J. W. Snover.

The barkentine Skagit was wrecked on the rocks near the entrance to Puget Sound on the 26th, and Captain Rose and the cook were drowned. The survivors were taken to Victoria, B. C., by the steamer Salvor.

President Roosevelt has formally declared Thursday, Nov. 29th, a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Governor Chamblin has done likewise, we understand.

Hon. L. J. Simpson of North Bend is being boosted against his wish for the success of his United States Senator Fulton. Mr. Simpson is a man of marked abilities, and would reflect honor upon Coos county and the State at large, but we are inclined to believe that Mr. Fulton will succeed himself if such is his personal desire.

District Attorney Manning would be Mayor of Portland. Mayor Lane will run for Governor. Both are graduates of the Marion county school of politics, which means much, says the Salem Journal—and the Journal ought to know.

Hume Talks of Fish.

R. D. Hume, in a letter to the Oregonian, in which he severely criticizes Master Fish Warden Van Dusen for not fulfilling his duty, gives some good advice regarding the propagation of salmon. He believes, notwithstanding the millions of eggs taken at the various hatcheries, that very little good has been derived from such institutions, because the young fry were not fed until they were able to eat, instead of being eaten. This is a matter that has been apparent to even those whose knowledge of salmon propagation is limited. Millions of fry are turned out of our coast hatcheries only to go to fill the stomachs of trout, shag and the various species of fish ducks. If the young fry were fed until old enough to take care of themselves, a very large percentage of them would reach salt water and return in four or five years full grown fish. We believe, however, that the Fish Warden is beginning to recognize the importance of feeding the fry, and that provisions will be made for so doing hereafter.

Ruef Gets Set-Back.

A dispatch from San Francisco of recent date says: Superior Judge Sewell today issued an alternative writ of mandamus prohibiting Acting Mayor Gallagher and the Board of Supervisors from making any further attempt to remove District Attorney Langdon. The writ is returnable November 9th. In obtaining this writ the anti Ruef forces gained an important temporary advantage, as it will be impossible for the executive to interfere with the district attorney until the hearing, and it is possible the writ may then be made temporary.

Oregon's War Claim.

A dispatch from Salem reads as follows: Attorney General A. M. Crawford has returned from an official visit to Washington, D. C., where he went to look after the State's war claim against the Government for over $300,000 for garrisoning and maintaining the Government forts in the State during the Civil War, and which have been pending for the past 40 years. He reports that he employed the firm of Ralston & Siddons, of Washington, to look after the State's interests in the matter, and feels confident that the State is in a fair way to receive compensation.

The Less company now has 60 men and 350 horses and mules at work on the Drain extension. The work is extended over about 20 miles to a point beyond Elkton on the Coast Range. The right of way is cleared for ten miles and some grading is being done. In the second ten miles work is progressing on four tunnels. One of them has been entered a distance of 50 feet, and it is hoped to get the men inside for an all-winter job. Compressed air drills will soon be operating in the tunnels. The S. P. company is bridging Elk Creek and will soon have trains on the new extension.

President Roosevelt has formally declared Thursday, Nov. 29th, a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Governor Chamblin has done likewise, we understand.
