Port Orford.

Hans Adolphsen left by stage last Thursday for Prosper, where he will work for some time.

The lightning Friday night struck a large tree near the Neygren hotel and literally tore it into splinters.

Miss Winnie Doyle, who has been teaching school at Ophir, passed through town last week, going up the coast.

Miss Mary Sutton has been employed on the Globe, and we look for a decided improvement in consequence.

N. C. Neilson is fitting the back part of his store building for a billiard parlor, Mr. Axtell Sr., doing the painting and paper hanging.

The work on the wharf was just completed in time when the heavy storm burst upon us, for had it come a week or two earlier the wharf would have gone down.

The old bridge over Willow creek at Denmark being considered unsafe, a new one is under way, and it is feared that it may be damaged if a big freshet should occur.

The people of Curry county are to be congratulated upon their successful fight against the black cloud that hung over them in the shape of that proposed, senseless, Forest Reserve.

DIED—At the Soldier's Home in West Roseburg, Oct. 29, 1906, Daniel Shelley, aged 74 years, of paralysis. Mr. Shelley was a veteran of the Southern Oregon Indian wars of 1853 and 1855-56, serving as a private in Capt. R. L. Williams' Volunteer Company.

Miss Florence Rosa, who has been spending a few days down the coast, was at the Knapp hotel Sunday, and returned by Monday's stage to her home near Bandon. Her brother, Lloyd, who was also down the coast, went up the coast Saturday.

Four of the men working on the hydraulic mine on Elk river (Baneroffs), quit work last week, and Mr. Peterson, the Supt., left here Monday to make a flying visit to Seattle before starting up again. The trouble appears to be one of those cases where there are too many bosses, and no doubt Mr. Peterson will know who is boss before returning. The company pays promptly, and we regret to see this delay in their work.—Tribune.

James Timon, a brother of J. H. Timon, the Lampa coal miner, who is here from Nevada for a visit with his brother, went to the Bay one day last week to procure a lot of giant powder for use in the mine. Mr. Timon tells us that the new Lampa mine is growing up in fine shape, there now being the fourth vein in sight, two or three in a workable shape and one or two thick and of fine quality. Mr. Timon has had considerable trouble in running into a fault and losing them. He has now reached the solid unbroken mountain, and will soon be in shape to turn out coal in large quantities. He is now in need of more miners.—Herald.

The third meeting of the Rivers and Harbors Congress is called to meet in Washington, D. C., on the 6th and 7th of December, only a week before Congress convenes. The National Rivers and Harbors Congress advocates annual river and harbor appropriations of not less than $5,000,000,000. It is to bring about the placing of the Rivers and Harbors bill on a plane with other annual Government appropriations, making it regular, and in size commensurate with its great importance to the commercial and economic welfare of the nation. Coos county should have a delegate at that congress.

A Portland paper has stated what Senator Fulton will do in the Senate this winter. Of course, according to the paper, all of Mr. Fulton's work will be for Portland, but those selfish people at the metropolis will be surprised when they find that the Senator will ask for appropriations for Coos bay and the Coquille river. Oregon's representative has promised to do all he can for our county, and the people can depend upon him.—Sentinel.

Among the articles of incorporation filed in the office of the Secretary of State during the last fortnight we find the Coos County Fair Association, J. J. Stanley, Walter Schroeder, G. G. Swan and G. T. Robinson incorporators. Now let every farmer in the county resolve to do his best to advance the interests of the important enterprise, and then it will be a grand success.—Sentinel.

The Knocker in Evidence.

The Coquille Sentinel of Friday last has another timely editorial on the steamboat question, and in the course of its remarks adverts to the fact that the "knocker" has appeared as usual. The Sentinel's article is worthy of reproduction. It is as follows:

Now that the Coquille, Portland and San Francisco steamboat proposition has been brought to the front and taken hold of in a systematic way with excellent prospects of a wonderful success, the knocker, of course, steps to the front and raises his well known howl, "You can't do it. There is not money enough in Coos county to build a boat. Why, it will cost a hundred thousand dollars. I have talked with Portland drummers, and they say that that city will not take any stock, unless they have the controlling interest," and all such and every other similar argument is used to dampen the energy of those who would be glad to see our valley improve her commercial conditions. Some of those pessimists may be honest in taking such a stand, but we cannot forbear saying that they have not given the subject the proper thought, with a reasonable amount of intelligence, or they would stand pat on the proposition. The arguments used by these people remind the writer of an incident of the Civil War. In Jackson county, Oregon, a man had brick to sell. The quartermaster of Camp Baker wanted to build some flues, and went to see if he could purchase some brick with greenbacks. The wife of the man who had the kiln, said, "No. The Government was over a hundred thousand dollars in debt, and it would never be able to get out of debt." The officer offered her the currency on a gold basis, so she could get the coin for them by walking one block, but she would not take the risk. At that time Uncle Sam's expenses were over a million dollars a day.

If the promotion committee for the Coquille country is composed of progressive men there will be no difficulty in raising the necessary funds, and the keel for a new craft to sail the wide ocean can be laid before the new year crowds upon us.

This section of grand old Oregon is marching to the front. There is no use of any one trying to stop the progress. Better all get in the band wagon and we will go on to successful success. What has kept our country back these many years is a lack of energy and courage to reach out and accept the many good opportunities that nature has placed before us, and not wait for a Harriman or some other capitalist to come at our bidding, and gobble up every advantage in sight, and then say to the public: "Give me your hard earnings. I have built you a railroad and you owe me all your produce, except a little grub to keep you at work."

People encourage the trusts, make heroes out of their head men, give them everything they ask, surrender nature's generous advantages to man, and then howl over it like a dog that has lost his master.

Mrs. C. O. Dryden of this place has just received a letter from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fry, from El Centro, California, in which they stated that the day following they would start for Portland, Oregon, so by this time we presume they are at their destination. The farm Mr. Fry purchased in the Imperial Valley is now in the bottom of the huge lake, of which we gave description two or three weeks ago in these columns.—Herald.

Again we have the sad duty to chronicle the death of one more of Coos county's early settlers. W. D. L. F. Smith passed away at his home in Marshfield quite recently, having been ill over a year. His death is due to a stroke of paralysis received at the fair at Portland last autumn.

C. M. Skeels, the Coquille merchant, has sold a half interest in his business to his son, Chas. T. Skeels.
