

ELECTRIC LIGHTS SATURDAY NIGHT

PLANT IS COMPLETED READY TO RUN

Much Delay Experienced on Account of Shipping Difficulties

If everything turns out as is now planned, Bandon will have the electric lights turned on this Saturday evening. The reign of the candle and coal oil has passed, and the gasoline light, which will be retained by a few of the merchants, will soon be placed out of commission. The electric lights give much more satisfaction, require less care and are considered cheaper than any other kind of light.

On the fifteenth of June C. E. Holloper commenced work on this lighting plant and system. Bonded by his franchise to the city to have the lights turned on by the first of September, all lines of the construction work were rushed, but material was very difficult to secure. Transportation caused delay, as a greater portion had to come from the East. The heavy machinery was contracted to be delivered in time to start the plant at that date, but it was simply impossible to get the orders filled. It has been their greatest contention, the delay. At last enough material was secured to commence the wiring of business houses and dwellings, until the machinery arrived.

The big boiler and engine arrived a few weeks ago, and the generator came last week. These have been mounted upon solid concrete blocks, and the greatest care has been taken to put in a plant that would be sufficient to care for the demand. It is new, complete, and would be a credit to a much larger town than Bandon.

A Frost 130 horsepower engine and boiler will handle the load with ease. The boiler is high pressure, 16x66. A General Electric Generator 3 phase, revolving field, 2300 volt, will light up the place. It has a capacity of 2000 lights, 300 of which are now in and a large number of orders for wiring have been left until the plant was in operation.

The City of Bandon has ordered 12 arc lamps which will be located as follows: One at each of these places—Fourth St. and Plank Road, 3rd St on top of hill, Baldwin's Corner, 4th St near G A R Hall, in front of City Hall, Lorenz & Hoyt corner, Cafe Corner, R H Rosa Co. corner, Woolen Mill corner, Shingle Mill corner, in front of Broom Handle Mill, 3rd St, at top of steps. Owing to the fact that our streets are not familiar by name to the majority we designate the location as near public places. J E Walstrom and Price's Ship Yard will soon have an arc installed. In the event of the lights being turned on Saturday, the Bank Hall will be lighted by an arc for the Knights of Pythias.

The power house is located near the Shingle Mill, and will burn sawdust and slabs from that mill. It is a corrugated iron building, making it fireproof, and the engine room is floored with concrete. Fire has been kept up in the boiler for the past week, and yesterday the engine was started for the first time. Delay at present is occasioned by a pulley for the generator, which arrived in Marshfield on the last Breakwater, but like most of the stuff which goes through Coos Bay for Bandon, is delayed considerably.

They expect it here by Saturday sure.

C. E. Holloper is a member of the Bandon Light and Power Co., and is the manager. He has been assisted in the installation of this plant by V R Dwiggin, who is also an electrician. The company has given employment to many, as their policy has been to use home labor as far as possible. Chas Martin has worked at the wiring, and J. Coale has done the inside work at the power house.

This addition to Bandon is far more important than many realize. On clear nights the lights can be seen for many miles out at sea by the passing vessels, and will be a big advertisement for us. Travelers on the last Plant from San Francisco saw the smoke in the day time from our numerous industries, and when they were told it came from Bandon, they expressed their surprise at so large a manufacturing town.

A day service is contemplated in the future. The company will furnish power to the steam laundry both for heating and operating. The first flicker of the lights next Saturday marks another epoch of lasting development for this city, and we want to join our citizens in saying a good word for the new company and management.

Myrtle Point Notes. From the Enterprise.

Several Myrtle Point patrons of the Coquille laundry had their washing damaged by fire recently. The laundry was placed on a flat car to be carried up here, and was set on fire by sparks from the engine.

Elder Baker has commenced a series of meetings at the Latter Day Saints' chapel, and will hold meetings each evening until further notice. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services.

A couple of blooded sports left town suddenly this week on being informed that the sheriff was looking for them. They will not be missed, and a few others might just as readily be spared for the general good of the community.

H. B. Steward is now postmaster, having succeeded A. H. Bender the first of the month. Mr. Bender resigned to take up some other line of work which he is fully determined upon, but is helping the new postmaster to get a proper start.

C. H. Gram, deputy labor commissioner and factory inspector of Portland, was in Myrtle Point the first of the week, and from here went down the river and into Curry county. Mr. Gram says that he found the factories in the vicinity of Myrtle Point in better standing than the average. There were several pieces of machinery that needed slight adjustment and repair to make them perfectly safe, but none of them were far out of the way. Mr. Gram wishes it understood that his mission is not to make trouble for mill owners, but to protect the owners and employees against injury and loss.

Did he bring that umbrella back yet? No, of course not, they never do. Why not get one of those new ones at Lorenz & Hoyt, and have your name engraved on the handle? It is cheaper than buying umbrellas every year.

INTERVIEW ON THE LATE MONEY PANIC

OPINIONS BY PROMINENT BANDON MAN

A Careful Study of Present Existing Conditions of Finance.

The following is an interview with one of our foremost citizens who has carefully studied the panic crisis existing today. For his authority he voices the sentiments of the leading editorial writers and best informed business men of the day. It is a true and concise state of the present conditions and explicitly shows that to quell this turbulent state of affairs, confidence must be restored in the Banks and general business undertakings.

Financiering when conducted upon systematic and economic principles, becomes a science. Finance can, and will shortly be reduced to a scientific basis, for the present commercial era, of gigantic proportions has given rise to, and forced upon the present generation, for solution, the momentous and all important subject how to finance—forces upon us a branch of science in which mankind is little skilled beyond the requirements of the individual—a branch of science in which he is little schooled—a school in which emergencies like the present will compel us to become proficient.

At present there is no scientific control of commerce or monetary usages, from the standpoint usually called Financiering, but confidence is its pulse and sustaining element, a unit made up of the conglomerated opinion of seventy millions of people. Be the conditions of our country good or bad, the loss of confidence among men, destroys money circulation, impels a panic, and incidentally reverses the wheels of progress. Whether the administration be Democratic, Whig or Republican, the tariff high or low, supply and demand be great or small, we know that at intervals in American history, are chronicled the details of a panic all due to lost confidence, the severity of each succeeding quake in the new financial world keeping pace with the increase of people, trade and commerce, and the frequency of the same increasing with the rapidity equal to that of the growth of intelligence—mediums, such as the press, telephone, telegraph and other systems.

As the panic which reached its climax in 1893 first began on the Atlantic Coast in 1890, so the present flurry which first began in Wall Street is scarcely more than six weeks old. Not a single dollar has gone out of existence, not a single article of value destroyed, yet the wiser heads talk panic. To avoid a money panic, as we would a foreign plague, and which we have recently learned to do by scientific methods, is the problem before us. How can we separate money and confidence, and eliminate confidence as an element of finance, for never a day goes by, not even the most prosperous in the year, that a simultaneous loss of confidence over the Nation would result in an instantaneous panic and calamity.

Without offering a solution to the problem, it appears to us that the present concerted action of Banks and Banking interests, by refusing to honor foreign drafts, and deposit certificates in only ordinary amounts, has become the first step toward scientific control of finance for it has put a check upon a scare, and for the first time in American History, the man who had a bank account, and lost his confidence, has been prevented from committing indiscretion, while his interests have been judiciously protected, and incidentally a panic averted. The present flurry in times of prosperity has no doubt resulted from the invasion of the administration upon corrupt financial methods in Wall Street, which has either engaged or crippled the "big interests" and scared the little ones. While the present administration is responsible for the attack upon graft, and a scare has resulted, nevertheless, nothing derogatory of administrative policies can be imputed or even intimated, and it is a happy state of American politics when the foremost leaders of the two great parties perfectly accord in the prosecution of graft, and when one party does not impute maleficence or bad faith upon the other because of the unfortunate result.

Let the prosecution continue as it undoubtedly will, though it has caused a temporary inconvenience, and if confidence be restored, our prosperity will continue as last year, under the old confidence regime, but if not restored, the Banking interests, for the present, and probably legislation later, will by systematic methods eliminate confidence from the game, and our prosperity will continue anyway.

Our Banks and State Officials have taken a most unusual method, the Constitutionality of which might be questioned by Courts of law, but they have taken a course, to them deemed most expedient, and which alone has prevented a panic in Oregon, and we believe no one will care to test the validity of the present holidays.

Large shipments of gold from New York to Portland are daily arriving, and we believe that within two-weeks, the banks, by reason of the holidays will be able to pay off every depositor in full, and when the happy event occurs confidence will at once be restored, the crisis long since past, the deposits returned, and prosperity re-instated.

There is still every reason for the optimist to rejoice.

Socialist Sociable

Socialists are Sociable People and will give a Social at the Town Hall, Sat. Eve. Nov. 16.

ADDITION TO GALLIER HOTEL COMPLETED

WALLS HARD FINISHED IN WOOD FIBRE

Has Been Needed for Some Time - Is Modern Throughout

Bandon's need for more hotel accommodations has been a source of great inconvenience to travelers and summer visitors. The rapid growth required more accommodations of this order for laborers, and all hotels and boarding houses have been overflowing for the past eight months. The Gallier Bros. have just completed their three story addition to the main hotel this week, and the rooms will be furnished complete as soon as possible.

The addition is 32x100 and is modern in every detail. It is finished throughout in hard finish plaster and all of the woodwork has been done in the natural finish, making a very creditable building for Bandon. Each room in both the old and new part has or soon will be wired for electric lights. Hot and cold water, patent toilets and bathrooms on every floor, give the guest every accommodation desired.

The down stairs of the building has been finished off into two store rooms. J. T. Mars will occupy one with a first class confectionery store and billiard room. He has a large stock ordered and will branch out in his lines, heretofore impossible on account of space and location. The other part is now being finished off and as yet is not rented. Although it is safe to state there will be no difficulty in disposing of it if the management is so inclined.

A change will be made in the dining rooms and the kitchen. The main dining room will be enlarged, and a grill room will be added. The kitchen will be moved, and larger and more modern cooking appliances are already here waiting to be installed. In the rear of the store rooms is a large room which will be divided up into display places for sample rooms.

The old building contains 33 rooms and the new 40. This will enable the management to accommodate more guests in the building where heretofore it has been necessary to run several annexes. Another much needed factor in the upbuilding of Bandon has been realized, and still we grow.
